Beat Dictatorship Now, Senate Urged

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 2—The United States senate was warned today that its vote on the New Deal "work or jail" bill may be its last chance to save the nation from dictatorship and regimentation. The warning came from Sen. Morse [R., Ore.], whose voting record since he was seated Jan. 3 has indicated a leaning toward the New Deal.

Sen. Morse

"If we are going to make a fight for the preservation of freedom on the home front," Morse told the senate, "if we are going to fight against attempts to regiment the economy of this country, the time to make that fight is now, on this bill.

"It may be our last chance, because if we give this sort of power of economic dictatorship to any man or any agency, I think we will have a future fight to regain the freedom we give away today."

Second Week of Debate

Morse's attack on the bill came as the senate opened its second week of debate on the compromise measure which would give the director of war mobilization and reconversion sweeping powers over every industry and business establishment and every American worker.

The war mobilizer could dictate employment ceilings in any establishment, regulate or prohibit the hiring of new employes, and tell workers where they could or could not work. Violators of his regulations, employers and workers alike, would be liable to one year prison terms, $10,000 fines, or both.

Predictions of the bill's defeat were freely made in the senate cloakrooms and corridors today.

A vote tomorrow or Wednesday was predicted by Barkley.

Morse, a former Roosevelt-appointed member of the war labor board, said "high government officials" have been telephoning senators urging them to vote for the man power bill.

Wants No Coercion

"The cat in the bag is the fear that unless we have some such bill as this, we cannot meet the unemployment problem after hostilities have ceased," Morse said. "Let me tell you we will never meet the unemployment problem of this country by the use of coercion.

"Don't tell me it is going to be the pattern of this administration to face unemployment by legislation which threatens to put people in jail unless they work where the administration wants them to work."

Morse said the New Deal "read the ballots awry if it thinks it received a blank check" in last November's election. It did not, he said, receive a mandate to establish an all-powerful executive government in America.

Johnson Opposes Compulsion

Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.], who proposed the compromise bill in the house-senate conference on job control bills, told the senate he did not favor any suggestion to force war workers to stay on their jobs when the administration proposed lifting the ban on horse racing and night clubs.

La Guardia Hints Change in Curfew in '72 Hours'

New York, April 2 [Special]—Asked by a reporter if he thought the resignation of War Mobilizer Byrnes would bring about any relaxation of the curfew, Mayor Fiorello La Guardia said today: "Don't ask me now. Wait 72 hours, won't you?"

Plastic Skill Gives Scarred G.I.s New Life

BY CARL WIEGMAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Tuscaloosa, Ala., April 2—In former wars many men survived, only to wish they had died on the battlefield. They were the mutilated men, who lived out their hopeless lives in hospitals, institutions—any place where they could avoid the stares of their fellow men.

Maj. John F. Pick

Now the shattered faces and bodies of such soldiers are being rebuilt and they are going back to their families, normal men. A Chicago surgeon, whose skilful hands formerly performed delicate and expensive operations at many Chicago hospitals, is now working 8 to 12 hours a day, six days a week, at Northington General hospital here, repairing the faces and bodies of boys who were maimed by enemy gunfire.

Performs 2,000 Operations

This surgeon is Maj. John Francis Pick, chief of plastic surgery at Northington, whose home is at 1420 Lake Shore dr. Since he entered the army Feb. 17, 1943, he has performed more than 2,000 operations. He has been stationed since last September at Northington, one of eight army general hospitals set aside for plastic surgery.

Under the strain of unceasing work in the operating room, Maj. Pick's dark hair has turned gray, but his tall, slender figure is as erect and lithe as in the days when he was a well known polo player in Chicago. He calls his patients by their first names, and they talk to him as they would to a father.

Maj. Pick denies he and his staff work miracles, but his patients, who pose for pictures before and after surgical treatment, think differently. They are living evidence of what can be done by plastic surgery, and they quickly drive away the despair of disfigured men newly arrived from the battle fronts.

Many Marvels of Surgery

"I'm going to get a new face," says a boy to his ward mate. He says it with confidence, and the confidence is not misplaced.

To the plastic surgery staff, spectacular operations are commonplace. For one man, who was struck by a mortar shell, Maj. Pick made two eyelids, a nose, a roof of the mouth, a lip, the lining of a cheek; repaired a hole in the throat, and grafted a lower jaw. All this took 23 separate surgical innings over a period of 14 months.

Another patient, struck by shrapnel, rolled under a tank and half of his head was torn away. His brain was undamaged, and Maj. Pick reconstructed his head, using plates of tantalum.

Saved After Anzio Blast

Many patients are brought to the hospital for treatment of burns which, in former wars, would certainly have been fatal. One of these

At Yalta, on a foggy day,
The Secret Three set down to play;
The light was dim, the cards were dealt
To Winston, Joe and Roosevelt.
Said Joe: "Well, boys, I'm drawin' THREE!"
"The same," said F.D.R., "for me."
But Winston, knowing all the tricks,
Observed: I'm standing pat on SIX—
Including the Dumbarton Joker,
For I'm an old Dumbarton Oaker;
So, if you please, I'll just play these!
Britannia shall rule the seize.

Don't Shudder If April Frost Coats Garden

Would an April frost destroy early flowers, vegetables, shade trees, fruit trees, and flowering shrubs which are abnormally advanced because of the mild March weather?

That's the question being asked by Chicago home owners since yesterday morning when the weather bureau forecast colder temperatures and possibility of frost in the next few days.

Professional horticulturists, farmers, and truck gardeners aren't frightened by the prospect of frost, but each spring amateur gardeners allow their blood pressure to get out of bounds by their fear that 32 degree weather will destroy all their ornamental plantings and vegetable plots.

No Worry for Truck Gardeners

Charles Glover, Blue Island, assistant Cook county farm adviser, said most of the truck gardeners in this area are tending early plantings of spinach, peas, onion seed, onion sets, radishes, leaf lettuce, and head lettuce, some of which were seeded as early as March 17, and they are not worried about the occurrence of frost.

Glover pointed out that all these hardy vegetables can withstand frost and, in fact, put on better growth during periods of cool weather than during abnormally warm spring weather. He also said that in past years he has seen March plantings of head lettuce withstand April temperatures of 25 degrees which not only frosted, but froze, the topsoil. He added that a heavy frost might damage elm and maple leaves, but these trees then would produce supplementary leaf buds which would result in full leaf growth later in the spring.

Withstand Light Frosts

W. C. Blaesing, chief horticulturist of the Chicago park district, backed Glover's reassurances, saying that none of the common flowers and shrubs would be damaged by light frosts. The belief that shrubs are ruined if frosted while in flower is erroneous, Blaesing said. He said the star magnolias, forsythia, lilacs, and ornamental crab, and hawthorn trees all can withstand frosts at this time of the year. Hardy flowers, such as daffodils, tulips, narcissi, scillas, and hyacinths, also would survive light frosts.

Blaesing's only warning to gardeners concerned roses, delphiniums, and strawberries. The mulching material should not be removed from the strawberries and if mounded soil has been removed from roses they may need covering with three or four thicknesses of newspaper in case a frost is forecast. Delphiniums also have grown several inches and should be protected by bushel baskets or cardboard boxes if the weather bureau forecasts a definite frost.

Not in Immediate Danger

Blaesing said apple, cherry, and pear trees in open locations have not advanced far enough to be in immediate danger from frost. A few pear, apricot, and cherry trees near buildings have come into bloom as a result of receiving reflected heat, and these advanced specimens would be damaged by a frost.

O. T. Lay, in charge of the Chicago weather bureau, said that there is a possibility of frost this week, but no definite forecast for it, altho the weather will be cool.

WAVE Seaman 1st Class Harriet Joan Stevens, 20, of 1200 Richmond lane, Wilmette, was killed at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Saturday while observing field carrier landing practice. The navy department said she was struck by the wing of a fighter plane which dipped and veered in her direction in West Prospect field.

Miss Stevens was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perley E. Stevens of the Wilmette address. Her father is a structural engineer for the Public Utilities and Service corporation. She was a graduate of New Trier High school and had attended the Northwestern university school of speech one year when she enlisted in the WAVES on Sept. 21, 1944.

Miss Stevens also is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Ruth Peters of Beverly Hills, Cal., and Mrs. Charles Eckels of East Brewster, Mass.

Victoria Kin's Castle Seized by 2d Armored

BY HUGH SCHUCK

WITH U. S. 2D ARMORED DIVISION, March 30 [Delayed]—Brig. Gen. Isaac D. White's 2d [Hell on Wheels] armored division has captured the 200 year old castle of Prince Engelbert Arenberg, a 100 room mansion in the center of a 16,000 acre estate.

Arenberg and his wife, great granddaughter of Queen Victoria of England, were living with relatives and their servants in only one wing of the mansion.

The castle, surrounded by a moat, was in a statue dotted park. It was reached over a sculptured bridge leading to a tremendous courtyard. The building formed a huge "U," with stables at one end and a ballroom at the other.

The prince was standing in the courtyard watching, with a worried frown, the jeeps and other American vehicles spurting gravel in his driveway. But he managed to be extremely polite in answering questions in fairly good English.

He Says He Is No Nazi

He said he had never been a Nazi [there was an autographed photo of Joachim von Ribbentrop, the German foreign minister, in his living room] and hadn't been in the German army because he was part Belgian. He said war had made things pretty difficult—for example he had only 30 riding horses left in his stables and most of his castle was filled with books and archives from near-by cities.

The prince said he had met Marshal Hermann Goering once. That was when he got married in 1939. Because of his mixed blood, and because his fiancee, daughter of the duke and duchess of Schleswig-Holstein, was part English, he had been introduced to Goering by the British ambassador, the late Neville Henderson, and Goering had arranged the necessary papers for them. He added that his servants had reported that Goering was now dead.

Cousin Bombed Out

Living with the prince was a cousin, the duke of Croy, whose daughter, Nancy, is the wife of Richard Metz of New York City. The duke said that his home in a nearby town had been destroyed by a bomb 10 days ago. His daughter left Germany in 1940 to marry in America, he added.

Prince Arenberg took us into his beautifully furnished quarters to meet his wife, Princess Valerie Marie. She was taking a nap in a bombproof cellar and when she arrived she explained that she had had little sleep the last three nights, worrying about what might happen.

GAIN ON WHOLE FRONT AS JAPS FIGHT HARDER

U. S. Planes Use 2 Captured Fields

GUAM, April 3 [Tuesday]—(AP)—The new 10th army's 24th corps cut the vital island of Okinawa in two yesterday by reaching the village of Tobara on the east coast almost 10 days ahead of schedule.

At Tobara, the Yanks under Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge were on the shores of Katsuren bay, immediately north of the extensive fleet anchorage at Nakagusuku bay, a major objective of the invasion launched Sunday.

Yesterday's swift drive by the 24th covered two and a half miles across the eight mile wide waist of Okinawa.

Entire Line Gains

The entire line of doughboys and marines showed gains averaging several thousand yards against scattered resistance—which front line reports said included uniformed Japanese women.

In the extreme north of the American line, Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's 3d marine corps pushed forward to the north and east to cut off Zampa cape, which juts out prominently at the tip of the seven and one-half mile long invasion beach.

The southern extremity of the beachhead is at the narrowest part of south-central Okinawa. Nakagusuku bay, directly opposite, was a favorite maneuvering ground of the Japanese fleet. It is a rectangular bay about six miles deep and 14 wide.

Japs Fight in Center

The south end of the line cuts around the towns of Kue and Chatan. The center now runs to the east coast thru gullies and hill masses. At the north is a 300 foot dome-like hill. Whether the marines seized this or by-passed it was not established.

While many units walked ahead with amazingly little opposition, troops in the center of the island encountered rugged terrain and increased enemy activity. This was taken as an indication that the Japanese were holed up in caves and commanding any high ground they could hold.

There still was no disposition to change the original estimate that the Japanese have 60,000 to 100,000 troops on the island. Some officers expressed the belief that the Japanese expected landings on the

Legaspi Falls to M'Arthur in New Landing

MANILA, April 3 [Tuesday]—(AP)—Spearheaded by Brig. Gen. Hanford MacNider's 158th regimental combat team, American doughboys invaded the important harbor of Legaspi on southeastern Luzon Sunday, following a spectacular gun duel between destroyers and Japanese artillery.

A small force of destroyers, destroyer escorts and gunboats was scheduled to begin firing 20 minutes before the landing—and after heavy aerial bombing. However, a challenge from Japanese artillery precipitated the fireworks an hour ahead of time.

Flashes from guns on hills back of the beach, which the Japanese had labeled "Little Bataan," signaled the opening.

Seize Air Fields.

The enemy fired 50 rounds, probably from 3 to 5 inch guns. No ships were hit, but shells fell on each side of the command ship of MacNider and Naval Capt. H. F. McGee of New Orleans, 7th amphibious force commander. The guns were silenced after planes joined in the bombardment with bombs.

The doughboys, from the veteran 6th army, quickly secured the city of Legaspi, population 45,000, and near-by air fields, Gen. MacArthur announced in today's bulletin.

American losses were light. The enemy's extensive defense system was all but wiped out in 10 days of concentrated aerial bombing, capped by warship bombardment.

Surround Japs in South

The move enveloped enemy forces in southern Luzon.

The 14th corps, already driving east and southeast, now completes the encirclement by attacking northwest along the Bicol peninsula with this new column.

In northern Luzon, the 1st corps "bloodily repulsed" two Japanese counter-attacks near Balete pass as the enemy bitterly resisted the drive toward Baguio, Philippines summer capital.

Elsewhere, the 40th infantry division on Negros and the American on Cebu are continuing their exploitation, MacArthur's bulletin said.

Soldiers of the 40th division pushing ahead on Negros Island neared Talisay town and its air field. The American division on Cebu Island gained five miles along the east coastal road to take the town of Consolacion.

FOE'S ATTACKS TO BREAK RUHR TRAP CRUSHED

3d and 9th Armies Advance on Berlin

PARIS, April 3 [Tuesday]—(AP)—Lt. Gen. Hodges' United States 1st army troops again crushed German attempts yesterday to break out of the Ruhr basin, where 110,000 Nazis are trapped. The breakout attempts and counter-attacks were smashed in the Winterberg and Warburg areas.

British and Canadian forces to the north smashed 15 miles inside Holland and sped within 68 miles of the German North sea coast, threatening to seal off another huge enemy group in the Netherlands and split them in half by a thrust to the Zuider zee [Ijssel meer].

Thousands of Germans were reported fleeing from Holland in an effort to avoid the double noose that the British and Canadians were fashioning.

9th and 3d Moving East

In the race toward Berlin, Lt. Gen. Simpson's United States 9th army columns, striking far beyond the Ruhr, were nearing or might already have reached the Weser river near the Pied Piper town of Hameln [Hamelin] 155 miles from Berlin.

Forward elements of the 9th army were moving under a security blackout in the attack toward Berlin. Along the center of the western front Lt. Gen. Patton's United States 3d army reached the Werra river on a broad front and crossed that stream near Eisenach, 155 miles southwest of Berlin and 90 miles from Leipzig.

The 3d army now was more than half way across the waist of Germany, racing toward the Czechoslovakian frontier about 90 miles away, in an effort to split the reich and prevent German troops from retreating into the Bavarian Alps. Other 3d army units made a new crossing of the Fulda river in this eastward sweep.

Widen Karlsruhe Bridgehead

Lt. Gen. Patch's American 7th army fanned out in sizable advances to the north, east, and west, and the adjacent French 1st army at the southern end of the front captured 60 localities in 48 hours, took many prisoners, and widened its bridgehead across the Rhine near Karlsruhe to 25 miles.

There still was no indication of the location and role of the new American 15th army which was disclosed two days ago to be in action. It is believed it might be engaged in a holding operation.

Lifting a five day security blackout on the British 2d and Canadian 1st armies, the allies disclosed last night that the Canadians, attacking in the area between Emmerich and Nijmegen on both sides of the Dutch Rhine, had pushed forward and reached the Enschede-Zutphen canal.

15 Miles from Zuider Zee

The canal is only 15 miles from the Zuider zee. Once the allies reach that coast they will have bisected all enemy forces in Holland.

Canadian armored units were advancing in northeast Holland at an announced rate of 15 miles a day against ragged and disorganized resistance. North of the Rhine Canadian troops which pushed thru the heavily wooded Hoch Elten were advancing westward toward Arnhem. Terborg, 20 miles southeast of Arnhem, was the deepest point of advance correspondents were permitted to identify.

Endless streams of supplies and reenforcements were moving up to support the Canadian movement. The Germans were blowing the bridges over canals as they reeled back.

British Advance 25 Miles

On the right flank of the Canadians the British, advancing 25 miles thru shattered towns and forests, captured Enschede in Holland, occupied the German communications hub of Rheine and plunged close to Osnabrueck, big industrial city 65 miles from Bremen.

In 10 days the British had taken

Gen. Rose Killed; Led 100 Mile Dash

Washington, D. C., April 2 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Maurice Rose, whose division led an epic drive into Germany last week, has been killed in action, the war department announced today.

Maj. Gen. Maurice Rose

Without giving time or circumstances, the department said the commander of the 3d armored division, a unit of Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army, died "while leading his division in spearheading the advance of United States troops in Germany."

100 Miles in a Day

His was the division that led the way into the heart of the Nazi realm with a drive of a hundred miles between dawn and dusk. A war correspondent who went along said the dash was made without flank support and called it possibly the fastest in combat history.

Rose was the 11th American general officer killed in action in this war. Eight others have died in airplane crashes and 15 from natural causes. Eight are missing and 19 are prisoners of war.

FEAT TOLD BY THOMPSON

Born in Middletown, Conn., Nov. 26, 1899, Maj. Gen. Maurice Rose at 45 was an army veteran, a man who rose from the ranks as a private in the Colorado national guard to head the famous 3d armored [Spearhead] division across the Roer and Rhine rivers and deep into the soil of Germany.

Only a few days ago a dispatch from John Thompson, Chicago Tribune correspondent with the United States 1st army, told how Rose, out ahead of his supporting troops to watch his advance elements cross the Dill river, had a brush with death when his little party ran into a party of German soldiers.

"Always Out in Front"

Gen. Rose grabbed a tommy gun and was first out of his peep as the driver stopped. The tommy gun jammed and the general opened up with his pistol. Final score, 30 Germans routed, 12 captured, one wounded.

In that story, say the men he led, was the secret of Gen. Rose's remarkable record as a leader of men. A strict disciplinarian, he was "always out in front, taking it" right along with his soldiers in any tough action.

20,000 captives and rolled more than 100 miles beyond the Rhine. The deepest points announced as reached by British armor, infantry and airborne troops were Lengerich, nine miles southwest of Osnabrueck, and Ibbenburen, 11 miles west of Osnabrueck.

The British were beyond these points but security prevents revealing all the areas reached.

Marshal Montgomery's British troops entered Muenster, Westphalian capital, along with United States forces.

The greatest fear of the Coldstream and Scots guards and American 17th air borne infantrymen who entered Muenster was that their weariness would prompt the high command to pull them out of the line, giving the prize to fresher units.

Units so tired they were groggy after a week of constant advancing found new energy for the drive into the great cathedral city. Reaching Muenster, they had completed a brilliant, 50 mile thrust, including numberless small but bitter battles. American infantrymen rode the tanks and fought beside them in the long struggle up the road from Wesel.

Next to the British, Lt. Gen. Simpson's 9th army tanks were striking along a great military highway toward the Weser river, their cocky crews predicting they would be in Berlin in less than a week.

No Organized Defenses.

The 2d armored division drove thru the Teutoburger forest mountain pass two miles south of Bielefeld on the autobahn leading to Berlin. Farther south tanks and infantry elements fought in other Teutoburger wald mountain passes.

More than 7,500 prisoners have been taken by the 2d armored's combat teams in three days. There has been nothing met since the drive began across the Dortmund-Ems canal which could be described as an organized defense.

Along the Ruhr's northern rim the 79th and 35th infantry divisions captured the industrial city of Recklinghausen, cleared the Diehaard forest south of Haltern and pushed east and captured Suderwich and Berhagen.

83d Mopping Up Hamm

Hamm, greatest rail center in Europe, was being mopped up by Maj. Gen. Robert Macon's 83d infantry division.

The American 9th and 1st armies were tightening their stranglehold on Field Marshal Von Model's army group B, consisting of the 5th German panzer army—the last tank army the enemy has in the west—and the 15th army and portions of the battered 1st parachute army.

At the eastern side of the Ruhr pocket the Germans made their first coördinated attempt to break out of the trap, and were smashed back by troops of Hodges' 1st army.

The attempt to break out was made in the area of Winterberg, about midway between Paderborn and Siegen. Doughboys still were holding firm last night, front reports said.

Capture 350,000 in March.

Simultaneously, other German forces, apparently intent on cracking the 30 to 40 mile wide steel ring around the trapped Ruhr army group, began counter-attacking Hodges' lines in the Warburg area southeast of Paderborn, but these, too, were hurled back.

Allied headquarters said the annihilation of the Ruhr forces will take time but will not preclude the advance of allied armored columns farther into Germany.

A dispatch from Gen. Bradley's 12th army group headquarters said a total of 350,000 Germans had been captured in March, 150,000 of them by the 3d army and 90,000 by the 1st army.

155 Miles from Berlin.

The 6th armored division was less than 155 miles southwest of Berlin and 198 miles from the Russian front line. The parallel 11th armored division, which also reached the Werra river to the south, was likewise 180 miles inside Germany—the deepest penetration into the reich.

The 3d army had reached the edge of the Thuringian forest, an area where the Germans are said to have built a great series of underground war plants and factories.

Patton's 4th armored division pushed six miles along the Frankfurt-Berlin autobahn [motor highway], crossing the Werra at one point and reaching within three miles west of Eisenach.

His 11th armored division bypassed Fulda in a 25 mile thrust that carried it 20 miles due east of the town and 92 miles from the Czech border. Fulda was entered by the 26th infantry division moving up in the wake of the armor.

Patch Gains on Main

Infantrymen of the 80th division battled into the outskirts of Kassel after a five mile advance. Others of the same division, with units of the 6th armored, crossed the Fulda river east of Fritzlar and plunged eight miles beyond to Spangenberg, a road hub 15 miles southeast of Kassel.

Farther south, Lt. Gen. Patch's 7th army gained control of more than 14 miles of the River Main southeast of Wuerzburg and broke out of the Odenwald onto the Wuerzburg-Heilbronn plain.

Patch's vanguards were meeting stiffening opposition at Kitzingen and Marktbreit, 10 and 12 miles, respectively, southeast of Wuerzburg. These points are 76 air line miles east of the Rhine and 94 miles west of the Czechoslovakian border.

The Yanks had secured crossings of the River Main south of Wuerzburg and were pushing armor across the stream to drive on eastward while infantrymen were poised for an assault on Wuerzberg itself.

Driving Down Neckar River.

Third division infantry cleared Rothenbuch, Lichtenau, and Erlenfurth, midway between Aschaffenburg and Lohr. Lohr is 18 miles east of Aschaffenburg on a winding road. Tanks of the 14th armored division, rumbling ahead of the doughboys, were reported approaching Lohr.

Other forces driving down the Neckar river were threatening Heilbronn. The 63d infantry division, in the vicinity of Mosbach, was pushing eastward 13 miles north of Heilbronn while a task force from the 10th armored division was nearing Bad Wimpen, five miles above Heilbronn.

7th Ordered to Wipe Out City Held by Nazi Fanatics

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE U. S. 45TH INFANTRY DIVISION IN ASCHAFFENBURG, Germany, April 2—Annihilation of the fanatical German garrison of Aschaffenburg and the heavily fortified city has been ordered by Lt. Gen. Patch's 7th army after five days of bitter fighting for the town.

The order was issued as an example to all Germans, and the job was assigned to the Thunderbird infantry of the 45th division and Thunderbolt pilots of the 1st tactical air force.

Aschaffenburg, a city with a normal population of 40,000 on the high right bank of the Main river 20 miles northeast of Darmstadt, has been beaten almost flat by our shells and bombs. Yet every rubble filled street and the crumbling remains of every house are battlefields. Civilians have joined in the frenzied, desperate, and—for all strategic considerations—purposeless defense of a town which last week the 3d army blithely had reported captured.

Blonde Girls Throw Grenades

Teen-aged boys and girls are in the ranks. Several blonde maidens of not more than 15 have been observed throwing grenades at the Americans. One of these girls who was captured had been wounded, and her left leg had to be amputated.

There were at least 5,000 enemy troops in the town and manning the outer defenses. It was reported that a Maj. Lambert five days ago took over the city's defenses after hanging his predecessor for wishing to give up. Maj. Lambert, it is understood, reorganized the garrison, brought in old men, women, and children, armed them, and ordered them to fight to the death. He emptied five military hospitals around the city of all convalescents and armed them, too.

Dead Piled Everywhere

After the 45th had broken thru the pillbox and bunker defense line, known as "Little Siegfried," the grim battle for the town itself began. As we shoved in some tanks the Germans loosed their bazookas, some manned by 17 year old civilians.

Street to street and house to house, the struggle went on. The dead were everywhere, piled on doorsteps, in cellars, and in bomb craters. Civilians who tried to leave the city were shot. Captured civilians will be tried by military courts as franc-tireurs.

More than 1,000 prisoners had been captured up to Sunday midnight, and uncounted numbers of Nazis slain.

A City of Death

This is the "city of death" to Maj. Gen. Robert T. Frederick's veteran 45th division. The division's casualties have been high in these five days. One battalion alone has lost 11 platoon leaders.

Tonight Aschaffenburg is being outflanked, and the 45th is edging toward the center of the town.

The 4th armored division of Lt. Gen. Patton's army was the unit which had announced Aschaffenburg as in our hands. To the 45th, the report was the most tragic exaggeration of the war.

TRIBUNE WRITER TELLS OF FIGHT IN RUHR POCKET

BY JOHN THOMPSON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

U. S. 1ST ARMY ADVANCE HDQ., Germany, April 2—In what could best be described as a "fluid situation" German SS [elite guard] troops today were trying from the outside to hack open an escape corridor while elements of the German 15th infantry and 5th panzer [armored] armies were attacking from the inside in an effort to break out of the great Ruhr pocket forged by the United States 1st and 9th armies.

The attack was centered on the town of Bonenburg, about 10 miles southeast of Paderborn. Some German tanks had broken thru the town, attacking south from a large forest.

Guns and tanks of the 9th armored division reported knocking out three Tiger tanks from a force of nine which attacked south from woods with SS infantry. Farther to the southwest along another road four tanks and more SS also fought toward the town.

Some tanks apparently succeeded in crashing thru our lines inside the town but at last reports armored doughboys were engaged in house to house fighting with the SS troops. Some of the other German tanks had been contained and dispersed by our artillery.

Expect Renewed Attacks

But the attacks were expected to be renewed. North of Bonenburg a force of 2,500 infantry was reported today and apparently the attacking columns came from this group, which was working south along a railroad on the edge of the forest.

It is believed that these SS troops came from an armored force training center at Paderborn that had supplied other hastily assembled training units which were first engaged by the 3d armored division. Their intention seems to have been to establish a line from which attacks could be launched west to relieve beleaguered Germans inside the pocket created by Lt. Gen. Hodges' loop around the back of the Ruhr valley, joined with the 2d armored of Lt. Gen. Simpson's 9th army.

Other SS soldiers were fighting from dug in positions to the east of Warburg. At the moment they represent a defensive threat only.

However, the Germans in their desperation have been able to assemble some Tiger and King Tiger tanks and a Tiger with a bigger gun.

Tanks Are Formidable

All of these tanks are thought to have been rushed south from the German Fort Knox near Paderborn. These huge Tiger tanks, while not as mobile as the Germans' excellent Panther, are formidable obstacles with their powerful high velocity guns and heavy armor plate. However, the Tiger with a bigger gun has a restricted traverse and to shift position of the gun the entire tank must be turned.

From inside the pocket, at least as far as this army is concerned, the German break-out drives have been concentrated in the vicinity of Siegen and Winterburg, which is half way between Siegen and Paderborn.

Attacking with tanks, panzer grenadiers and volks grenadiers [home guards], the Germans thrust again and again at the Winterburg area today, renewing attacks which had begun yesterday. But the veteran 9th infantry was constantly athwart their path and reported that so far all German attacks had been contained altho the "situation is fluid."

This term means that small enemy units have been able to work into our lines.

It is not difficult for any German forces to infiltrate at certain points. But is is extremely difficult for them to enlarge these small penetrations in any way which would enable larger forces to follow thru.

BLACK HORSE TROOP DRIVES TO RESCUE OF 7,000 PRISONERS

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY, April 2 (AP)—Seventh army troops teamed up with men from the 3d army today to free 7,000 allied soldiers—half of them Americans—from a German camp east of Bad Orb and drove farther east with renewed vigor on reports that 14,000 more allied captives were being held by the Nazis in a near-by wooded area.

Forces of the 106th cavalry [formerly the Chicago Black Horse troop] and another cavalry group led the rescue drive to Bad Orb. The 4th infantry division reported it had captured another German general, but his identity was not disclosed.

[Another dispatch from the 7th army front said the 12th armored division had captured Maj. Gen. Count Oreola, commander of the German 13th corps. He was captured while searching for a lost German regiment near Hardheim. He was riding in an American jeep captured in the Ardennes last December.]

Freed from Four Camps

LONDON, April 2 [Reuters]—Lt. Gen. Patton's forces freed the prisoners of Stalags 9-A, 9-B, 12-A, and 12-B on March 26 and 27, the French radio said tonight. "In two of these camps there were about 15,000 men, of whom one-fifth are already on the way back to France. The other two Stalags held about 3,000 prisoners, most of whom are already on the way back," the radio added.

4 DAY V-BOMB LULL STIRS HOPE OF TERROR END

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 2—No V-2 rockets, flying bombs or explosives from piloted German aircraft have fallen on Britain since the start of the Easter holiday, four days ago, it was disclosed tonight.

Observers said it was too early for London to assume its ordeal of bombs has ended following increased attacks in the early part of last week. The reduction in attacks was attributed to the allied advance across north Germany which was causing the Nazis to evacuate V-bomb coastal areas of northern Holland. Recent heavy attacks were attributed to the Germans liquidation of stocks of rockets and flying bombs on hand before fleeing.

Dislocation of transport facilities feeding V-bombs to firing bases was seen as another reason for the interruption in V-1 and V-2 raids which have been nearly continuous since last mid-June.

Cautious observers, however, warned the capital of the possibility of air launched flying bombs sneaked near the English coast by German night flyers, and use of pilotless obsolete bombers filled with high explosives and directed by radio, it was said.

STICK TO FARMS IN FAMINE PERIL, GERMANS TOLD

PARIS, April 2 (AP)—Germany is threatened with famine, allied supreme headquarters declared tonight in a broadcast urging all farmers in western Germany to remain on their farms at all costs in order to prevent a catastrophe.

Gen. Eisenhower ordered the instructions broadcast, warning the Germans there is "nothing either you or the allies can do that will prevent a catastrophe in Germany this year."

"Do everything in your power whatever the difficulties to continue the necessary farm work," the warning said. "Use to the full the evacuees from the danger areas.

"Refuse at all costs to leave your farm work for service in the volkssturm. If you have been conscripted already, escape at once and return to work on the land. Resist, if necessary by force, attempts by the party to remove food stocks from the district where you live."

First Weather Forecast of War Given to Britain

LONDON, April 2 [Reuters]—British radio listeners had their first weather forecast of the war today when in a news broadcast they heard a warning for market gardeners that a ground frost was expected. The last weather forecast was broadcast on Aug. 31, 1939.

CHICAGO MAN, EX-JAP CAPTIVE, RETURNS TO U. S.

Pvt. Thomas J. DiMarco, 33, of Chicago, an army engineer who was a prisoner of the Japanese at Manila for three years, has been returned to the United States and is now in Letterman General hospital, San Francisco, Cal., the army reported yesterday. He is a brother of Mrs. Josephine Padula, 4249 Fillmore st.

Pvt. T. J. DeMarco.

Mrs. Padula said her brother expects to be transferred soon to the army hospital at Battle Creek, Mich. After the starvation diet in Jap prison camps, Pvt. DiMarco's weight has jumped from 90 to 120 pounds.

A painter and decorator, he enlisted in May, 1940, and went overseas in October, 1941. He spent most of his imprisonment in Bilibid and was hospitalized most of the time.

Negro Fighter Group Bags 12 Nazis in Day

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., Mediterranean, April 2 [Reuters]—Mustang pilots of a Negro fighter group commanded by Capt. Walter M. Downds, New Orleans, La., destroyed 12 German aircraft over Austria yesterday. The action took place over Wels, southwest of Linz.

3 MEN OF NOTE SLAIN IN BERLIN, HUNT INDICATES

LONDON, April 2 (AP)—The German radio said tonight an intense manhunt was on for the killers of three unnamed but apparently prominent persons who were shot to death in one of Berlin's most fashionable and closely guarded suburbs.

The Nazi broadcast said a reward of 100,000 marks [$10,000 at the United States military exchange rate] was offered for aid in capturing the killers, who may have been wearing "some sort of uniform."

The radio said the slayings occurred about 3 p. m., March 31, on a motor road near the Gruenewald, a section in which Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels and other high Nazis have homes. The area is served by the Anvus motor road whose entrances are guarded and from which pedestrians are barred.

The announcement said the killers stopped a six seated limousine with a trailer, traveling in the direction of Berlin, and killed the driver and two passengers.

Claim Mayors' Assassination.

The Nazis in a DNB broadcast claimed that the assassins of the mayors of occupied Aachen and Meschede were members of the "Werewolf" underground terrorist organization.

A radio describing itself as an underground Werewolf station took the air with claims that Werewolves already had murdered some American army officers, including three of high rank.

DNB's official report said "Werewolves will not give in to enemy terror but prefer to settle accounts eye for eye."

Allies Promise Swift Justice

An allied reply, broadcast over the Luxembourg radio, said: "Our answer to the Werewolves is very simple. Any one who follows such instructions will be captured, tried, judged, and shot."

The Moscow radio commented: "The wolf hunt is on—good hunting."

Berlin officially disclaimed connection with the Werewolf organization, but Nazi propaganda made it plain that the group was the chosen medium for the Heinrich Himmler enunciated "knife in the dark" scheme to fight occupation forces.

The "Werewolf" radio threatened assassination of Bernard Baruch "if he comes to Germany."

"If Jew Baruch comes to Germany we'll hunt him down as an insult to the German land," the radio's spokesman shouted.

ROLL TOO FAST TO ROUND UP NAZIS IN RUHR

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY, Germany, April [Delayed]—Tanks and motorized infantry were rolling too fast to round up the masses of Germans left surrounded in the Ruhr industrial basin by the juncture today of the 2d armored division of the 9th army and elements of the 1st army.

The roads, which are armored wedges, are jammed with captive wehrmacht soldiers who threw away their weapons and helmets. They are marching to the west unguarded, foraging off the country as they go.

The civilian population was cheering the surrendered groups trudging past, revealing that the German people hope for peace since the Nazi war aims have been shattered.

Thousands of French soldiers captured when France collapsed in 1940 are slogging homeward after five years of captivity, with the tricolor at the head of every column, and chanting the Marseillaise.

DEVERS FACING LIKELY SCENE OF PAY-OFF BATTLE

Allies Funnel Nazis Toward Bavaria

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

HDQ. 6TH ARMY GROUP, April 3 [Tuesday]—There are mounting indications that the last battles of the western front could be fought in the German territory ahead of Gen. Jacob L. Devers' 6th army group comprising the American 7th and French 1st armies.

While the over-all picture is painted as one of crumbling enemy resistance in the west, there are discordant details, such as the fierce defensive battle the Germans are waging against the 7th army's 45th division in Aschaffenburg, Bavaria. The Germans also are fighting hard to halt other 7th army units, particularly as these units approach towns of any size and strategic location.

Forced Into Funnel

The whole allied maneuver in the west is tending to force the Germans into a funnel southward. That means toward Bavaria and perhaps ultimately the Black Forest. It has long been speculated as to whether that wooded, mountainous area east of Alsace and below Strasbourg might be the last stand of the Nazi hierarchy.

Heinrich Himmler, deputy fuehrer of Germany, was in the Black Forest for a time while directing the battle of the Colmar pocket, and also has been reported there more recently. There is a rumor that Field Marshal von Rundstedt, after being deposed as commander in the west, was sent to the Black Forest to supervise its defenses.

At present, eight German divisions are identified as opposing the 7th army. They are the 17th SS [elite] panzer grenadier and seven infantry divisions. They are far from full strength divisions. If they were, the infantry would run 10,000 men each, and the panzer grenadier 11,000. Actually, it is estimated there now are not more than 1,000 combat effectives, including the volksturm [very young and over-middle aged men, and partially infirm men] in each division. And on the east bank of the Rhine, from Basel to Karlsruhe, facing the French, is a total of about 20,000 Germans.

Figures Deceptive

These figures, indicating not too great a force against the 6th army group, are, however, deceptive. For when we near cities of importance, such as Stuttgart and Nuernburg, and Munich, the enemy is prepared to fling in large numbers of troops, from camps and garrisons around those cities.

These troops will be considerably more than the count in his mobile field divisions, and some token of the battles they could put up may be gathered from the events at Aschaffenburg.

BYRNES RESIGNS AS MOBILIZER; VINSON GETS JOB

Hear He Resents Being Curfew 'Goat'

BY ROBERT YOUNG
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 2—James F. Byrnes resigned today as director of war mobilization and reconversion, and President Roosevelt nominated as his successor Fred M. Vinson, former economic stabilizer, who took office as federal loan administrator less than four weeks ago.

In his letter of resignation to the President, dated March 24, Byrnes said he believed the day of victory in Europe "is not far distant." He reminded Mr. Roosevelt that last June and again in November he had sought to resign but had agreed to remain until the elimination of Germany from the war.

Suspect Other Reasons

Capitol Hill sources said, however, that Byrnes' resignation reflected personal reasons more compelling than the approaching surrender of Germany. It is known that Byrnes, former senator and Supreme court justice, has not been on friendly terms with Mr. Roosevelt, nor with Harry Hopkins and Samuel I. Rosenman, special Presidential advisers. It was also reported reliably that Byrnes has been irritated by his forced role of scapegoat for public wrath over such unpopular New Deal measures as the night life curfew and race track ban.

The rift between the President and the man widely known as the "Assistant President" dates back to the Democratic convention in Chicago last July. Byrnes cooled toward his chief because he felt Mr. Roosevelt had broken a promise to make him his fourth term running mate.

Sidetracked Before

Byrnes had been sidetracked for Wallace in 1940. Last summer he again let it be known he was in the running and received a letter of indorsement for the vice presidential candidacy from Mr. Roosevelt. Not until he reached the convention did Byrnes discover he had been discarded because he was opposed by Sidney Hillman, CIO leader and fourth term strategist.

At the same time, Byrnes learned that his letter of indorsement had been written by the President after Sen. Truman [D., Mo.] already had been selected as the fourth term running mate.

In the last few months Byrnes has won the reputation of being the administration strong man by a succession of directives designed to crack down on the home front.

Ban Traced to Krug

It is known that some of the directives were promulgated against Byrnes' judgment at the insistence of New Dealers. These included the race track and curfew edicts and the light curtailment [brownout] order, which have been termed of little practical value, but which the administration regarded as necessary to keep the public attention on the war.

The race track ban is said to have been "sold" to Byrnes by Chairman Krug of the war production board after Krug was caught in a traffic jam of homeward bound race track fans on the west coast last winter. The influence of Krug and Interior Secretary Ickes also was seen in the nightlife curfew and electric light restrictions.

Byrnes, in his letter of resignation, said he believed that the person who is to direct the reconversion program should take office immediately.

"I think V-E [victory in Europe] day is not far distant," he wrote. "My knowledge of the nature of the work now confronting the office causes me to conclude that I should not remain longer. The office has already embarked upon the development of a program of reconversion. I have organized committees composed of representatives of the various agencies which have been at work for some time developing the program."

He asked that his resignation become effective today, explaining he chose that date so he could be in office until he had filed a report with the President and congress on April 1—as required by law.

F. D. R. Not Surprised

Mr. Roosevelt, in his reply, dated March 31 and beginning "Dear Jimmie," said he had read Byrnes' letter "without surprise, but nevertheless with a sense of heartfelt regret." The President said he was familiar with Byrnes' desire to retire from public life and had no alternative but to accept the resignation. He asked Byrnes, to make his resignation effective the date his successor qualified, but Byrnes ignored this request.

"It is not pleasant to contemplate the severance of a relationship which has been as delightful to me personally as it has been of advantage to the national interest, which you have served with such singular devotion and fidelity," the President wrote.

"I shall always remember the many burdens which you have taken from my shoulders. I know that with characteristic vision you have already glimpsed the essential problems of reconversion. Altho you go, I shall like to think that at any time in the future I can avail myself of your wisdom, knowledge, and understanding."

Will Wait for Vinson.

Byrnes agreed to stay in Washington until Vinson takes office and is familiar with details of his new post. Byrnes' office emphasized that he has no plans for the future other than to return to his home in Spartanburg, S. C., for a rest. A spokesman said Byrnes has been working seven days a week and has been away from Washington only twice in the last two years, one of the trips being to the Yalta conference in February. It is expected, however, that Byrnes will reënter private law practice.

Approval Expected.

In the senate, where Vinson's nomination as Byrnes' successor was sent, many senators expressed regret over Byrnes' resignation and praised his work. Senators predicted that Vinson's nomination would be confirmed without opposition.

While some senators paid tribute to Byrnes, Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.] gibed at him for advocating a man power control bill at a time when he was quitting his own war job.

"Mr. Byrnes is going back to civil life," he told the senate, "and it's a poor time to freeze other people to their war jobs."

Confusion Evident

The White House said the President has given no indication as to who will succeed Vinson as federal loan administrator. Some sources asserted Byrnes' resignation caught the President unprepared, and he was forced to shift Vinson from the loan agency job with which Vinson had barely become acquainted. This was regarded in congress as evidence of confusion within the administration.

From 1911 to 1925, Byrnes served in the house. He was a senator from 1931 to 1941, when he was appointed a Supreme court justice. He left the bench in October, 1942, to head the newly created office of economic stabilization and became war mobilization director in May, 1943.

He sank almost at once. Naval and coast guard vessels made an extensive search for the body where the mishap occurred, off Diversey pkwy. The accident was attributed to the violent lurching the ship in a 40 mile an hour wind. Mead is survived by his mother, Mrs. Martha Mead.

BRITISH SPEED PEACE CARGO TO WEST AFRICA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 2—A crew of Liverpool dock workers yesterday loaded a ship as swiftly as they had stowed planes for the battle fronts on similar craft earlier in the war, the Daily Express said today—but the cargo they hustled aboard was rubber tires, cotton goods, asbestos building sheets, and hardware and agricultural and mining machinery for West Africa.

The Express also reported another move by Britain in its all-out preparations to recapture its export trade. It said the government has sanctioned the reinstatement of regular passenger-cargo ship sailings to South Africa.

Large orders for British railway equipment, motor vehicles, electric power plants, and mill machinery for Brazilian, Argentine, and Chilean markets await only the release of factory space for peace production, it added.

PARIS GOES WILD AS REBORN ARMY DISPLAYS MIGHT

BY DAVID DARRAH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 2—A wildly patriotic Paris, packed along miles of boulevard sidewalks, today acclaimed France's newly constituted army in martial ceremonies announced as a concrete demonstration that the nation again has taken her place in international life.

"The days of tears are past. The days of glory have returned," Gen. Charles de Gaulle told the Parisians, who appeared intensely proud during the several hours of ceremonies. "Altho victory is near," De Gaulle declared, "our armies still have blows to strike to conquer definitely, both in Europe and Asia, the enemies of the country and of liberty in order to impose the conditions of a strong, just, and durable peace."

Stern Struggle Ahead

De Gaulle appealed for national unity and abandonment of internal quarrels to confront a hard foreign world. He said the country had a stern struggle ahead and would get only as much as hard work and persistence earned.

There were two moving ceremonies of the kind Parisians love—flags and banners, martial music and marching men—and the whole city seemed to be in the streets all day.

The first ceremony took place in the Place de la Concorde this morning, where De Gaulle presented 150 regimental flags to the newly constructed French units. Of these flags 69 had been hidden from the Germans for three years. The French army was completely dissolved by Hitler in November, 1943.

The Place de la Concorde was massed with elements of numerous French units including those now fighting in Germany.

Flags Presented

The flags, under a guard of honor, were brought from the Hotel des Invalides, seat of the military government of Paris. Lt. Gen. Joseph Pierre Koenig, military governor of Paris, presented the regimental colors to De Gaulle, who in turn presented them to each regimental colonel.

Afterwards the flags were carried down the Paris boulevards in a parade which lasted an hour and a half. In the second ceremony this afternoon Gen. de Gaulle presented the cross of liberation to the city of Paris in honor of its resistance to the Germans and its part in the liberation fight last August.

FRANCE WANTS TO FREE FORMER COLONIES ALONE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 2—France hopes to have the honor of liberating Indo-China alone, War Minister Andre Diethelm said in an interview in "Liberation Soir" today.

Diethelm asserted the nation will have a trained army of 70,000 volunteers and colonial troops ready for the Pacific war as soon as an agreement is reached with the allies. He said conversations now are going on with allied leaders to obtain permission for a French force to take back the far eastern colonies from the Japanese without the aid of United States or British troops.

The war minister also stated that France would have 16 divisions on the European front before the end of the year. He said that the first of the eight divisions which President Roosevelt promised to equip will be ready to leave for combat in another month under Gen. Gaston Billotte, while four more divisions will be fully armed by the beginning of July and three more in September.

BOMB GERMAN ESCAPE ROUTES IN NORTH ITALY

ROME, April 2 (AP)—United States 12th air force medium bombers attacked main German escape routes from northern Italy today as tactical planes hammered enemy communications and installations in the Po valley. Meanwhile, it was announced that allied warships have been raking Nazi positions along the French-Italian frontier, including the harbor of San Remo.

The German high command said fighting had broken out on the "forgotten front" in the French-Italian border region, and acknowledged allies seizure of a small foothold on Petit [Little] St. Bernard, a 7,064 foot mountain 15 miles south of the Swiss border. An offensive in this sector would threaten the rear of German forces holding the Po valley in Italy.

MAGDEBURG OIL PLANTS, BERLIN BOMBED BY R.A.F.

LONDON, April 3 [Tuesday]—(AP)—R. A. F. Mosquitos attacked Berlin and Magdeburg during the night, the British announced today, ending Germany's two day and two night respite from an allied aerial offensive that broke all records in March.

Principal target at Magdeburg, which is 70 miles southwest of Berlin, were oil installations feeding the German war machine.

Figures officially announced yesterday showed that allied planes operating from Britain and bases behind the western front smothered Germany with 179,380 tons of explosives last month, nearly two and one-half times the bomb weight the Nazis have hurled on England by plane and V bomb since the war started.

Air Commodore David J. Waghorn of the R. A. F., pilot of the first Liberator to be flown from the United States to Britain, has been killed in a flying accident, it was announced today.

Britain Ends Drafting of Its Subjects in Egypt

JAP FORCES CUT IN TWO AS YANKS CROSS OKINAWA

Meet Heavier Opposition in Its Center

southern end, around the important town of Naha, when the Kerama Islands offshore were taken a few days earlier, and concentrated their defenses there.

Adm. Nimitz said in his bulletin today that American observation planes already were operating off of two of the main captured air fields, Katena and Yontan.

Japanese planes attacked Yank positions Sunday night and five of them were shot down, Nimitz announced.

He said carrier aircraft, heavy guns of the fleet, and field artillery were giving close support to the ground operations. Unloading of supplies was reported progressing satisfactorily.

Tokyo Reports New Landing.

Radio Tokyo said the Yank forces Sunday night landed on Kume Island, 52 miles west of Okinawa. Kume is beyond the Kerama Islands, where Americans seized eight islands prior to the Okinawa invasion. The navy established a seaplane base in the Kerama group.

Thus in two days of this amazingly easy campaign the Yanks scored a major blow by severing the southern part of Okinawa, including the populous capital city of Naha and its adjacent air field, from the extensive fleet anchorages of the north.

Associated Press Correspondent James Lindsley reported the only sign of death he saw on the beachhead was "a diminutive Okinawan horse, its legs sticking grotesquely outward."

Women Fight with Japs.

An indication that the small points of resistance were sometimes fierce was given by AP Correspondent Grant MacDonald. He reported 11 women, dressed in Japanese soldier uniforms, were part of a force attacking an American field artillery position Sunday night. Men and women of the fanatical group who were not killed committed suicide.

Brig. Gen. David H. Blakelock of Washington, D. C., said the immense stores of supplies moving onto the beachhead included food for the Okinawans, sufficient to provide the population with 300 tons daily.

When the 10th army moved artillery onto three islets of the Keise group, a few miles off Naha between the Kerama group and Okinawa, the Japanese showed their fears of that emplacement by shelling the island with 40 rounds of 130 millimeter shells Saturday night.

Landing Field Built

But when the Naha guns turned their aim on a battleship, missing it, Yanks on Keise turned their 150 millimeter guns on Naha and silenced the Japanese quickly. Keise proved its value in another manner when a landing field was built along the beach and Piper Cubs were operating from it Sunday.

The marine provost marshal, Lt. Col. Floyd A. Stephenson of Washington, D. C., said more than 1,200 civilians had been rounded up and there was not a mean one in the lot. They have been under Japanese domination a long time and they are undernourished and beaten down. Many are ill.

Sneak Back for Chow

Refugee centers have been established and the marines are doing the best they can for the people. They are being fed emergency rations and sneak back into the line for second helpings of the chow.

The natives, or "Okies" as they are called by the marines, fled to the hills before the invasion started and today many started coming in voluntarily. They had been advised to leave the cities and air field areas by 3,500,000 pamphlets dropped by American planes before the invasion.

A Japanese bulletin admitted the Americans had landed reinforcements on Okinawa. It claimed "fierce fighting is raging" and that 41 ships of the amphibious force had been sunk.

Adm. Isamu Takeshita, president of the Japanese retired naval officers' club, was quoted by Tokyo radio as saying Okinawa Japanese would inflict "irretrievable losses" on the invaders. "The Americans are learning a great lesson now," he declared. "They are beginning to realize that Japan cannot be defeated."

Woman Shot to Death; Husband Tells of Accident

Mrs. Marie Lissy, 45, of 2526 S. 56th ct., Cicero, was shot to death in the kitchen of her home last night when her husband, Daniel, police said, accidentally discharged one of two shotguns he was cleaning at a table. Lissy, a tea salesman, asserted he was cleaning the guns because he had advertised them for sale. He was held pending an inquest.

Ryukyus Overrun by Japs, Rats, and Poisonous Snakes

The Ryukyu archipelago, now being invaded by American forces as a stepping stone to Japan, is a long chain of islands extending from 80 miles south of Kyushu to a point 73 miles from the northeast coast of Formosa. There are 55 of the islands, having an area of 935 square miles, and a population of 455,000.

The islands are divided into three main groups, of which the northern is called Oshima archipelago, the second, Okinawa archipelago, and the southern Saki Island group.

Two Volcanoes on North

Almost at the extreme north of the chain are two islands with active volcanoes, Nakano and Suwanose, but the remaining members of the group give no volcanic indications.

Altho close to the tropics, bamboo is rare, there is no high grass or tangled undergrowth, and open plains are numerous. An unusual aspect is imparted to the scenery by numerous coral crags. The temperature ranges from a mean of 82 in July to 60 in January.

The fauna include wild boars and deer, rats and bats. The majority of the islands are infested with venomous snakes, called Habu, which attain a length of 6 or 7 feet.

Sting Usually Fatal

Their bite usually causes speedy death, and in the island of Amami-Oshima they claim many victims every year.

Almost every available piece of land in the islands is under cultivation. Crops include sugar cane, sweet potatoes, pineapples, and bananas. Indigo and vermilion lacquer also are produced. Fabrics are made.

Okinawa is the largest island in the archipelago, with a circumference of 268 miles. The capital city, Shuri, site of a picturesque castle, is on Okinawa, as well as Naha, a more modern town, which has an excellent harbor and boasts considerable trade. From Naha, a small railway runs to Yonabaru and a branch line to the fishing village of Ichuma. There the women enjoy equal rights with men, a thing unheard of elsewhere in the orient.

Women's Faces Uncovered

Elsewhere in the archipelago, women of the upper class never appear in public and are not even alluded to in conversation, altho women of the lower classes go about freely with uncovered faces.

The Ryukyu costume resembles that of Japan. The chief staple of diet is the sweet potato, with pork as a luxury. An ancient law, still in force, requires each family to keep four pigs.

Commodore Perry, in his historic voyage to open Japanese ports to western trade, recognized the importance of Naha harbor when he put in there in May, 1853, and made it a rendezvous for all vessels in the expedition. He envisioned the harbor as a connecting link for mail steamers bound for Asiatic ports. Apparently, he even contemplated seizing the entire island of Okinawa for the United States, but the plan was vetoed in Washington.

The secretary of state, in an official dispatch, advised the commodore: "It is considered sounder policy not to seize the island as suggested in your dispatch."

Taken for China

The Ryukyu Islands formerly belonged to China and were known as Luchu. At the end of the 16th century, however, the Luchu king refused Japan assistance against Korea and in 1609 the prince of Satsuma invaded the islands with 3,000 men, took the capital by storm, captured the king and carried him off to Kagoshima. A few years later the king's throne was restored on condition that he acknowledge Japanese suzerainty and pay tribute. The islands, however, continued to pay tribute to China, also.

But in 1879 the Japanese government dethroned the islands' prince, pensioned him, and converted Luchu into a prefecture under the name of Okinawa.

Natives of the islands, a mixture of Chinese and Japanese, are shorter and better proportioned than the Japanese, and have higher foreheads, eyes not so deeply set, faces less flattened, arched and thick eyebrows, better noses, less prominent cheekbones, and much greater hairiness.

The native language is understood neither in China nor Japan, altho many of the natives speak Japanese in addition to their own dialect.

B-29 RAID FIRES AIRCRAFT MOTOR PLANT AT TOKYO

GUAM, April 2 (AP)—American Super Forts based on this and other islands in the Marianas made an explosive and incendiary attack on the big Nakajima aircraft engine plant on the northwestern outskirts of Tokyo today.

Two of the B-29s, from the force of probably 150 that made the raid, were lost to enemy action, it was announced in Washington, D. C., by 20th air force headquarters.

Roaring in at low level before dawn, the sky giants set numerous fires among the buildings of the engine plant. The Tokyo radio said the planes were over the Tokyo-Yokohama metropolitan area for an hour. It was the first assault on Tokyo since March 10.

LANDING CRAFT USED AS GUNBOAT IS SUNK IN PHILIPPINE AREA

Washington, D. C., April 2 (AP)—Loss of the LCI 974 in the Philippine area as a result of enemy action was announced today by the navy. The vessel had been converted into a gunboat and normally carried a crew of 30. The navy gave no indication of the number of casualties but said the next of kin had been informed.

The commander, Lt. [j. g.] Joe Franklin Brown, 33, of Fort Worth, Tex., was wounded but has returned to duty.

Sinking of the vessel brought to 278 the announced number of navy craft sunk, overdue and presumed lost, or destroyed to prevent capture since the start of the war.

Japs Admit Alarm Over Invasion

San Francisco, Cal., April 2 (AP)—The Japanese radio took a grave view of the invasion of Okinawa in a broadcast intended for home consumption today, and predicted it would be a "matter of a short time before the rise or fall of our nation will be decided."

The broadcast summarized the steady progress of American forces since the seizure of Guadalcanal, declaring these preliminary moves always had landings on the Japanese mainland as their final objective.

"However," the report said, "at this time the enemy's advance goes one step further, in which he aims at severance of connections between Japan and China, and this move he hopes to use as another step in a direct landing operation on the mainland. Thus, this move bears a seriousness that has not been seen previously.

Admit Peril to Honshu

"It is a mere 700 kilometers distance between the mainland and the Okinawa Islands. It is about the same distance from Okinawa to Taiwan [Formosa] Island. Once the enemy establishes himself on Okinawa, the greater one-half of the mainland of Honshu and Chosen [Korea] also will come within the flying radius of the enemy B-24s. The attacks by enemy P-51, P-61, and P-38 fighters will be further strengthened and be more effective than the enemy raids from the base at Iwo.

"Not only that, the communications between the mainland and the continent will be menaced by enemy occupied positions."

Tell of Raid Damage

The Super Fortress incendiary raid on Tokyo March 10 was likened by the Japanese radio to the destruction of Rome while Nero fiddled. Tokyo acknowledged that even steel and concrete factories were "gutted" and that thousands of residents were left homeless.

It claimed "a new Tokyo is rising from the ashes" and that most of the factories "have already resumed operations in the basements." Other parts of the bombed area, it stated, have been laid out as truck gardens, while the people are reclaiming scrap metal from the ruined areas.

The Japanese agency, Domei reported that 29 passenger and freight trains daily are carrying civilian refugees from Tokyo to rural districts.

TRIBUNE WRITER FINDS CHICAGO MEN ON OKINAWA

BY THOMAS MORROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OKINAWA ISLAND, April 1 [Delayed]—Translated into English, Okinawa means just what looks like—"The Extended Rope." It stretches 60 miles long and ranges from three to 10 miles in width.

Corp. Edward F. Hooks

Onto this extended rope this morning the marines went ashore covered by a merciless gunfire with virtually no opposition.

It was necessary to hitch-hike a ride into the beach on an amphibious tractor. Lt. Dick Woods of 505 College av., Lincoln, Ill., obliged. He was busy taking his artillery battery ashore.

The amtrack traveled boatwise on the water until the jagged coral reef was reached, then mounted the reef with its wheels. It bounced ashore, passing gaping concrete pillboxes, apparently knocked out by the naval gunfire and deserted.

Capture Goat and Hen

On the beach edge two marines had captured a small goat and a hen. They had them tethered and were watching them admiringly.

Travel along a rough dirt road brought the amtrack to a town about 500 yards inland, a handful of houses with tiled roofs and straw walls, or straw roofs and concrete walls. Neither put up much of a defense against the large naval guns, and the town was mostly rubbish. Apparently most of the inhibitants had withdrawn to a 150 foot square cave, which yielded 50 civilians to the marines. Most of them were friendly.

I am writing this in a sugar cane mill, but shellfire has discouraged production for a time. A division surgeon has just passed by and reported proudly that one of his men had successfully delivered two kids from a shellshocked goat.

PARENTS LEARN THRU TRIBUNE OF SONS IN OKINAWA

"O! He's on Okinawa!" excited Chicago families exclaimed yesterday when they learned thru a story written by Tribune correspondent Thomas Morrow, that their sons and brothers are part of the forces fighting for the island.

Sgt. Berhard J. Alcock's father, Thomas, of 856 Nelson st., said that the sergeant, with the 1st marine air division, previously served at Guadalcanal and Guam. He enlisted in July, 1942, and went to the Pacific two years ago.

Pvt. Geno W. Campeol, 19, the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Campeol, 2342 Moody av., who enlisted two years ago, has been overseas eight months. His mother said he is serving with the military police.

Pvt. Sam Domino, 23, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Domino, of 220 Wendell st., also has been a marine for two years. He attended Washburne Trade school.

A 19 year old six-footer, Pvt. C. J. Spalding, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Spalding of 29 N. Sheridan rd., Highland Park, is a drummer in the 1st division band, his mother said. He went overseas six months ago. Pvt. Spalding was graduated from Highland Park High school.

Seaman George Bemus, 29, whose wife lives at 3044 Canal st., was a war worker for the Acme Steel company before enlisting in the navy a year ago.

JAP ATROCITIES ON SPANIARDS AT MANILA TOLD

Butchery Blamed on Foes' High Command

MANILA, P. I. April 2 (AP)—United States army investigators said today that affidavits in hand showed the Japanese destroyed more than 90 per cent of the Spanish convents, churches, and religious houses in Manila during the battle for the city and killed at least 82 Catholic priests, and brothers of all nationalities.

The Rev. Tomas Tascon affirmed that the Japanese began systematic destruction of historic churches in the Intramuros [walled city] district when the Americans entered Manila on Feb. 3.

The priest's affidavit said the Spanish civil colony "suffered more than any other" because the Japanese blamed Spanish influence for the Filipinos' refusal to coöperate.

More than 50 persons, most of them Spaniards, were burned to death in the Spanish consulate's air raid shelter or bayoneted in the garden, Tascon said. The consulate was destroyed.

5,000 Slain in Provincial Town.

Tascon estimated Spanish property losses in Manila amounted to 90 per cent, including business houses and private homes. Incomplete reports indicate the losses were less severe in the provinces. The town of Calamba, Laguna province, was destroyed, however, and 5,000 Filipino men, women, and children were killed there.

Japanese demolition squads destroyed all historic church properties in Intramuros, except the St. Augustin church and the new section of the San Juan de Letran college.

Thirty-four of the priests killed were Spanish fathers slain in Intramuros. Tascor said they were driven into air raid shelters in front of the cathedral, hand grenades were tossed among them and the shelter entrances closed with gasoline drums and earth. One Spanish sister also was killed, he affirmed.

Jap Command Blamed

Captured Japanese documents bearing dates between last Dec. 23 and Feb. 14 suggest that the wholesale atrocities on civilians in Manila were the result of battle orders and not the work of isolated groups of Japanese who took matters into their own hands.

A Japanese message book captured by soldiers of the United States army's 14th corps contained an order issued to the Kobayashi group, then inside Intramuros, on Feb. 13:

"All people on the battlefield with the exception of Japanese military personnel, Japanese civilians, and special construction units will be put to death."

The following is a paragraph from a Japanese battalion order dated Feb. 8 captured in Intramuros by 14th corps soldiers:

"When Filipinos are to be killed, they must be gathered into one place and be disposed of with the consideration that ammunition and man power must not be used to excess. Because the disposal of dead bodies is a troublesome task, they should be gathered into houses which are scheduled to be burned or demolished. They should also be thrown into the river."

Diary Tells of Slaughter.

A diary, presumably belonging to a member of the Akatsuki force in Manila, contained the following:

"Feb. 3—150 guerrillas were disposed of tonight. I personally stabbed and killed 10.

"Feb. 9—Burned 1,000 guerrillas to death tonight."

Perhaps the most horrible case is covered in the report of atrocities at Fort Santiago, inside Intramuros, sworn to by Col. J. D. Frederick, commander of the 129th infantry of the 37th division. In the rubble of the destroyed fort Frederick and his men found a dungeon-like room sealed by two seven foot steel doors bolted from the outside. The bodies of 250 to 300 oriental civilians were in the room. Frederick believes most of the victims starved, but that some suffocated.

Sees Two Groups Butchered

Carolina Coruna, 22 year old student nurse working in St. Paul's hospital, said in an affidavit that she twice witnessed the killing of 75 to 100 civilians. On each occasion Japanese firing squads lined up civilians and mowed them down. Women of the victims who ran up to the firing squad to plead for mercy were also killed.

Maj. David V. Binkley of the 37th division surgeon's office inspected 115 bodies of men, women, and children at a lumber plant. He found many of the men and women, some of whom were pregnant, and a few of the children had been bound. The children were as young as two years.

Dr. Walter Frankel, Manila surgeon, attested to surviving the burning of a group of persons in a Pasay district home. He said the Japanese bound the victims and doused them with gasoline. Before the torch was applied, several men, women, and children were shot for trying to rise. One was Frankel's wife.

Service Ribbon Combat Stars Rated by 70 Navy Actions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—Bronze and silver combat stars for use by service men on their area service ribbons have been authorized by the navy for 70 operations and engagements and by the war department for 26 battles and campaigns, a study showed today.

In the world war there were 14 major operations in which American soldiers participated all except one of them in France.

To be eligible to wear the bronze star on service ribbons, the war department says, an individual "must have served honorably and must have been present for duty as a member of a unit, or attached to a unit at some time during the period in which the unit participated in battle and for which it has been awarded credit for such participation."

The navy's provisions for sailors, marines, and coast guardsmen are much the same. The navy, however, stipulates that in certain operations only one star may be allowed for participation in one or more actions.

One Star for Bougainville.

Thus, in what is termed the Treasury-Bougainville operation, extending from Oct. 26 to Dec. 15, 1943, only one star may be worn for participation in one or more of the following operations:

Treasury Island landing; Choiseul Island diversion, occupation and defense of Cape Torokina, bombardment of Buka-Bonis, Buka-Bonis strike, bombardment of Shortland area, battle of Empress Augusta Bay, Rabaul strike, action off Empress Augusta bay, battle off Cape St. George.

When an individual has earned more than five bronze stars he may replace them with silver stars in the ratio of one to five.

Central Pacific, Philippine Islands [1941-'42], East Indies, Papua, New Guinea, Guadalcanal, northern Solomons, Burma, 1942; India-Burma, China, Aleutians, air offensive against Europe, Egypt-Libya, Algeria-French Morocco, Tunisia, Sicily, mandated islands, Bismarck archipelago, Rome-Arno (Italy, Corsica, and adjacent waters), Naples-Foggia, Normandy, northern France, southern France, Germany, air offensive against Japan and the Philippines liberation.

Pearl Harbor, Wake Island, Philippine Islands [1941-'42], Netherlands East Indies engagements [Makassar strait, Badoeng strait, and Java sea], Pacific raids of 1942 [Marshall-Gilbert raids, air action off Bougainville, and the Wake and Marcus Island and the Salamaua-Lae raids], Coral sea, Midway, Guadalcanal-Tulagi landings, capture and defense of Guadalcanal, Makin raid, eastern Solomons.

Buin, Faid-Tonolai raid, Cape Esperance, Santa Cruz Islands, Guadalcanal [third battle of Savo], Tassafaronga [fourth Savo battle], Rennell Island, Aleutians operation [Komandorski Islands and the Attu occupation], New Georgia group operations [New Georgia-Rendova-Vangunu occupation, Kula gulf, Kolombangara and Vella gulf actions, Vella La Vella occupation, and action off Vella La Vella].

Pacific Raids

Pacific raids of 1943 [Marcus, Tarawa, and Wake Island raids], New Guinea operation, North African occupation [Algeria-Morocco landings], action of Casablanca and Tunisian operations, Sicilian occupation, Salerno landings, Gilbert Islands operation [1943], Marshall Islands operation [1943, including air attacks, occupation of Kwajalein, Majuro, and Eniwetok atolls, and the attack of Jaluit atoll], Bismarck archipelago operation [the three Kavieng strikes, bombardment of Kavieng and Rabaul and anti-shipping sweeps and bombardment of Kavieng, Rabaul, and New Ireland].

Asiatic-Pacific raids [1944, including Truk and Marianas attacks and the raids on Palau, Yap, Ulithi, Woleai, Sabang, Truk, Satawan, Ponape, and Soerabaja], Marianas operation [capture and occupation of Saipan, the four Bonin raids, battle of the Philippines sea, capture and occupation of Guam and Tinian and the Palau, Yap, and Ulithi raid], Green Islands landing, action off Vanikoro, Anzio-Nettuno advanced landings, bombardments of Formia-Anzio area, Elba and Pianosa landings, invasion of Normandy including the bombardment of Cherbourg, and the invasion of southern France.

Under the classification of escort, anti-submarine, armed guard, and special operations the navy also lists 32 convoy and task force actions for which stars have been authorized.

MRS. CHURCHILL AT MOSCOW ON RELIEF MISSION

MOSCOW, April 2 (AP)—Mrs. Winston Churchill arrived by plane today for a visit to hospitals and children's homes as head of her own relief fund for Russia.

The British prime minister's wife reached Moscow after an all night flight from Cairo, Egypt. She will visit Stalingrad and Rostov, where British funds will equip two 500 bed hospitals.

A welcoming party at the airport included Mrs. Vyacheslav Molotov, wife of the soviet commissar for foreign affairs; Ivan M. Maisky, the vice commissar, and his wife; W. Averell Harriman, the United States ambassador, and his daughter, Kathleen; Archibald Clark Kerr, the British ambassador, and officials of the soviet Red Cross and Red Crescent. "This is one of the most inspiring and exciting moments of my life," Mrs. Churchill said.

REDS OUTFLANK VIENNA; 32 MI. INSIDE AUSTRIA

LONDON, April 2 (AP)—Russian assault forces, ripping up to 14 miles thru shattered enemy defenses today, smashed within two and a half miles of Bratislava, capital of the puppet axis state of Slovakia, while Berlin reported soviet tanks 20 miles south of Vienna.

As the Germans proclaimed a last ditch defense of Vienna, under command of Col. Gen. Sepp Dietrich, commander of Hitler's SS [elite guard] bodyguard. European reports told of anti-Nazi rioting in the city.

The soviet high command said, only, that Red army forces were "continuing offensive engagements" west of the Neusiedler see [lake] where they last were officially reported 22 miles below the Austrian capital.

Enemy broadcasts said that Marshal Tolbukhin's 3d Ukraine army had gained two miles and that other soviet units had outflanked Vienna with a thrust 32 miles inside Austria to Semmering pass, one of five great trans-Alpine passes in Europe.

Drive Near Bratislava

Other reports said giant soviet tanks were battling in the streets of Wiener Neustadt, shell raked industrial city 22 miles south of Vienna.

East of Vienna, Marshal Malinovsky's 2d Ukraine army plunged unchecked thru southern Slovakia along the northern bank of the Danube. Behind a curtain of fire from self-propelled guns, Malinovsky's troops stormed into and captured Bischdorf, two and a half miles east of Bratislava.

The Russians also seized more than 100 other places, including Vainory, four and a half miles northeast of Bratislava. Farther northeast Malinovsky's troops lined up against the southern slopes of the little Carpathian mountains, which with the Morava river guard the approaches to Vienna from the east.

Malinovsky's troops were 27 miles east of Vienna, the soviet bulletin disclosed.

Oil Center Falls

While soviet forces advanced into Austria's mountains on an 82 mile front, the last big Hungarian city in enemy hands fell when Tolbukhin's troops took the oil center of Nagykaniszsa, in southern Hungary nine miles from the Yugoslav border.

These forces captured more than 40 other places west of Nagykaniszsa and captured 10,000 prisoners, for a two day bag in that area of 36,000.

The German DNB agency said that the Russians had opened fresh attacks on the Moravian gap leading from Silesia into Moravia and Bohemia and had reached the Oder at one point west of Wodzislaw and north of Moravska Ostrava, the key to the gap.

The Germans also said that Marshal Konev's 1st Ukrainian army had advanced along the Moravian border area in the area of Opava [Troppau], 16 miles northwest of Moravska Ostrava, to within artillery range of Jaegerndorf.

Maj. Gen. Chaney Takes Command of Iwo Isle

GUAM, April 2 (AP)—Maj. Gen. James Chaney, Wichita Falls, Tex., army airman and commander of United States forces in the British Isles in 1942, has assumed duty as island commander of Iwo Island, Pacific fleet headquarters announced today. Brig. Gen. Ernest M. Moore, Shreveport, La., commanding general of the 7th fighter command of the 7th AAF, has been assigned command of aircraft of all services based on Iwo.

REDS STRIPPING STOLEN GOODS FROM ROMANIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 2—The Russians today admitted they are stripping Romania of property they contend was stolen from the Ukrainian and Moldavian republics during their occupation by the Germans and their sympathizers. Tass, official Red news agency, said that from March 10 to 20 the following property was sent to the soviet union:

Ten railroad cars of machine and tractor station equipment, nine carloads of domestic articles, five carloads of high grade metal, nine carloads of archives and bookbinding materials, nine carloads of cement, 33 carloads of railway materials, and two of vegetable and grass seeds.

The following property was sent from various places in Romania to transshipment bases for dispatch to Russia:

Eight carloads of laboratory and medical supplies, 74 of private property, 14 of machine and tractor station equipment, 25 of automobile spare parts and equipment, 24 of technical and building materials, 35 of tannery equipment, five of printing equipment, eight street cars, 14 carloads of industrial equipment, and 60 of other property.

Tass said that up to March 1 5,548 carloads of soviet property had been shipped from Romania to Russia.

Chicago Engineer Solves Mariana Water Problem

Lt. Comdr. Paul H. Peterman, a former Chicago water division engineer, was credited by the navy yesterday with solving the problem of supplying fresh water in the Mariana Islands. Peterman arranged a system of storage tanks, and set up a control system including rainfall measurement, stream gauging, and control of water levels in wells and tunnels. Peterman is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin.

FRIGATE DESTROYS WOUNDED U-BOAT IN RUNNING FIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OTTAWA, Ont., April 3—In a spectacular running fight with a damaged, but still dangerous German submarine, the Canadian frigate Annan sent the U-boat down for the last time, Angus L. MacDonald, minister of naval services announced today. Seven Canadians were wounded in the action which took place in the North Atlantic.

Many Nazi survivors were picked up, including the captain and two other officers.

The submarine was forced to the surface by depth charges. The Annan closed to within less than 3,000 yards for the kill, and blasted the U-boat with 54 rounds of four inch gunfire and 2,880 rounds of oerlikon fire, topped off by final depth charges. The submarine fought back against overwhelming odds as the opening fire of the Annan killed all but one man at the U-boat's big gun.

The submarine was like a sieve when the Annan came so close that the last depth charge landed right beside her.

Baruch Confers with King George VI. and Churchill

LONDON, April 2 (AP)—Bernard M. Baruch, here on a mission for President Roosevelt, had a long audience with King George VI. in the presence of Prime Minister Churchill during the week-end. Baruch first conferred with Churchill alone. Part of his mission concerns the occupation of Germany, it is reported.

REPORT YANKS FAIL TO PASS INSURANCE TEST

Washington, D. C., April 2 (AP)—Rep. Philbin [D., Miss.] asserted today that approximately 20,000 service men overseas are reported to have been denied government life insurance policies because of their physical condition. Philbin said in a statement he would introduce legislation to prohibit rejection of their applications for insurance, and added: "It is indefensible that a boy, who is risking life and limb fighting for his country, should be denied insurance coverage." Philbin said that while service men automatically are eligible for insurance at the time of their induction, they must take another physical examination if they decide later to take a policy.

"The thought of a young man who is in an active theater of war being branded a poor health risk is an ironical paradox," Philbin's statement continued. "Any boy fit to fight for his country is worthy of being protected in all his insurance rights as are his beneficiaries.

"If the present law operates so as to bring about this unfair result, it must be corrected at once."

FIGHT TO SAVE PEACE PARLEY FROM FIASCO

Stalin Demands Threaten Collapse or Delay

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 2.—While the British and American chancelleries strove today to save the San Francisco conference from the collapse or enforced postponement threatened by the rift in relations with Russia indications multiplied that the international meeting to form a world peace league will be a storm center of high and low diplomacy and old fashioned power politics.

Issues dividing the big nations from the little countries and questions splitting the big powers are crowding to the fore and bid fair to make San Francisco beginning on April 25 the historic rival of the Versailles peace conference that framed Woodrow Wilson's league of nations in 1919. Among the vexatious subjects of dispute are the following:

1. The security council voting procedure incorporated into the Dumbarton Oaks league plan by the Big Three at Yalta whereupon a big power could veto employment of force to curb its own aggression and could also veto consideration of a complaint against a small nation enjoying the big power's favor.

Stalin's Demands

2. Stalin's demand for three votes for Russia in the league assembly, secretly agreed to at Yalta by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill with the understanding that the United States then should have three votes also. This proposal reopens the question of Great Britain being allowed six votes for itself, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and India, as in the Wilson league.

3. The voting procedure in the San Francisco conference, now complicated by Moscow's contention that the Big Three also agreed to let Russia and the United States have three votes each in the conference itself as well as in the league assembly.

4. The admission of Poland to the conference, hinging on the recognition of the broader provisional Polish government agreed upon at Yalta. Stalin has obstructed the formation of such government and precipitated the current crisis by demanding admission of the Moscow dominated Warsaw government.

Argentina Problem

5. Admission of Argentina to the conference by reason of that country's belated qualification for membership in the allied nations by declaring war on the axis. Moscow will fight the admission of Argentina, particularly if its Polish government is barred.

6. The question of international trusteeships for dependencies like India and the Dutch East Indies and for islands wrested from Japan. President Roosevelt, who sponsors the trusteeship plan, is at odds with the British and Dutch, who want no outside interference with their dependencies, and with a large body of American opinion favoring outright cession to the United States of such Japanese islands as are needed to bulwark American defense in the Pacific.

7. Demands by France for freedom of the operation of the Franco-Russian mutual defense pact from league interference, which involve also the analagous recent regional American act of Chapultapec.

Vandenberg Proposals

8. The Vandenberg proposed amendments to Dumbarton Oaks to implement the Atlantic Charter by requiring the league council to deal with any threat to peace and to recommend appropriate measures of adjustment which may include revision of prior international agreements, like the Russian partition and domination of Poland.

9. The protest of small nations against domination by the big five powers on the league council, recently voiced by Elco van Kleffens, Netherlands foreign minister.

The state department was the scene of feverish activity today as the capitals of the big powers exchanged views on steps to deal with the latest crisis in Anglo-American relations with Moscow. The President and Secretary of State Stettinius were bending every effort to get an agreement with Stalin on a reorganized Polish government in accord with the Yalta formula. If such an agreement can be effected Poland will be invited to San Francisco and the danger of Stalin kicking out of the conference will be averted. The situation was still confused tonight, however, and Mr. Stettinius refused a press conference.

Connally Confident

Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, and a delegate to San Francisco, emerged from a talk with Stettinius radiating confidence.

"Regardless of minor differences which may arise from time to time it is my view that the conference will be held at San Francisco April 25," he said. "It is my further view that the conference will be a success and that from it will emerge an international organization for peace which will be acceptable to the United States senate and to the American people."

Many internationalists, alarmed by the clouds gathering over San Francisco, were urging postponement of the conference, blaming Mr. Roosevelt for inept diplomacy at Yalta and failure to prepare the groundwork for a successful organization of a peace league.

WAC Faces Trial

PVT. JEAN VOTSMIER

WAC Pvt. Jean L. Votsmier, 20, of Fort Des Moines, who was indicted a month ago for embezzlement of $1,832 from Montgomery Ward & Co., at La Grange, where she formerly worked as credit manager, was returned to Chicago yesterday, where she will face trial on April 23.

Pvt. Votsmier and her then fiance, Francis Votsmier, were discharged from the store Dec. 22, and two weeks later they were married. After a "wonderful honeymoon," Mrs. Votsmier joined the WAC. Her husband went to work in an Indiana war plant.

Yesterday, admitting her guilt to Assistant State's Atty. James A. Brown, she explained that she first took money from the cash receipts to make a loan to a fellow employe. When the loan was unnoticed, and when her parents said she shouldn't get married without a bank account, she dipped further in the receipts and established an account, Brown quoted her as saying.

YALTA DECISIONS BY BIG 3 UNDER FIRE IN LONDON

Sincerity of Russians Questioned

BY E. R. NODERER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 2—The Crimea conference decisions came under fire tonight when diplomatic circles discussed whether Russia was sincere in agreeing to settle the Polish and other problems as proclaimed by the Big 3 at Yalta.

Even certain left wing elements found themselves at a loss to explain what Marshal Stalin had in mind, since apparently there was an important difference of opinion among the Big 3 regarding the understanding said to have been reached on the Polish government.

The British press, which had hailed the Crimea decisions as a great forward step, talked with trepidation of the possibility that Russia may even refuse to participate in the San Francisco world security organization meeting because of the rows which have been stirred up over the Polish question and the secret voting deal made by President Roosevelt, Marshal Stalin, and Prime Minister Churchill.

"Repayment to Democracy"

The Laborite Daily Herald said editorially: "These secret meetings, closely guarded from all publicity, are repugnant to every principle of democracy. They savor of the methods of dictatorship."

The Herald contended it is not for the great democracies to copy the ways of the autocrats and added: "Nor can the small nations be expected to accept unquestioningly the decrees so promulgated."

The Herald said it was characteristic that the Yalta conference should produce an agreement on Poland which could be interpreted in completely different ways, and on whose meaning the Big 3 themselves evidently have widely divergent views.

This left wing organ, which has backed Russia on nearly every occasion, then asserted, "The work has to be done again." The outcome, it said, is not unity but controversy and confusion, adding that no three men, however able and however powerful the governments they represent, can settle world affairs in such fashion.

Other papers in London demanded that the San Francisco conference be postponed.

The Daily Express asserted it was only too evident the ground for the conference hadn't been thoroly prepared. The Express asserted the voting formula put forward by the Big 3 is not acceptable to the smaller powers, and that uncertainty about who is to represent Poland is another disturbing factor.

See Snub by Stalin

There seemed to be little question here among diplomatic observers that Stalin had administered a pretty nasty snub to his partners in the Big 3 by picking a minor league delegation for the conference and one which not only will be a couple of protocol steps below the foreign minister level on which the United States and Britain will be represented but also will be without the power to make final decisions. Altho not much is being said here publicly about that question it is regarded as certain that no binding decisions can be taken if Russia does not participate at the same diplomatic level as the United States and Britain.

It is claimed there are grounds for the justification of Russia's support of the Lublin and Warsaw regime as Poland's representatives at San Francisco and America's and Britain's insistence that a new government must be formed before the parley. These observers say that "the Yalta agreement over Poland was no real agreement at all since it was differently interpreted in Moscow, London, and Washington."

WHERRY ASKS U. S. TO TELL THE TRUTH ON POLISH QUESTION

Washington, D. C., April 8 (AP)—Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.] said today "a continued refusal to be frank with the American people" on the Polish question may result in "sabotaging America's participation in any future international organization."

In a letter to Secretary of State Stettinius, Wherry asked:

"Why must we refuse an invitation to Poland to the San Francisco conference?

"Is Russia truly intent on rebuilding a peaceful world? If so, why does she stand in the path of Poland's participation in the San Francisco conference?

"Asking for myself, do you expect me as a senator or as an individual to support any international organization that excludes Poland as an independent state?"

Wherry wrote that millions of Americans are asking the same questions and declared only "an answer entirely free of evasion" will quiet the fears in the minds of his constituents.

JEWISH BOARD ASKS HEARING AT PEACE MEETING

Washington, D. C., April 2 (AP)—The American Jewish conference said today it had asked that the Jewish people be granted a hearing at the allied nations conference on international organization at San Francisco.

Declaring in a statement that it spoke for a majority of American Jews, the A. J. C. submitted to State Secretary Stettinius a postwar "security program" for Jewish people, calling for these things:

Inclusion in the allied nations charter of an international bill of rights; acceleration of the development of Palestine as a Jewish commonwealth; restoration of civil and political rights of European Jews; measures for their rehabilitation and resettlement, plus restoration of their property confiscated by the Nazis, and punishment of those responsible for war crimes against Jewish people.

HOUSE GROUP TO HOLD POST-WAR QUIZ HERE

Washington, D. C., April 2 (AP)—The house subcommittee on public works and construction announced it will conduct a hearing tomorrow in Chicago on relations of municipalities and the federal government in the planning of post-war public works.

Chairman Lynch [D., N. Y.] said Mayor Kelly will be the first witness to testify at the one day hearing in the Palmer House.

Other witnesses invited to testify include Don Weeks, secretary of the Michigan state planning board; Mayor Wilson Wyatt, Louisville, Ky., and George Shepherd, St. Paul, Minn., city engineer.

Woman Killed in Plunge at Ravenswood Hospital

Mrs. Emma Feddern, 47, of 4819 N. Mead av., was killed yesterday when she either leaped or fell from a second floor window at Ravenswood hospital, where she was a patient. Her husband, Carl, is a machinist.

SENTENCE 7 WAR OBJECTORS WHO DESERTED CAMP

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 2 [Special]—Sentences of three years and six months in prison were handed out by Federal Judge Fred M. Raymond here today to seven conscientious objectors accused of deserting from the civilian public service camp at Germfask, Mich. They were indicted last month and pleaded nolo contendere on arraignment.

The camp at Germfask is operated directly by the selective service administration for objectors who are not affiliated with religious groups maintaining their own camps or who have been turned out of such camps for recalcitrancy. Counsel for the accused men said appeals would be taken.

Those sentenced are Arden D. Bode, 21, New Knoxville, O.; Rodney C. Owen, 30, Trenton, Mich.; Alfred E. Partridge, 30, Chicago; John K. Neubrand, 20, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Morris Horowitz, 30, Brooklyn, N. Y.; George Kiyosho Yamada, 26, American born Japanese, San Francisco, and Jason J. Hopkins, 26, Pleasantville, N. Y.

Mayor Urges Support of Relief Clothing Drive

In a proclamation issued yesterday Mayor Kelly designated the period from April 1 thru April 30 as United National Clothing Collection month in Chicago and urged citizens and organizations to donate unneeded clothing for use by war victims in foreign countries. The mayor pointed out in the proclamation that the only available large source of clothing for overseas relief is in clothing now lying unused in American homes.

March Payments by State to Blind Total $172,105

Payments amounting to $172,105.45 were made during March under the state's blind assistance program, Raymond M. Hilliard, public aid director, said yesterday. Funds were granted to 5,207 blind persons last month. In February 5,221 received allowances.

Burglars Saw 12 Inch Wall for Loot of $2,000

Burglars sawed thru a 12 inch wall to take $2,000 from the wall safe of the Wallen Fine Furniture company, 3300 N. Clark st., sometime Sunday, the owner, Louis Wallenstein, 434 Melrose st., told police yesterday.

$1,397 Stolen as Thieves Use Pass Key to Bakery

Thieves who used a pass key to enter Rommel bakery, 1314 Wrightwood av., stole $1,397 and a table radio, Carl Rommel, the owner, told Sheffield av. police yesterday.

...their faces are being LIFTED

This season, it's the fashion to have your golf balls' faces lifted. Those balls, whose deep lines and bruised physiogs show, only too well, the hard life they have lived, still have hearts of gold. They can still make someone very happy.

As a public service (and a source of profit) your Stineway Drug Store has established itself as headquarters for golf ball rejuvenation. Bring in your old golf balls—gashed by a slightly misdirected five iron, bruised by a brassie and a lifted shoulder, or just plain tired looking from your smashing drives. Bring them in and we'll buy them.

Then we hustle them off to our fountain of youth. Their tired old faces fall away and they come forth smooth and bright and smiling.

And one bright day, as another tees his precious ball for the first time——it will look up and say . . . "I've got a strange feeling I've been through this before."

...Yours, STINEWAY DRUGS

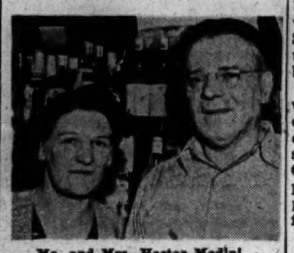
BANDIT SHOT IN WEST SIDE HOLDUP SPREE

A gunman was wounded seriously last night in an attempted holdup of the Four Star tavern, 2436 Madison st., his fourth raid in the same west side area within an hour and 20 minutes. He identified himself as William De Stefano, 30, of 700 Miller st. A companion, believed waiting outside in an automobile, escaped.



Mr. and Mrs. Hector Modini.

Police said De Stefano began his holdup spree in a tavern at 1811 Madison st. The owner, Joseph Schwartz, and several patrons were herded into a rear room De Stefano, who was alone, escaped with $350 from the cash register.

Robs Physician and Patient

Ten minutes later De Stefano and a companion held up Dr. Attilio Monaco, a physician, and Miss Evelyn Silveri, 7211 Harvard st., Forest Park, in Monaco's office, 401 S. Western av., getting a wallet containing $75 from the physician and $25 from Miss Silveri. Another patient, a man, who was on the examining table, was not molested.

Third on the holdup list was a fruit market at 11 N. California av., owned by Sam and Henry Yanow, brothers, where De Stefano got $110. The Four Star tavern holdup occurred 10 minutes later.

Cossie Cochran, 2749 Washington blvd., and his wife, Marie, 22, were in the front of the tavern when De Stefano entered. He pointed a revolver at Mrs. Cochran and motioned to her husband, crying, "Get back! Get back!"

Shot by Tavern Owner

Hector Modini, 50, the owner of the tavern, grabbed a .38 caliber revolver beneath the bar and fired once, striking De Stefano in the left chest, above the heart. Modini's wife, Pauline, 35, ran for help, but De Stefano fell, unable to move.

"Yes, I've got a record—I did time at Joliet," De Stefano gasped to Detectives Charles Doyle, Marvin Nelson, and John McDonogh of Warren av. station.

He insisted he was alone in the holdup, but the Modinis believe they saw a companion in an automobile that sped away after the shooting. On De Stefano's person the detectives found $106.97. De Stefano was taken to Bridewell hospital.

SAGA OF MOBILE RADIOS IN WAR TOLD BY W-G-N

Chicago-Made Units Big Aid in Battle

Almost every time the American public hears an eye witness radio account of battles in Germany, Italy, Asia, or the South Pacific broadcast by front line correspondents, the voice is being transmitted thru a SCR-299, the famous mobile, single unit sending and receiving set used by the army and navy.

The unit has become such a potent weapon of war that enemy airmen on all fronts have been given special instructions to destroy it on sight. Army reports show that both German and Japanese aviators carry pictures of the SCR-299 in the cockpits of their planes so they can't fail to recognize it.

Indispensable to Battle

Besides broadcasting news to America and other allied nations, the unit plays an indispensable part in every battle, providing intercommunication between various attacking units, the command posts, and other dispersed fighting posts.

The story of these mobile radio stations, manufactured by the Hallicrafters company, 2611 Indiana av., was told last night in the concluding broadcast of America Unlimited, a program presented each Monday night for the last nine weeks to demonstrate the part American war workers play in allied victories.

5,000 Attend Broadcast

Featured on the program was the singing of Hildegarde, supper club and radio star; Miss Virginia Haskins, grand opera soprano, and Bruce Foote, singing star of the W-G-N Chicago Theater of the Air.

The crowd of 5,000 persons was entertained by other performers of stage and radio after the regular broadcast was concluded at 9:30 p. m.

The broadcasts were presented each week by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, radio station W-G-N, and leading war industries, in cooperation with the army, navy, and federal war agencies.

ROBBERS GET $3,450 STORE LOOT

Merchandise, war bonds and cash, total value $3,450, were stolen from a 1,500 pound safe and from the display windows of the W. F. Keefe Stationery store, 3916 Cottage Grove av., early yesterday.

RAIL SCALPING NOT PREVALENT, SENATORS TOLD

A railroad traffic official dismissed black market operations in Pullman reservation in Chicago yesterday by saying, "There is so little space available for public use after the government's requests are taken care of that it wouldn't pay a scalper to bother with them."

He is J. R. Moriarty, assistant passenger traffic manager of the Santa Fe railroad. He testified before the state senate committee investigating black market operations in travel, which is composed of Sen. Bidwill [R.], Sen. Knox [R.], and Sen. Libonati [D].

Under questioning by Libonati he said that 70 per cent of space on trains moving west has been taken by the government reservation bureau, a unit set up by railroads to act as a clearing house for military needs. E. B. Padrick, representing the government reservation bureau, said that approximately 2,245 units of space were assigned every day by the bureau from frozen reservations.

Another meeting will be held at the city hall on April 16, at which time the committee will receive and make recommendations for legislation to correct the travel problems.

Almost three-quarters of the motorists purchasing automobile licenses in 1944 already have bought their city tags for 1945, City Collector Bauler said yesterday. The total number of cars registered in 1944 was 433,880, he said; 362,999 have been registered this year. Money collected from all vehicle license fees this year totals $3,956,951, he reported, compared with $4,543,988 for all of 1944.

WAR SHATTERED G. I.S REBUILT BY SURGEONS' SKILL

Plastic Operations Save Thousands of Vets

men was Pvt. James D. Brasher of Trussville, Ala., who was riding on an ammunition truck at Anzio when it was struck by a shell.

Sixteen men were killed by the blast and flames, but Brasher survived, with 70 per cent of his body surface burned. Such a large burned area must be covered with skin quickly, or a patient will die. In Brasher's case, a heroic fellow soldier, Sgt. Harry Beckman of Long Island, N. Y., donated skin which was grafted on the burned man's body. Brasher is now well along toward recovery.

The plastic surgeons work closely with the specialists in neurosurgery, who deal with the nervous system; the orthopedic surgeons, who repair bones, and the general surgeons. Every case involving legs, arms, hands, and feet is considered by the hospital "extremities board," composed of the chiefs of the four divisions of surgery, who decide on the treatment and must agree before an amputation is ordered.

Amputation Is Avoided

The board has a motto: "Amputation is an admission of defeat." There has been no defeat at Northington. Not a single amputation, except fingers, has been performed here, altho the hospital staff performs 5,000 operations a year.

In many cases, the plastic surgeons pave the way for surgical feats by the nerve and bone specialists. Here is how Maj. Pick explains the interlocking of the divisions of surgery:

"During the last war, when a man was shot thru the leg, losing muscle, skin, and ligaments, there was no use in repairing the bone, since exposed bone, even if it is not infected, does not heal. In such cases the leg usually was amputated. Now plastic surgery covers the exposed bone and when the covering tissue is healed, new operations can be performed to repair the shattered bone and nerves."

New Tissue Inserted

In many other cases, scar tissue grows between broken bones, which then cannot be grafted or plated, Maj. Pick said. The plastic surgeon removes the scar tissue, replacing it with soft tissue, and the bone surgeons can then do their work.

Often the plastic surgeons are called upon to make quick repairs to prevent problems that are more difficult than surgery. One man must be fixed up so he can eat; another must be given a place to put teeth; another must be provided with an eye socket for an artificial eye.

Not a Matter of Beauty

"If we tried always to do plastic surgery that is cosmetically finished, men with extensive injuries might have to undergo ordeals beyond human endurance and some of them might land in psychiatric wards. Those men have already gone to hell and back; we must spare them further mental and physical suffering.

"It is not our purpose to send our patients to Hollywood, but to jobs and their families. There will be time enough after the war to retouch the work done in army hospitals."

The assistant chief of plastic surgery at this hospital is Maj. Alfred Suraci of Washington, D. C.

There are eight other plastic surgeons on the staff. Among the nurses in the plastic surgery section are Lt. Marian Dorsey, 3714 Sunnyside av., Chicago, and Lt. Beatrice Brand of West Chicago. Both were trained at Cook County hospital.

Commanding officer of the hospital is Brig. Gen. William R. Dear, a veteran of more than 37 years' service in the army medical department.

Somewhere in Chicago is a girl whose picture, lost on Iwo Island by a marine boy friend, so intrigued 10 marine veterans of the Iwo campaign that they want to know her name and address. The unidentified photograph was sent to THE TRIBUNE by the marines in the hope that the young woman can be located and the photo restored to the marine.

"During the battle," the marine wrote, "some marine presumably lost his helmet in which he had been carrying this picture. It was found by one of the undersigned and displayed for our mutual admiration."

The marines disavowed being "pin-up addicts" but said "there is such beautiful sincerity and expressiveness displayed that we couldn't help but feel endowed with feelings related to home." Among the 10 signers were Pvt. G. F. Freund and Pvt. E. J. Zoul, both of Chicago.

HEARING CLEARS BIRTH ADVISERS OF MALPRACTICE

The medical committee of the Illinois department of education and registration yesterday exonorated Dr. E. L. Cornell, 122 S. Michigan av., and Dr. Ralph A. Reis, 104 S. Michigan av., on charges of alleged gross malpractice brought against them in connection with the death of Mrs. Marianna Welling in Southtown hospital Nov. 11, 1943.

Evidence taken at a department hearing held at 160 N. La Salle st. showed that the two physicians had been brought into the case as obstetrical specialists after complications had set in and Mrs. Welling had been seized with convulsions in the expected birth of her baby, which also died.

In voting unanimous vindication for Dr. Cornell and Dr. Reis, the committee overruled the contention of Atty. John Tyrell, representing the department, that the two physicians, as members of the joint maternal welfare committee of Cook county, were members of a "supergovernment" appointed by the board of health. Since the committee was organized in February, 1938, to furnish expert consultation in abnormal births in Chicago hospitals, the maternity death rate for the city has dropped approximately 60 per cent in such cases, records disclose.

WIDOW TO FACE JURY TODAY IN GANGLAND QUIZ

Mrs. Florence Barad, widow of Maurice Barad, gang slaying victim whose body was found near Bensenville, Du Page county, Thursday, will appear before the Cook county grand jury today to tell what she knows about underworld affairs. She attended services for Barad in a chapel at 3606 Roosevelt rd. yesterday, and the burial in Waldheim cemetery, Forest Park.

Paul Labriola, named by Mrs. Barad as having been with Martin [The Ox] Ochs on Barad's last ride, failed to make good on promises by relatives that he would surrender during the day. Mrs. Barad is expected to be called by the Du Page county grand jury tomorrow when it takes up an inquiry into the slaying.

James Weinberg, reputed partner of Labriola who had been held for questioning since last week, was freed by police. Weinberg's statement that he owned a liquor concession in the Buena Drug store, 1002 Montrose av., was denied by the store's owners, Samuel Tunick and Jack Gordon, who said Weinberg had held a soda fountain concession, but gave it up last October.

HOUSE PROBERS TO SCAN CHICAGO MEAT SITUATION

Washington, D. C., April 2 (AP)—Chairman Anderson [D., N. M.] announced tonight that the house food study committee will go to New York and Boston to investigate charges that "90 per cent" of the meat there is sold in the black market.

The committee, he said, expects to be in Boston April 23 and in New York April 24, 25. It will be in Chicago April 16-17 to study cattle feeder problems.

CANNING SUGAR TO BE AVAILABLE MAY 1, OPA SAYS

Sugar for home canning will be made available in the Chicago area May 1, Marion W. Isbell, area office of price administration director, said yesterday. Each person, up to eight in a family, will be eligible for a maximum of 20 pounds.

Isbell said the allowance will be on a basis of one pound for each gallon of fruit juices, plus varying amounts for jams and jellies. To obtain sugar, one member of the family will be able to get a special certificate for the whole family by turning in spare stamp 13 in book 4 for each member.

Last year spare stamps were automatically good for canning sugar, but Isbell said this resulted in the allowance of 300,000 tons more than was needed in the United States and many persons bought the sugar for other purposes.

THE FALSEHOODS BEGIN TO CATCH UP

Mr. Roosevelt's pretentious foreign policy is coming apart at the seams. It was inevitable that it would fail, because it was an effort to organize the world under a series of falsehoods. The only surprise is that the failure should become evident so soon. At the present pace of events it is not impossible that Dumbarton Oaks may be dead before Hitler.

Stalin has already snubbed the San Francisco camp meeting by sending a mere ambassador to it to deal on equal terms with the chiefs of foreign affairs of other governments. Now that his request for representation for his puppet government at Warsaw has increased the storm that was raised by disclosure of the Yalta deal, intended to insure Russia and the United States three votes each in the proposed assembly, it is not impossible that refusal of his Polish request would cause him to pull out of the conference entirely. That would be the end. Even Mr. Roosevelt could not maintain his pretenses in the face of Russian abstention.

In his bid for historical recognition Mr. Roosevelt attempted to harness power politics to a scheme of world government. The conflicts between the two systems forced him from one falsehood to another, each more ridiculous than the last. The Atlantic Charter can be passed over. It is dead. It was followed by the falsehood of the Big Four, later rendered a trifle more ridiculous by expansion to the Big Five.

Mr. Roosevelt and his smiling foreign secretary were going to be "realists." The little nations were told that the Dumbarton Oaks scheme was going to work, where the league of nations had not, because it placed its power in the hands where power really rested. That was the Big Five.

It included China, which is disunited and whose armies, however valiant its soldiers, are by western standards a nonentity. It included France, which was liberated last June by the efforts of others, and is governed as a dictatorship which derives its authority from the allied armies in whose baggage train it arrived. It included Great Britain, whose military and naval decline are manifest. That leaves only Russia, which can dominate continental Europe and intends to do so, and the United States, which can dominate the western hemisphere and is the only power of any consequence in the Pacific.

In elaborating his fantasy, Mr. Stettinius trotted out the falsehood of international trusteeship for colonies and former league of nations mandates. The American people saw this as a device for alienating such fortress islands as the Carolines, the Marianas, and Iwo, which have been won at the price of American blood. They were outraged, but they could hardly assert that they were astonished, because they should have become accustomed by now to the betrayal of American interests by Roosevelt's statecraft.

Other nations greeted the proposal even more coldly. The French see in it potential machinery for forcing them to quit the more callous exploitation of such territories as Indo-China and New Caledonia. The French suspicions were measured by their refusal to be one of the co-sponsors of the San Francisco conference.

Mr. Churchill brusquely told Mr. Stettinius not to look at him that way, and the Economist of London has returned to the subject with a declaration that the British intend to hold what they have. It asserts that the British have no objection to our keeping what we take from Japan, and undertakes to rationalize Mr. Stettinius' proposal as an attempt to mollify American public opinion by bringing forth international trusteeship in place of outright sovereignty over islands, which the Economist believes would be "distasteful" to our people.

The usually well informed editors of the Economist must have been associating too much lately with the toadying members of the English Speaking union and of the American Outpost in London. Americans are not apologetic for what we have done or for what we are taking in the war. While we have no use for economic imperialism as it has been practiced by European colonial powers at the expense of their colonial subjects, we are determined to make our military position in the Pacific secure as far as we can see into the future by retention of the bases necessary to that security.

The two dominant powers of the world today are the United States and Russia. Mr. Roosevelt might have insured world peace had he based his actions on that simple fact, brought Stalin to recognize it, and eliminated causes of possible friction between our two nations. Instead he undertook his program of a world league, and to adjust it to Stalin's objections, let it be made a front for Russian imperialism. The course went from one falsehood to another, and the falsehoods are catching up with him.

A ROW WITHOUT A QUARREL

It is difficult to understand the latest altercation at the Dodge Chicago plant. The issue concerns honorably discharged war veterans who are being laid off from work. Both the Chrysler corporation, which runs the plant, and the union agree that the veterans who are being dismissed are not protected by union seniority acquired by other workers who were never in service. From that point on, it is a debate between the union and company as to who failed to provide the protection of seniority.

The CIO says that a year ago the company refused to accept a contract provision that veterans, after a probation period, be given a seniority status equal to the time served in the army or navy. The company asserts that it was the union which refused to agree to the principle. Inasmuch as both the union and company now seem willing to include war service in determining seniority, why do they not simply write a clause into the existing contract incorporating the provision?

Certainly neither a company nor a union will want to risk public disfavor by penalizing a worker for the patriotic performance of duty to his country. Both parties must recognize that veterans are going to have a considerable voice in the affairs of this country at no very distant time. Like so many other current labor disputes, this particular one should never have happened.

MR. BYRNES RESIGNS

The resignation of James Byrnes as director of war mobilization and reconversion was accepted by Mr. Roosevelt directly after Mr. Byrnes, to all appearances, had naively let the cat out of the bag as to the real purpose of the slave labor bill. Mr. Byrnes, in his second report to the President and congress, said that "controls are necessary, not only for war production but also for the production of essential civilian goods, and later, to facilitate reconversion."

As stated, Mr. Byrnes gave the appearance of naivete in thus frankly admitting that the man power controls demanded by Mr. Roosevelt as war time necessities were intended to carry over into the peace. As soon as the admission was made, senators said that the statement had killed all chance that the legislation would be passed. But Mr. Byrnes is not a naive man. It is to be assumed that he felt that it was high time for some one in the administration to give the people an insight into the ulterior aims of the bill, and that is why he spoke.

Mr. Roosevelt has endeavored to gloss over the fundamental conflicts between Mr. Byrnes and himself, but his letter of appreciation cannot conceal that they exist. Mr. Byrnes, in tendering his resignation, said, "I think V-E day is no far distant. My knowledge of the nature of the work now confronting the office causes me to conclude I should not remain longer. . . . I am convinced that the person who is to direct the reconversion program should take charge of this office now."

The plain inference is that Mr. Byrnes is out of sympathy with the reconversion plans projected by the administration. Last Sept. 7, in a report to the President, he had set forth his views on the subject. "With the defeat of Germany," he said, "the requirements of the procurement agencies for material and supplies will be reduced by approximately 40 per cent. . . . The need will remain to give full protection to the necessary war programs for the conduct of the war against Japan, but, in so doing, every opportunity will be provided to permit the resumption of maximum civilian production without delay."

In that report Mr. Byrnes had this to say about man power "It is apparent that with the defeat of Germany the necessity for existing man power controls will largely cease. Hence, these controls will be abandoned to facilitate the transfer of man power from the curtailed war programs to civilian production."

Mr. Byrnes, in resigning, says that the defeat of Germany is at hand. By his own statements last September, the day of our victory in Europe should at once permit the release of 40 per cent of our productive facilities into manufacture of civilian goods, and it should result in the complete lifting of such few controls as we have hitherto had over the allocation of labor.

But what does he find the Roosevelt administration proposing to do now that victory is in sight? Does he find the administration following his recommendations? Far from it. Instead of permitting war industries which have completed their production schedules to turn to civilian lines, the administration is refusing to give the word to go ahead. The Pullman-Standard Car company, for instance, is winding up its program of producing landing ships for the navy, but altho it will shortly have idle labor, the war production board will give no indication of when the company may resume the building of railroad passenger cars. There is no lack of labor, nor is there any apparent lack of materials. The navy cutback in combat ships from 84 vessels to 17 will free 180,000 tons of steel previously earmarked by priorities, but WPB is going ahead in its usual fashion, setting aside material and hoarding it, as if victory in Europe were not expected and as if there never had been any cutbacks or completion of production schedules.

Now that we are approaching the end of the European war, Mr. Byrnes finds that the administration, instead of lifting all labor controls, is demanding drastic provisions embodying fines and jail sentences to put workers in such jobs as it chooses, and to keep them there.

The resignation of Mr. Byrnes may be interpreted as the opening of a struggle over reconversion. On the one side are those who believe that war time restrictions should be lifted as soon as possible, and that industry and labor be permitted freedom from the onerous restrictions accepted for the duration of the war.

On the other side are all the proponents of a post-war managed economy — Mr. Roosevelt, Henry Wallace, and all the old, familiar crowd —with their slogans of "full employment," "60 million jobs," "48 hours of take-home pay for 40 hours' work," and all the other inducements held out if the people will just let them plan it all. The man power placement and freezing system would have been a keystone of the plan.

The time is here when the American people will have to take sides for freedom or regimentation, as Mr. Byrnes has taken his.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. The word slipstream is associated with which branch of the military service?
   Marine corps Tank corps Signal corps Air corps
2. Which flame will produce the least amount of soot? Red Yellow Blue Orange.
3. A player who arched his shots would be in a contest involving how many men?
   4 10 18 22.
4. Which one of these terms is inappropriate in this general grouping?
   Plymouth Rock Brown Swiss Rhode Island Red Wyandotte
5. A picture of which one of these men would be most appropriate in a book of etiquet?
   Cortez Dickens Raleigh Ponce De Leon

[a] Clam	[v] Stew
[b] Fish	[w] Bake
[c] Oyster	[x] Pull
[d] Corn	[y] Fry
[e] Taffy	[z] Roast

A BIRD TO INVESTIGATE

The Ryukyu Islands, now a matter of intense news interest, have another name that is easier on the eye, ear, and tongue: Luchu, also spelled Loochoo. Any one who wishes to use it will not be out of line, for it is favored by the natives and also by old salts. These islands number 55, and are geographically divided into a "shoto," a "gunto," and a "retto," which words are Japanese for archipelago, cluster, and string. Okinawa, scene of the invasion, is in a "gunto."

Chicago's Brookfield zoo has an exhibit from the Ryukyus that should attract some attention now, altho it has been passed without a second look by millions of visitors. If you miss it, ask an attendant to point out the aviary that contains the Loochoo robin. Karl Plath, the curator of birds who also paints them beautifully, takes pride in his Loochoo robin as a rare species and a handsome creature.

* * *

We doubt if the National Geographic magazine, whose editor has a bird complex, ever printed a picture of the Loochoo robin. Now is the time for Chicago's newspaper photographers to dash out to Brookfield with their cameras. Let's see if this alleged robin from the doorstep of Nippon is any better than the one now nipping worms in Chicago's front yards.

Which reminds us of Burton Holmes and the fabulous quetzal. When the eminent traveler showed his pictures of Guatemala recently, he mentioned the quetzal as the national bird, remarkably fine-feathered. But, he said, they are so scarce that his photographer couldn't find them. The next day, information from Brookfield experts sent Mr. Holmes galloping out there to get a picture of a quetzal.

SOLDIER IN JUNGLE

In a hunk of jungle darkness, where black walls
With bullets night-long zing, and the sudden stain
Of fire goes streaking by, and quick death crawls.
Afraid? Don't make me tell you how much I am!
To do like getting out . . . those they've not got of us!
When home's a wild-eyed dream and hell's all round you,
Your veins turn ice, and sleep's as far as the moon,
You wind up thinking what if no buddy found you
Till after some Jap had found you first—and soon?
Fight on? You said it, chum! We've come prepared.
But don't forget—most heroes are guys that's scared!

Another Sign of Inflation

"Come quick," called Ferdinand, my silver tabby cat, as he dashed into the kitchen. "There's something terribly wrong with the kid."

"I was just going to awaken him. What's happened?"

"Inflation," he exclaimed. "His face is still the proper size north by south, but sister, you ought to see the east by west."

"Don't tell me," I groaned. "I wonder if there's a pickle in the icebox."

"A fine mother," he stormed. "Your son awakens deformed and you worry about the groceries."

"Take it easy," I cautioned. "I've been expecting the mumps sooner or later. It's the only thing we've missed so far."

"The mumps, eh? Well, what happens now?"

"I'll notify the police——"

"The police," he shouted. "I'm innocent, so help me."

"The police will tack a sign on the front door and we become isolationists."

"You mean, no people running in and out and making a fuss over me? What a bore." He brooded a minute and then green eyes gleamed wickedly. "But don't despair, my girl. If things get too dull I shall switch the MUMPS sign to a HOUSE FOR RENT, and boy, will we start a riot!"

OLD WOLF BLUES

My heart is heavy, I am sad,
O'er all the lovelies I once had
And lost because I, lack-a-day,
Misplaced them somewhere 'long the way:
Sweet Alice, Lily May, blonde Pearl,
And Dolly (boy! was there a girl),
Dear Gladys, Beth, a svelte brunette,
And that wild redhead, Violet.
I loved each one, then tossed her o'er,
For there were always hundreds more;
But how was I to know, some spring
There'd come a day of rationing.

The Other Man Said "Roger"

Two members of an air crew, on leave, were sprawled on a sofa at a house party, reading their host's magazines, when one of them chuckled.

"What're you laughing at?" asked his buddy.

"There's a line on this story that describes a particular girl as being wicked and abandoned."

"So, what's funny?"

"Yuh see that slinky lookin' babe over there with the heavy eyelids, and about 20 guys millin' around her?"

"Yeah."

"And that sweet lookin', wide-eyed gal sittin' in that corner all by herself?"

"Yeah."

D. M. A. writes: "Under the G. I. law, a veteran is limited to one year's education or training if he was in service or discharged after Sept. 16, 1940, unless he was under 25 when he entered. I was enlisted three years before Sept. 16, 1940, and became 25 after that date. How will my eligibility be determined with reference to my age?"

The law provides that any person whose age on entry into service was under 25 is automatically presumed to have had his education interrupted, impeded, or delayed. "Age on entry into service" will be determined thus: If the Yank entered service before Sept. 16, 1940, his age would be considered as of Sept. 16, 1940, but if he entered service after Sept. 16, 1940, his age would be the actual age on date of entry. You thus would be entitled to one year's training plus the equivalent time you spend in active service after Sept. 16, 1940, with the maximum of four years of training.

PLAYING HOST TO GALLSTONES

THE principal disease of the gall bladder is inflammation, with or without stones. Gallstones are little masses of solid substances formed out of bile that is stagnant or diseased. They range in size from that of a grain of coarse sand to a hen's egg. Several hundred tiny ones may be harbored.

There are two chief causes: Infection and wrong eating habits. Infection usually arises from bacteria in the tonsils, sinuses, or appendix. Germs enter the gall pouch by way of the blood stream, thus contaminating the structure and its content—bile. The second factor includes overindulgence in rich, irritating foods, especially fried dishes, butter, and cream.

Gallstones occur more frequently in women, especially those who have borne children. The favorite age period is between 30 and 50, altho there are cases on record in which young children as well as very old people have played host to these concretions.

The most common symptom of gall bladder trouble is indigestion. This term may mean a great variety of unpleasant sensations such as heartburn, loss of appetite, gas, belching, bloating, nausea, constipation, or diarrhea. Some or all of these symptoms will be exhibited. Examination will usually reveal tenderness over the gall bladder area. If "rocks" are present, special X-ray studies will show abnormalities in 80 per cent of the cases.

As a rule, the victim encounters only mild discomfort so long as the "pebbles" do not obstruct the flow of bile. When they begin to move, however, causing blockage, pain in the pit of the stomach—severe enough to cause the patient to double up—may be experienced. Distress may also be felt just below the right shoulder blade, which progresses into the shoulder on that side. Chills, fever, nausea, and vomiting may add to the suffering.

Since the stone is caught in the tube leading from the gall bladder to the small intestine, the flow of bile from the liver is dammed. The circulation then takes up this secretion, with the result that the skin and the eyeballs are stained yellow. In other words, the patient is now jaundiced.

To relieve the agony of biliary colic, powerful drugs may be required. Rest in bed and plenty of fluids are indicated. When eating is resumed, small rather than large meals should be the rule. The stone may continue on its course and slip into the intestine. If it becomes well grounded, surgery will probably be necessary. Other bouts may be anticipated, especially if greasy foods are consumed. Fat causes the gall bladder to contract and another stone may be forced out.

The only cure is removal of the structure. Stones cannot be "dissolved." Preparations claiming to do this contain chemicals which turn to soap when taken into the stomach. The particles that are passed may lead the patient to believe that he is losing his stones but close examination will reveal their true identity.

GULLET TROUBLE

H. M. G. writes: I read your recent article, "Down the Hatch," and want to ask about some trouble I am having in swallowing food. It goes down the gullet, but I seem to lose my power to swallow it. I am 80 years old. Any remarks will be appreciated.

REPLY

This may be due to a narrowing of the esophagus, which is easily determined by means of an X-ray examination. When necessary, direct observation is possible with the gastroscope.

AFRAID

There is a certain element of fear in every one who is about to undergo an operation. The surgeon wisely provides medicine to counteract this condition.

SWELLING

Mrs. C. B. writes: When I get up in the morning my face, especially my eyes, as well as my fingers, are swollen. What should be done?

REPLY

An examination by your physician will be necessary to diagnose this condition. The possibility of allergy and kidney disease should be considered.

KNOTS

D. C. writes: Is there any cure for nodes?

REPLY

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

The Mirror in the Lens

It seems doubtful if even the most highly imaginative members of the home front can picture accurately, from a mere reading of eyewitness accounts, just how bitter this strange island war in the Pacific is. No matter how vivid the prose of the battle reporter, none has captured the stark horror and heroism and hell of island war as has "Fury in the Pacific," the documentary film on the 76-day taking of Peleliu just released by the army, navy, and marine corps.

This is not a gentle film. You come from it glazed and dazed, wondering how any of the men who took that island emerged sane. Yet all the shockingly unsavory pictures were deleted before the film was released to the delicate public. The wounded you see thru the blur of distance. The dead you see only as the bullet hits, again from a distance, and the young body falls. But you get an idea of the omissions from the somber words of the narrator: "D-day plus two—and 2,000 Purple Hearts. . . ."

No one ever gives the camera man his due. The average news camera man, war or peace, is a person of magnificent courage, daring, and ingenuity. He will run literally any risk for his single goal: the picture. The picture may be unforgettable, as that of the marines raising the American flag on the tip of Suribachi at Iwo Jima, but no one pays any attention to or even knows who took it. [Joe Rosenthal of the A. P., who also was at Peleliu, took that one.] His is a backhand and anonymous road to fame.

There were 40 combat camera men at Peleliu. Wherever there was front line fighting, they were to be found. They took 150,000 feet of film, and nine were killed or wounded, many because the lens of the camera, reflecting light like a mirror, makes the man behind it a perfect target for snipers. One got around this by cutting the bottom out of an oil can and using it as a shade, or funnel, for his lens.

Photographic equipment is heavy. The average camera man carries the load of a pack mule. On Peleliu the combat camera man carried a 25 pound pack on his back, nine or 10 pounds of weapons [rifle and pistol], at least 15 pounds of film and repair materials, and his 12 pound camera.

A marine who was at Peleliu told us about some of these boys. He remembered particularly the second morning there. The marines held only a beachhead, but seemed on the verge of new activity. "What now?" he asked the intelligence officer beside whom he was standing. "In two minutes," the officer replied, consulting his watch, "we take the air field." The air field was 1,300 yards in width. The Japs held three sides of it. But at the end of two minutes the marines set out across it, tanks spearheading the way, the marines dogtrotting behind and falling like flies. In the midst of them, doggedly turning the crank of his movie camera, was a combat camera man. Paul Peters, formerly of the Houston Post. He didn't need to go on that death race. He was not ordered to. But he went.

Then there was the first and futile attempt to take Death Valley. A marine company, its ranks already depleted to 120, was to move onto the Jap held valley floor supported by four tanks. To record this on film, two camera men scaled five gaunt pinnacles, called Five Sisters by the marines, that fingered the sky above the entrance to the valley. Against the bare crests they stuck out like bull's-eyes, but they went stubbornly to work, using telescopic lens to capture every sequence of the bitter episode unfolding below. For the Japs had permitted the marines to enter the valley. Then, suddenly, they closed in on them. The marines, caught in an indefensible position, withdrew as they fired. It was one of the most heroic little battles of the entire war, for of the 120 marines, only 10 did not fall. The two camera men caught all of this with their telescopic lens, and, in time, descended unscathed from their pinnacle. But neither you nor any one else ever saw or ever will see the pictures they took. The film was molded.

THE RIGHTEOUS NEW DEALERS

Union Center, Ill., March 28 — Why is it that in so many instances the most devout admirers of the New Deal are the worst offenders in violating the restrictions set up by their political gods? Certainly, Republicans violate the restrictions, too, but it is strange that those who are so highly in favor of the Washington setup assume that they should not be hampered by government directives, at least not too much.

Just a few examples: a radical Henry Wallacer has built at least three new houses, complete with heating plants and all plumbing, etc., since the building restrictions went into effect. This is rated as a nondefense area, so he does not have any building permits granted by federal authorities.

In the next county, an ardent "I'm Fer It" rebuilt one of his residences, installed a furnace where there had been none, put in a complete bathroom, and in all spent some $2,000. Understand that the present limit is $300 and in no instance is it permissible to install a heating plant where none existed. Plumbing equipment, lumber, etc., are, of course, also restricted. This same gentleman had his son deferred from the draft, claiming he was an essential, skilled maintenance man in his business, while in reality his chief occupation was pool playing, with a little office work for recreation.

Still another example is that of the man who, so they say, sat up all night with a part of the draft board to get deferment for a son who moved from a defense plant to a farm in order to rate it, despite the fact that he hardly knew a cow's tail from a pump handle. The office manager of the ration board in the same county has, I understand, a property interest in a tire service station thru which a surprisingly large number of rationed tires are released to customers who apply thru this station. A farmer, whose son suddenly remembered his love for mother earth and came home to rent a farm near his dad and thus escape military service, bought a tractor, paying above ceiling price knowingly, and reported the seller to the OPA. The old man recently took a trip to visit relatives in Iowa, using his farm gasoline coupons to make the trip. There are many more instances of violations by avowed New Deal supporters. Strange they are so strong for it, but still prefer not to abide by it.

THE LAUNDRY'S SIDE

Chicago, March 25.—E. K. complains of a lost sheet racket in laundries. There is also a racket going on among some of the public sending clothes to the laundries. Since the shortage of bedding the public is taking advantage of it and without batting an eye, is brazen enough to accuse the overworked laundry help of stealing their things and asking for things they never had in their bundles. I dare say three-fourths of the laundry customers throw their things helter-skelter in the bag [if they have one] and don't know what they send. Anything from hot water bottles to slippers, rubbers and silverware can be found. They say they make out a list; but try and check it. Most are incorrect. You send worn out clothes now and expect them to come back intact. As for exchanging sheets and slips, that's laughable. That's the racket the laundry has to contend with.

LORD OF ALL HE SURVEYS

Chicago, March 28. — This morning a man was struggling against the onrushing crowd to get off a street car at the Fullerton "L" station. He must have said something because I heard the conductor say, "Why don't you get off in the front?" And then, as the man disappeared in the crowd, the conductor yelled, "You are a farmer" after him.

This made me very sad, because, you see, I am a farmer. It set me thinking about the fields and the spring work, and as I saw the conductor watch some young women get off the car farther west, I thought of the barnyard rooster. Honest, he had me worried there for a while.

I looked back upon a wasted life. My fields are good, my buildings ample, and by honest toil I have become a man of means. But still, I am only a farmer; I have no social standing. Now, if I had moved to the city and worked just as hard, I might have been somebody. I might have risen to almost any height. Yes, I might even have become a street car conductor.

TYRANNOUS

Winnetka, Ill., March 28—The passage of the "work or jail" legislation is the worst thing that has happened to the Republic since it was founded. What can congress be thinking of to pass such tyrannous law?

It must be true that the members are beholden to the Communists for their election and they would rather sell their country down the river than lose their jobs. This bill, if passed by the senate, will clasp the final strangle hold of the New Deal upon the country.

"I HATE PEACE"

Toledo, O., March 28.—It is dawning on a lot of relatives of service men that the New Dealers are more fearful of peace than of war. They practically get stiff with hysteria if they think the Germans might give up before they get everything and everybody regulated, down to the last semi-colon. Probably most of them took to their beds when peace rumors flew thick and fast on March 27.

NEW LANDLORD

Chicago, March 29—We live on the first floor of a two flat building and have no lease. I have heard that the building is being sold. The present landlord lives on the second floor. If the building changes hands [1] do we have to move or [2] does the present landlord, if the new owner wishes to occupy one of the flats? 3. If we have to vacate, how much time will we be given?

V. P.

1. The sale does not alter your rights. If your tenancy is by the month, you would continue to be a tenant by the month.
2. Presumably the sales contract would contain an agreement on that point.
3. Under OPA restrictions are imposed on the previous arbitrary right of a landlord to evict a tenant at the end of an agreed term or on 30 days' notice in case tenancy is by the month. If landlord seeks to use for himself, his family or dependents, the premises must not be rented for six months. A purchaser of the landlord's interest seeking to move in must first pay one-third of the price.

INDUSTRY JOINS CRUSADE TO GET WORK FOR VETS

37,500 Jobs Pledged at Outset of Move

Headed by Capt. James Simpson Jr. of the marines, a group of business leaders yesterday formed "Industry for Veterans," a nonprofit organization to obtain pledges from industry that 25 per cent of all post-war jobs will go to war veterans.

Capt. James Simpson Jr.

Simpson, returned from 22 months' fighting with the marines in the South Pacific and placed on inactive status 10 days ago, announced the organization already has pledged 37,500 jobs for veterans from midwestern companies employing 150,000 persons. He said incorporators of "Industry for Veterans" besides himself include:

Gen. Charles G. Dawes, chairman of the City National Bank and Trust company; Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman, Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Col. A. A. Sprague, chairman, Sprague Warner-Kenny corporation; Col. Leon Mandel, vice president, Mandel Brothers; Max McGraw, president, McGraw Electric company; James Cunningham, president, Republic Flow Meters company; Joseph McNabb, president, Bell & Howell; Paul Butler, president, Butler Paper corporation; John R. Thompson Jr., president, Thompson restaurant chain; V. A. Wadsworth, executive vice president, Wescott Valve company, East St. Louis; George B. Stolley, general manager, Standard Brands, Inc., Pekin.

Finds Veterans Worrying

"We expect the organization to become nation-wide," Simpson said at a meeting in the Hotel Continental. The ex-marine captain said he got the idea in the two years he put in among the fighting men in the Solomons and other parts of the South Pacific. He said he put it up to "men whose judgment I respect" on his return home, and then went ahead. Capt. Simpson continued:

"I found the men in the South Pacific worrying principally about two things—when they would get back home and what their future would be when they got back. This plan is to assure the men while they are still out there worrying that they will be taken care of when they get home.

"We have the assurance of all forms of communication in the army, navy, and marines, all shipboard newspapers, all army sheets, that they will disseminate this information. The newspapers and radio have promised to help us, too. So we expect every man in every branch of the service will get the information immediately, and his morale will be lifted."

Asks Vets Seeking Jobs Out of City to See WMC

Disabled war veterans were urged yesterday by William H. Spencer, regional man power director, to use the WMC's job counseling program and save needless traveling to jobs which they may not want. Many, he said, have gone to other areas, led by rumors of good jobs, only to find them nonexistent, impermanent, or with no housing available. Job counselors have or can get full information about work in other cities, he said.

UNION NEGLECTS RETURNED VETS, CHRYSLER SAYS

The Chrysler corporation, which operates the Dodge Chicago plant, where engines for B-29 Super Fortresses are made in volume, yesterday accused the United Automobile, Aircraft, and Agricultural Implement Workers' union [CIO] of being derelict in its duty toward discharged war veterans who have taken jobs in the corporation's plants.

A large part of the corporation's 118,000 employes is represented by the CIO union, the largest in the country.

The accusation came as the Chrysler corporation prepared to meet with union officials this morning at its offices in Detroit, Mich., "to ask the union to insert a provision in its contract to "protect veterans who are in the corporation's employ or who will be employed."

Uprising Blamed on Union

A company official charged that if the U. A. W. had included a preferential seniority clause for veterans, "as the company requested during contract negotiations last November," the present uprising among veterans employed at the Dodge Chicago plant would "never have occurred."

At a meeting last Thursday, 150 ex-service men employed at the Dodge Chicago plant upbraided both corporation and union for allowing "15,000 draft dodgers to keep their jobs at the plant while veterans of this war are being dismissed for lack of seniority." Representatives of the Dodge Chicago plant veterans' group will attend the meeting today in Detroit.

Seniority Clause Is Issue

Union assertion that it had sought to have a clause inserted in its contract which would give veterans seniority equal to their service record was disputed by the corporation spokesman.

"The UAW proposal bars veterans from jobs until the union seniority list is exhausted," the spokesman contended. "The corporation wants the right to hire a veteran, who is capable of doing his job, and giving him a seniority equal to his war service."

P. C. BOYDEN, 48, ATTORNEY, FILES DIVORCE ACTION

Preston C. Boyden, 48, prominent lawyer, filed suit for divorce in Superior court yesterday, charging his wife, Mary Ayer Chase Boyden, 45, with desertion. In the suit Mrs. Boyden was charged with leaving the couple's home on Oct. 1, 1942. They were married June 22, 1918, and have three children, Mrs. Mary Ayer Jones, 25; Mrs. Barbara Jordan, 23, and Lt. Frederick Boyden, 20, an army pilot now serving in Europe. Mrs. Boyden now lives in Philadelphia, Pa. Boyden lives at 55 E. Cedar st.

SEARS WORKERS GRANTED BOOST IN WAGE BY WLB

The regional war labor board yesterday amended an earlier ruling and granted Sears Roebuck & Co. permission to increase wages for 7,847 of its 10,488 employes 1 to 5 cents an hour to correct inequities and eliminate substandards.

On Dec. 8 the board denied the company's petition to give the increases on a finding that existing wages of some workers were above 50 cents and that the company could make other adjustments up to 50 cents without board approval.

The national WLB in the textile workers case on Feb. 20 modified board policy on what constitutes "substandard" wages, said Edgar L. Warren, regional director. Following the national ruling the regional board granted partial approval of Sears' request.

SUPREME COURT JURISTS WINNING MICHIGAN RACE

Detroit, Mich., April 3 [Tuesday] (AP)—Early returns from Michigan's biennial spring election yesterday—the most apathetic in the state's history—indicated today a total vote of less than 400,000 out of a registration of more than 2,200,000.

Republican incumbents generally grabbed sizable leads over their opponents in balloting for minor state offices. In the nonpartisan State Supreme court race, Chief Justice Raymond W. Starr and Justice Walter H. North seized 3 to 1 margins over the other two contestants, 799 of the state's 3,856 precincts, giving North 36,314 votes, Starr 41,103, W. Leo Callahan 12,839, and Herman H. Dehnke 16,027.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

RIPS TAXPAYERS' PLEA FOR DELAY IN 100% ASSESSING

Sen. Walker Butler [R., Chicago], chairman of a legislative committee proposing that all taxable property in Illinois be put on a 100 per cent assessment basis, yesterday termed "unreasonable" a request from 17 groups of taxpayers that action be delayed until 146 more bills can be drafted to amend existing statutes.

Atty. Robert S. Cushman, representing the groups, said they wanted to scrutinize each bill before they passed judgment on the Butler committee's plan for equalizing assessments, which now are less than 37 per cent thruout the state, except in Cook county, which was placed on a 100 per cent ratio in 1943.

The legislative committee also proposed to cut present tax rates by 50 per cent.

"If they are going to treble assessments and only cut tax rates by half, it would seem that we were being robbed," Cushman said. Other spokesmen of the taxpayers' group will appear before the senate revenue committee in Springfield tomorrow, he added.

$890,898 Estate Is Left by Vail Rhodes Bucklin

The inheritance tax appraisal filed yesterday in County court showed that Vail Rhodes Bucklin, attorney and former official of the Stewart-Warner corporation, who died July 20, 1944, left an estate of $890,898. Of this amount, $245,707 will be deducted for federal inheritance taxes and $19,866 for state taxes. The estate is to be divided between the widow, Imogene, 1415 Astor st., and two children.

Survivors are the widow, Grace Ryan Smith, and a daughter, Winifred Smith McCormack of Washington, D. C., whose mother was the late Florence McCullough Smith.

NATIONAL WEEK BEING MARKED BY BOYS' CLUBS

The 21 boys' clubs in Chicago yesterday began their observance of Boys club week, proclaimed by Mayor Kelly and also being marked nationally. Sports tournaments, crafts and printing exhibits, and displays of the printing, radio, and gymnasium classes are scheduled. Lincoln club, 1725 Orchard st., the oldest, also is celebrating its 35th anniversary. The clubs have 30,000 members, including 300 girls. The Chicago Boys' club, of which the Lincoln club is an affiliate, is the largest, with 11,000 members. Boys representing some of the clubs received the mayor's proclamation in his office yesterday at a ceremony which was witnessed by Silas Strawn, representing the Boys Clubs of America.

'Con Con' Favored 2 to 1 in Poll of Illinois Bar

Members of the Illinois State Bar association voted nearly 2 to 1 in favor of calling a constitutional convention, it was announced yesterday in the organization's journal. The vote in Cook county was 1,012 to 399 in favor of a "con con," but downstate the proposal lost, 375 to 342. Governors will consider further action at a meeting in Chicago April 12.

Elizabeth Hoyt Wed in East to Marine Officer

BY JUDITH CASS

A WEDDING of interest to friends of the large Hoyt family took place at 4 p. m. Saturday in Alexandria, Va., when Miss Elizabeth Landon Hoyt became the bride of Capt. Wallace Atkinson of the marines. The bride's mother, Mrs. James P. Turner, and Dr. Turner went east for the ceremony and are expected back in Winnetka this week. The service was performed in the presence of the two families, gathered in the home of Mrs. Turner's half-brother, William B. Cunnyngham, and Mrs. Cunnyngham, former Winnetkans now living in Alexandria.

The former Miss Hoyt, daughter of the late William M. Hoyt II., divided her time last winter between the east and Chicago, living part of the time with her grandfather, N. Landon Hoyt, and Mrs. Hoyt in Lake Shore dr. She is a niece of N. Landon Hoyt Jr., and a great-niece of Mrs. Phelps B. Hoyt. Following her first marriage, which ended in divorce, she resumed her maiden name.

Capt. Atkinson, whose home is in Ohio, formerly lived in Evanston. He has been stationed in Washington, where he and his bride will remain until he receives new orders.

Announcement is made of the marriage yesterday in New York of Miss Mary Ann Ward, daughter of Mrs. Neil C. Ward of New York and Chicago, and of the late Mr. Ward, well known chemist, to Raymond James Linder, son of Hilary Francis Linder and the late Mrs. Linder of Memphis, Tenn. The ceremony took place at 11 a. m. in the Lady chapel of St. Patrick's cathedral, with Bishop John F. O'Hara, former president of the University of Notre Dame, officiating. A reception and luncheon followed at Sherry's.

Lt. Richard A. Ward of the navy gave his sister in marriage. Among the guests at the wedding were Theodore Sheldon and his daughter, Miss Peggy Sheldon. Mr. Linder and his bride will go to Palm Beach on a wedding trip and then will be at home in Long Beach, N. Y., for the summer.

Here and There

Twenty feet of snow is a prospect that would appeal to few Chicagoans at present, but nothing could be more welcome to two ardent skiers such as Lt. Everett L. Millard and Edgerton A. Throckmorton. For some time Lt. Millard, who is stationed in New York as a naval reserve instructor, has been saving up his leave for a skiing outing. Arriving here several days ago, he spent the week-end in Highland Park with his mother, Mrs. Everett L. Millard. Today he and Mr. Throckmorton will leave for 10 days of skiing in the snow-covered mountains around Alta, Utah. The Alta lodge, at which they will stay, now is managed by Ted DeBoer, who, like them, is a member of the Snow Chase club.

During Lt. Millard's stay here he was able to have a reunion with his brother, Ensign Malcolm S. Millard, who is at home for the first time in eight months after navy duty in South America. Ensign Millard will be with his wife in Deerfield for another week or so.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McLucas [Grace Beezley] of Barrington are being congratulated on the birth of their second son, Bruce Beezley, March 24 in West Suburban hospital.

Today's Events

The Illinois Opera guild will present Selma Kaye, dramatic soprano, and Reinhold Schmidt, bass-baritone, in a musical at 11 a. m. today in the Arts club. Rhea Shelters will be accompanist.

Members of the Chicago and the Evanston-North Shore Wells college clubs will gather at 12:30 p. m. today in the Racquet club for their annual Easter luncheon. Miss Miriam Small, professor of English at the college, will speak. She will be introduced by Mrs. Albert R. Martin Jr., third vice president of the Wells College Alumnae association, who will be hostess at the luncheon and with whom Miss Small is staying during her visit here.

Mrs. Robert H. Morse Jr. will entertain at tea at 3 p. m. today for the committee in charge of the Child's Fear of Friendly Dog Can Be Overcome by Parents

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Recently we paid a visit to my brother's home," writes a mother. "Just after we arrived and were standing about on the front lawn a big, friendly dog came bounding over the hedge from the next yard. Our small son, Ted, aged 3, put out both hands to the animal and it made a playful lunge which bowled the child over. What a time we had!

"Ted wouldn't budge out of the house the entire time we were there unless he was carried, and since we've been home he won't go outdoors to play unless I stay with him. Yesterday a neighbor's dog paused at our gate and Ted almost had hysterics.

"I like animals but I'm somewhat timid about them. Do you suppose Ted has inherited a fear of them? I don't want to force the child, but neither do I want him to be terrified every time he happens to see a dog."

By actual records of experiment and also by my own experience and observation I am convinced that children have no inherent fear of animals. What fear is evinced is acquired. It may be acquired thru some one who fears dogs inculcating fear in them, or by a direct experience such as this little boy had.

Comparatively few children are bitten by dogs, but many children when little have been jumped on or knocked down by a dog in play. The suddenness, the feeling of this strength pitted against them, and the fall are quite naturally terrifying. Also the loud, explosive barking of a dog often affronts the nerves. Suppose, in a world as full of unknown quantities as theirs is, you saw rushing at you a big creature who came head-on and knocked you down like a tenpin, wouldn't you be chary of the subsequent approaches of the same animal or any others of his ilk? Prevent this if possible.

But when this has happened we have to do some reconditioning, in the parlance of psychology. And there are various ways in which this can be done. The first is negative—care should be taken that the frightening experience isn't repeated. Every opportunity should be made to let a child pet or be around dogs on familiar terms. Naturally, this should be done only with good natured and friendly dogs used to children.

Talk to the dog yourself and pet him again and again, without even suggesting that the child do likewise. Talk about his soft ears, his friendly eyes, and feed him something he loves. Tell your small son or daughter stories about brave and faithful dogs. Build up a pleasant conception of these animals. Gradually this fear, like other fears of childhood, can be dispelled.

And, last but not least, the best way to cure a child of his fear of dogs is to let him have a puppy of his own. They'll learn to romp and play together and to be the best of friends and be well worth any trouble it may entail.

Thru the Looking Glass

Cosmetic hosiery will be coming into its own again any day now, and it's time to begin conditioning the legs to make the skin smooth and soft so that the makeup will go on evenly and look its best.

The little hard bumps and flaky skin that months of cold weather may have induced can be banished with consistent care. When you take your daily shower or tub bath, give the legs an extra going over with a fairly stiff brush and plenty of soap to coax the rough spots away and restore clarity and a fresh pinkness to the skin. All the defects won't vanish with a single treatment, but they can be overcome in short order if you're persistent.

After bathing, massage the legs with a softening cream or body lotion, spreading it on lavishly, rubbing until it disappears. This is the part of the treatment many of us would like to skip, figuring it is a waste of time. However, it is important, and the skin that has taken a beating all winter long from wind and cold will lap up the soothing preparation. The lubricant will restore the skin to a velvety softness, making a smooth surface which will help you to do a slick job with makeup.

Above all, with leg makeup, it's necessary to keep the legs free of hair and fuzz. There's nothing quite so unattractive as a pair of bare legs covered with a stubbly or downy coat of hair. We believe the abrasive types of hair removers are superior to a razor, quick as the latter may be, but, whichever you decide to use, make it a point to see that the operation is performed regularly. Cosmetic stockings are meant to simulate sheer hosiery, and that's an impossibility when a furry growth mars the marble smoothness of the legs.

Rich Materials Ready if You Sew Your Own

BY REA SEEGER

If you're making your own spring wardrobe, here's good news. Good looking materials that are matched perfectly in tint or shade have arrived, ready for home sewing binges.

A dozen basic colors, which include navy, black, coral, yellow, lime, mauve, aqua, green, and red, feature several textures. One, a homespun weave, is ideal for one piece coat dresses or suits; a diagonal weave is perfect for casual type dresses, and a material with bumpy or tiny knot surface is a winner for summer suits or suit dresses. This last named weave is semi-transparent and therefore cool and comfortable for warm weather.

Companion prints feature the same basic colors as the other monotones, with contrasting printed designs. Most of these prints are small in outline—florals, geometric figures, tiny stripes, and blurred checks or dots. There are many new contrasts, such as copper brown with navy, French pink with navy, and light brown with aqua. All are the popular rayon materials featured exclusively by a well known textile maker who brings out new and varied companion prints, weaves, and colors each spring.

If the print and plain combinations fail to click with your present plans for a wardrobe, smart two or even three tone combinations also are available. These materials have been so expertly keyed that they blend perfectly with any other color in the showing.

Outstanding colors are the rich shades of mauve and violet, becoming to almost any woman. The French pink and aqua tones blend exquisitely, and the new coral shade is perfect with either brown, black, or deep navy for contrast. Every color is springlike, and the materials are tempting for all ambitious home dress designers who want something new and fresh for a summer wardrobe.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

First Hand Information

A young woman, eager to break into advertising, wrote for advice to the woman advertising manager of a large eastern firm. A copy of the advertising manager's reply was sent to this column.

Reminding the midwestern white collar girl of excellent courses in advertising such as those given by Northwestern university, and mentioning correspondence courses listed in the office of the Advertising Federation of America, the writer suggests:

"Why not apply your eagerness to enter advertising in your own home city? Get a good text book, such as the "Hotchkiss Outline of Advertising," published by Macmillan. This is an interesting, readable book that gives the early history of advertising and outlines the essentials and methods and applications of all types of advertising. Then, while you are reading the book, study the newspapers of your city, the promotion letters you receive thru the mail, the circulars you see in beauty shops and food stores. If you find they do not make you want to buy their products—that is, if you are a logical consumer of the products—and if you find they are lacking in some principle of advertising as outlined in Mr. Hotchkiss' book, you have a sound basis for criticism. Before you criticize, however, be sure you are right and have prepared an alternate advertisment which, in your opinion, would do the job better. Backed by sincere feelings, you cannot help but make an impression on the advertiser.

"Don't start too high. Remember the larger businesses in your city have at their command the best advertising advice. Start with the smaller people — the local corset shop, beauty parlor, the milliner. As you no doubt know, it is a good idea to stay within the provinces of your own knowledge. Any girl who is eager to get into advertising, and who has anything to offer the profession will arrive!"

Nobody Loves Us Dept

Our purists [and they are many] are correcting the use of "most embarrassed" instead of "more embarrassed" when speaking of two persons—and right they are! . . . And, a gentleman reports in high glee that 'tis utter nonsense to say the Edison company had just one telephone trunk line in 1910—and right he is—it was in 1893, sir. . . . Girl Remedies Cause of Her Datelessness

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

This is the story of Miss N. D. F. [Nothing Doing on Fridays], a high school junior who wasn't rating too well in the dating department until she took herself aside one lonely evening to see what had put her off the beam.

ON THE SOLID SIDE

It was difficult at first to face the situation truthfully and without prejudice, but one fact loomed out: she just wasn't popular with boys.

And, after mulling that thought over for a while, the gal was smart enough to come to the conclusion that she wasn't popular with boys simply because she didn't know them well enough and she didn't know them because she didn't give them a chance to know her. So far, hers had been an all-girl life. She talked with girls, walked with girls, and completely surrounded herself socially with girls, hoping and waiting for some fine hunk of heartbreak to spot her charms and snatch her out of that harpy huddle.

But things don't happen that way, so the young honeychile sharpened her wits, changed her hair-do, and went out to join the dramatic club, the debating club, a Y group, and took a job cub reporting on the school paper—anything just to meet and work with fellows. There was nothing lap-happy about her new attitude, she wasn't chasing any one, she just realized that to be popular a gal must let boys get to know her, and the quickest way is to be available for friendship.

She still found time to spend with her girl friends, but, knowing that life is a 50-50 proposition of fellows and gals, she divided her time that way. Most important, she made it a point to be seen frequently with girls who did date. Many times gals of a feather flock together because there is a certain social security in numbers, but often fellows, without further investigation, presume that any steady member of a dateless group is not dateable material.

And as a final step in her self-analysis Miss N. decided to face a final truth. She realized that white telephones, bearskin rugs, six dates, and seven orchids a week happen just in the movies. The gal made up her mind to be dated by one or two fellows—not hold out for the half dozen she used to dream about. She picked her men and concentrated; before long they were concentrating on her.

For the extremely fashion-minded

Reducing is hard work? Nonsense!

Not when you do it this way . . . Passive Reducing at the Elizabeth Arden Salon . . . it's easy as lolling in a hammock! In fact, you do loll . . . completely relaxed, completely at ease . . . reading or drowsing . . . while every spot that needs to be slimmed gets exercised by electrical impulse. And if you're not sure just where you need slenderizing . . . if you're not satisfied with the way you look . . . our experts will weigh you, measure you, tell you just what must be done to reach the ideal.
Not very expensive, considering, is it?

JOURNEY UNDERGROUND

INSTALMENT XXXIII

Mme. Andre brought some food tickets to Madame for us. She also gave us a packet of cigarets. They were Gauloise and much better than those we bought from M. Pelerin at 140 francs for 20. They were troop cigarets, and the tobacco contained many small pieces of wood.

This made rolling new cigarets from the tobacco very difficult, because the wooden splinters punctured the paper.

That evening after supper M. Pelerin came to the house to take Herk and myself to the hardware store, where we were to have our hair cut.

M. Pelerin had been to the center of Paris that day, and brought back a propaganda leaflet that the collaborators were handing out.

On one side of it there was a picture of Churchill in front of the BBC microphone, promising "before the leaves of autumn fall, France will be liberated." On the other side there was a drawing of a Parisian street cleaner smiling, and saying, "There are no English here." In one corner was a caricature of a very bedraggled and downtrodden Churchill.

"They are right; where is the invasion?" M. Pelerin said. "Claud, you had better put some leaves in your pocket and take them back to Mr. Churchill to show him that they have fallen and that we are still waiting."

Remembering Churchill's speech very well, I contradicted M. Pelerin. "Mr. Churchill declared, 'before the leaves of autumn fall there will be heavy fighting on the continent,'" I told him.

But nothing I could say convinced them that this was the case. Monsieur maintained resolutely, "The invasion must come this year." Soon after we left for le Grand's hardware shop.

M. le Grand led us thru the shop into the dining room where we had been before. There must have been eight or nine people in the room.

After shaking hands with every one, I saw Frank in the back of the room having his hair cut. His barber was an odd looking man whose hair was even longer than Frank's, something which a person seeing Frank would have thought impossible. The barber was relating a story about a month he had spent in prison.

On the opposite side of the room there was a young man listening intently to the radio, holding a pad and pencil in his hand. His long black hair, deeply set and pensive eyes, and tortoise shell glasses made him look like a left wing intellectual. He paid no attention to the conversation in the room, but when he tuned in Radio London he curtly told every one to be quiet. Grasping his pencil more firmly than ever he put his ear to the loudspeaker.

"He is listening to the personal messages from London," M. le Grand whispered.

"They are coded instructions for the underground, so we must be quiet."

As we listened in silence to these messages, "The green worm is in the closet," or "Carie loves her pink umbrella," the young man remained with his pencil poised, but when the program had ended he had written nothing. Rather dejectedly he threw himself down on one of the dining room chairs and said, "Another night and still no message."

This young man, Felix, spoke impressively about his part in the underground, and said he was going to London within a month unless the allies invaded before then.

Herk and I were called to the other end of the room to have our hair cut. Frank sat with us and gave us his opinion of the members of the underground in the room. As Frank could speak far better French than I, and saw these people almost every day, I was interested to discover what he thought of them.

"Pelerin and Felix love to talk as if they were in on every big secret of the underground movement," he said, "so much so that in the air force they would be court-martialed for bad security. Really, neither of them do very much. But take M. le Grand, he says almost nothing, but works actively with two or three resistance organizations."

The next few days passed uneventfully. Herk spent most of his time listening to the radio, starting with the BBC program for schools, Maria Rabbit, which was followed by recipes, nature talks, and flower garden talks. So it was only in the evening, when the command performances or dramas were broadcast, that Herk was really engrossed in the radio.

Herk told me about his wife and baby back in Colorado. He had moved to that state just a year before he was conscripted. While working on the railway somewhere near Denver he met his future wife, and they were married soon after. They lived with her mother, who owned a ranch and 200 head of cattle. Le Pere couldn't have been more impressed when he discovered that Herk was head of a ranch on which there were 200 head of cattle that would certainly one day belong to him. Pere Maurice classified Herk as a "rich" American.

After I had been at the Maurices' two weeks I organized my afternoon activities. Just after luncheon I went into the dining room to study French until 5:30 or 6. In the basement I had found some old textbooks which Michiline had used as a child.

I started with the most elementary grammar and history books. I read them very carefully, stopping to look up all the words with which I was not acquainted. When Madame started preparing dinner I sat in the kitchen with her, pronouncing words I had learned. Madame was very helpful and sat patiently for hours while I practiced the sounds of the a, b, c's and syllables.

Part of the afternoon I spent helping Herk. We devised a list of all the different ways in which an inspector might demand one's name, age, occupation, and residence and said these over and over again, so that Herk could learn to distinguish them. It was a long, hard task, and a discouraging one. After two weeks, when we expected him to be perfect, at least once in the course of the evening he named his birthplace when we asked him how old he was. One error like that would have been enough for the police. His accent was what la Grandmere called "formidable," but M. Pelerin thought he would pass as a Frenchman from the north.

Late that afternoon when Herk and I were studying in the dining room, the door bell rang and a friend of Madame's came in for a long gossip. As la Grandmere admitted the visitor, Madame shut us in the dining room, saying, "This is an old friend, but it is better that she knows nothing of you, so be as quiet as possible."

It was easy to see why this woman was not told. She gossiped and gossiped. Her speech was so rapid that I could not understand anything she said. The few bits that I was able to pick up were stupid tales of other people.

Herk and I became more and more exasperated and irritated, but there was nothing to do other than to sit quietly and wait for her go. I had a tremendous urge to cough, which after half an hour became almost uncontrolable. An hour and a half passed before this woman left and all that time Herk and I sat tensely, not daring to make a move. This physical strain was great, and when she left I was so stiff I could hardly stand up.

Before dinner that evening we were again caught in the dining room. This time a Jew had come to get some meat that Louis had left for him at the house. This man had been in hiding ever since the occupation. He lived in a cellar near-by, and dared to go out only after dark. The new anti-Semitic laws in France, imposed by the Germans, decreed that every Jew should have a special Jewish identity card and wear the yellow star of David on his left side. Rather than do this the man had gone into hiding, and as he had no papers he was given no food ration cards and was forced to buy all his food on the black market thru friends whom he could trust.

Fortunately he stayed only 15 minutes, so the period of our discomfort was shorter. These two visitors taught us a lesson; whenever we heard the door bell ring we immediately rushed for the stairs so we could sit or lie in the bedroom and move about carefully.

One day Pere Maurice was even later than usual for lunch, but when he finally came in and did his little act of mopping his brow and exhaling heavily he started to tell us a story so interesting that the women certainly wouldn't interrupt him with complaints of his tardiness.

"I have been speaking to a German this morning," he began. We were all, of course, very curious and immediately wanted to know the details. He told us that he had made a call on a client whom he suspected of petty collaboration. They had gone to a cafe and while they were there a friend of his client's came up to the table and sat down.

"At first I thought he was Alsatian," le Pere said, "but I later found out he was head administrator of the German police in this area."

Le Pere explained that the Germans liked to talk and think of themselves as protectors of European civilization, so he asked the German with an air of innocent ignorance, "With the bolshevik and allied advances, what is the fate of Europe?" The man shrugged his shoulders and mumbled, "We no longer know."

Federal Reserve Banker to Give U. of C. Lecture

John K. Langum, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, will give a free public lecture on "The Supply of Reserve Funds and the Pattern of Rates" at 4 p. m. tomorrow in the social science building at the University of Chicago. His talk is one in a series on "War and Post-war Banking Problems" sponsored by the department of economics of the university.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 2—William Powell and Myrna Loy's next, which was called "The Guardian Angel," will have to be reshuffled a bit. In the Thin Man series Bill carried a glass in his hand and wore a smiling leer on his face. With that makeup, how could he be the guardian angel of anybody? Couldn't he reform? . . . Lillian Gish plays a sentimental, rather silly mother in "Duel in the Sun" who likes to play Chopin and drink brandy while taking care of her sons, Gregory Peck and Joe Cotten. "Aren't you a little too young for those boys?" said I to Lillian. "Well, you see, I gave birth to one of them when I was 5. They do that in India, too, you know!" said she. . . . Deanna Durbin must have heard about the movie queens of old. Some time ago, Howard Greer went to the studio to supervise fittings of new clothes he'd designed. He appeared in sports suit and shirt. Before he entered the presence, an assistant director handed him a tie and said, "Please wear this. Miss Durbin doesn't like gentlemen without ties." As he was leaving, forgetting he had it on, same voice said, "I want the tie back, please—it belongs to props. We have to account for it."

A Star Praises Another

It ain't bad when an Academy winner starts boasting about another one. Bing Crosby went to Glendale to catch "Here Come the Waves" and caught the sneak preview of "Valley of Decision." He said Greer Garson and Gregory Peck were wonderful. So's the picture. And, says he, "Why doesn't some one star Peck as young Lincoln?" Because Lincoln has never been a success on the screen. . . . Dick Powell's taking no chances. He goes almost daily to Metro to lunch with June Allyson.

She Didn't Want Fame

Nunnally Johnson tells the story of little Clare Sanders, who lived in Hollywood and tried for several years to get into a picture. She finally did, then fell out, because on the first day at work she came down with measles. She was 7 then. After measles, she played Mrs. Miniver's little girl in "Mrs. Miniver." She was good, too. She's now back home in England. Nunnally had a letter from her mother: "I want to thank you for all your kindnesses to my little girl. I don't really care if she never acts again. You see, she only went into pictures so her father, who hadn't seen her in three years, could look at her on the screen." The father is a British army officer stationed in Africa. He had "Mrs. Miniver" flown to Africa. He and his men saw it, he wept a little, then went right back to fighting for king and country.

Old Fashioned, Isn't She?

It's going to be a white wedding for Mary K. Dodson, Paramount designer, and Lt. Morris Smith, come May. Joan Caulfield and Caroline Butler are cracking out with a bachelorette party for her at Romanoff's. . . . If they're going to bring back the whipping post for wife beaters, what are they going to do to the mothers who neglect their offspring—or shouldn't one ask? . . . Tommy Mitchell tells me he's selling off some of his paintings—those he doesn't think will live. He wouldn't part with a Picasso for anything. He believes that 50 years from now, they'll be even more valuable than they are today. . . . Did you know that the real name of Dewey Alamo, the colored comic with the Andrews sisters, is Pigmeat Markham? He changed it on account of the meat shortage. . . . Moss Hart's brother Bernard may ring wedding bells with Beatrice Cole. . . . Peggy Ryan's No. 1 beau, Lt. Charles Maxwell, spent Easter with her. He's been flying a B-29 over Japan. They met on "Meet the People." . . . The Maj. Norwood Smiths are expecting. She's the daughter of Marco. . . . Ann Sothern is taking thyroid treatments to reduce. I hope she's more careful than Laird Cregar was. He took treatments without consulting his doctor. . . . Ozzie Nelson says Hitler's days are getting fuehrer and fuehrer!"

What is your best red point saving idea? Have you concocted some casserole dish or other entree which is easy on ration points and which pleases your family almost as much as an extra-tender Swiss steak would please them?

Or have you a favorite sugar saving dessert? And could you use $5? There's a daily prize of $5 for a good war time recipe, so send in your best liked point saver and let us test it for a possible prize! Write or type the recipe legibly, and don't forget any of the ingredients! Mail it to Recipe Contest, Chicago Tribune. Hundreds of cooks have been prize winners. Why not you?

There's a bumper crop of southern spring beets in the market to join cabbage, onions, and carrots on the plentiful food list. Use the tops of young beets as a green. They're rich in iron and vitamins.

These spring beets are tender and full of flavor. They're particularly good "Harvard" style, in a sweet-sour sauce which may be made with vinegar, or lemon or orange juice. Honey or corn sirup may be used as the sweetener if sugar rations are short.

Beet soup is delicious, too. So are beet salads, altho we must be careful about mixing beets into a combination vegetable salad because of their bleeding color which may give a too well mixed salad an unappetizing, sloppy look.

If you'd like a fine collection of beet recipes, including attractive ways to serve beets and beet greens as vegetables, recipes for beet pickles, beet borsch, and beet salads, just send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of THE TRIBUNE. The recipes will be mailed promptly.

Turnips and peas are an attractive and palatable vegetable combination, especially when spiced with the faintest whiff of garlic.

Turnips and Peas with Garlic
[Serves six]

4 white turnips
2 pounds fresh peas
2 tablespoons melted margarine
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Clove of garlic

Peel turnips and boil in salted water until tender. Drain and dice. Cook peas covered in boiling, salted water until tender, using a very slight amount of water so that the peas needn't be drained. Combine vegetables with seasonings and peeled garlic clove. Cover and set over low heat 5 minutes. Remove garlic and serve.

Ever dress up baked apples with lemon flavor? Cut six very thin slices of lemon for six baking apples. Wash and core the apples, place them in a baking dish and pour a mixture of ¼ cup sugar, ¼ cup lemon juice, and ¼ cup water over them. Place a lemon slice atop each apple. Bake covered until apples are tender. The sharp lemony flavor is pleasant. Serve these apples as a dessert, hot or cold. Honey may be used instead of sugar.

TURN IN WASTE FATS!

Spanish Hash
[Serves six]

4 medium cooked potatoes
½ small onion
1 pimiento [optional]
1 medium green pepper
2 tablespoons fat
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 eggs
6 tablespoons milk

Dice cooked potatoes and chop onion, pimiento, and green pepper fine. Melt fat in frying pan and add potatoes, onion, pimiento, green pepper, and seasonings. Cook slowly until mixture is heated thru. Then add slightly beaten eggs mixed with milk. Stir carefully until the eggs have coated the potatoes and the dish has a scrambled appearance. Serve immediately.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 spade.	Pass	2 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: queen of clubs.

When a play has everything to gain and nothing to lose, it must appeal to the economy of every right thinking bridge player. Yet, not long ago I was a witness at a tournament where 10 players in quick succession became victims of the same optical illusion which today's hand provided.

The bidding proceeded along normal lines. West's jump to four spades, while somewhat aggressive, cannot be criticized. He has considerable values over his opening bid, and there can be no point in showing the second suit, inasmuch as there is no anxiety to reach a no trump contract.

The opening lead was the queen of clubs, which was ducked all around. The jack of clubs was continued and declarer ruffed. A low spade was led to the queen and the diamond finesse succeeded. Dummy was reëntered with the king of spades and the diamond finesse repeated. At this point all declarers pulled the last trump for fear that the ace of diamonds would be ruffed by the opposition. When the diamonds failed to break the declarer tried to win a trick with the queen of hearts, but due to the unfortunate location of the adverse cards, was unsuccessful. The losses were, therefore, two hearts, one diamond, and a club, down one. Pulling the last trump could not possibly be the correct play.

The fear of having the ace of diamond ruffed is unfounded, because if it is to be ruffed, nothing can be gained by pulling the trump, inasmuch as a diamond trick must still be lost. There is only one trump outstanding, and if the ace of diamonds is trumped, declarer loses nothing because the remaining diamond can now be taken care of by Dummy's last trump. Declarer should therefore lay down the high diamond; if everybody follows, the last trump can be pulled.

If every one does not follow, there is still a chance that the person who is out of diamonds will also be out of spades, in which case the ace will live and the seven of diamonds can be trumped in Dummy. Two chances, it would seem, are better than one.

TOMORROW'S PROBLEM.

Film 'Thunder Rock' Is Adult and Intelligent

"THUNDER ROCK"

By Mae Tinée

An adult and thoughtful movie, "Thunder Rock" is the story of a man who tried to run away from himself and from a world he found too ugly to look upon. A young and enthusiastic reporter at the close of World War I., David Charleston watches the sparks of world conflagration glow and multiply. When the smouldering fire starts to consume the smaller countries of Europe he makes a valiant effort to impress a people who would not hear, but finally abandons his profession and England and escapes to the solitude of a lighthouse.

He peoples his lonely, seabound home with humans of his own making, fancying them from the names in the log book of a ship lost in the vicinity many years before. They, too, were fugitives from their own countries, fleeing from oppressions of various sorts. His ghosts teach him a lesson and give him new hope.

The cast, led by Mr. Redgrave, is an able one, providing many excellent characterizations. The theme is an intangible and fanciful one, but, as interpreted on the screen, it provides intelligent entertainment. Both the film and some of the lines in it are long, but if you like a movie with an idea behind it, I'm inclined to think you'll enjoy "Thunder Rock."

Inquiring Camera Girl

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Elmer Whittaker, Taunton, Mass.]

THE QUESTION

When in your experience on the stage did you want most to laugh when you weren't supposed to?

WHERE ASKED

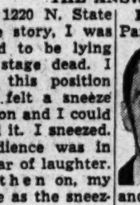
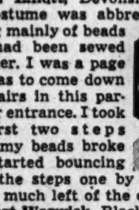
THE ANSWERS

Alexander D'Arcy, 1220 N. State st.—According to the story, I was supposed to be lying on the stage dead. I was in this position when I felt a sneeze coming on and I could not hold it. I sneezed. The audience was in an uproar of laughter. From then on, my friends referred to me as the sneezing corpse.

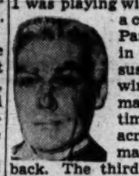


Philip Tonge, Croydon hotel—Paris in "Romeo and Juliet" gets stabbed and is covered with a cloak. I played Paris and after I was dead the Friar came on the stage, lifted the cloak, and put it back. Each time he did this, unknown to the audience, he'd pull my hair and tickle my nose to make me laugh.

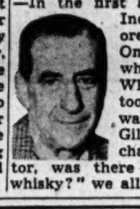
Toni Gilman, 2501 Farwell av.—I have a line in this play, "It's this awful waiting—waiting for the hours to pass—what is the time?" When I said this line a man in the front row helpfully replied, "10:15." The woman sitting beside him, apparently his wife, was horrified and said, "She doesn't mean you."



Beth Elliott, Devonshire hotel—My costume was abbreviated, consisting mainly of beads that had been sewed together. I was a page and was to come down the stairs in this particular entrance. I took my first two steps when my beads broke and started bouncing down the steps one by one. There wasn't much left of the costume.



Hunter Gardner, Croydon hotel—I was playing with a very prominent actress in "Peter Pan." She was to fly in thru the window, suspended by invisible wire, and alight on the mantel. The first two times they swung her across she missed the mantel and swung back. The third time she knocked down a side of the scenery.



Robert Warwick, Blackstone hotel—In the first act of "Ten Little Indians" drinks [colored water] are served. One night I put real whisky in the bottle. When the characters took their drinks it was funny. When Miss Gilman said, after a character dies, "Doctor, was there something in his whisky?" we all nearly laughed.

ON THE AISLE

By Claudia Cassidy

"Venus" Still Has Mary Martin but It Speaks Too Low for the Huge Opera House

"Speak Low When You Speak Love," chants Mary Martin in "One Touch of Venus," and I agree with her as with Ogden Nash and Shakespeare, if I have them in the right order, but the trouble is you have to shout loud when you speak love or anything else from the stage of our handsome, velvet chaired, slightly sumptuous but definitely commodious opera house. That special song is seasons old now, and just as lovely as ever when it floats seductively over the rustling rhumba that is the undercurrent of Kurt Weill's score. But last night you couldn't hear it. Miss Martin sang it with the all but voiceless James Sheridan and it didn't even get an encore.

I'm not sure which got the worst break from booking this intimate musical so greedily in a huge house, the musical or the customers, but my sympathy goes to the customers who have a right to be within cozy distance of the show they pay to see. "One Touch of Venus" was never my pick of the musical basket even in its earliest New York incarnation with its original, and better, cast. But it has charm, notably that of the lissome, lovely, and utterly seductive Mary Martin, and Miss Martin is an actress who thrives on nearness. Slim as a reed in voice and figure, but with a curving voluptuousness that does neither of them any harm, she ought to be acutely visible, not to say vocal, to the last row in the house.

Well, she doesn't, tho her diamond cut brilliance carries better than anything else in the play, except Agnes de Mille's dances, by no means her best work, but agreeable to watch and at their best in the miming of piquant little Atty Van Den Berg, who has replaced the exoticism of Sono Osato with the clean cut verve of Jooss training. When Miss Martin as Venus shows the little dancer how to turn angles into curves, you have nice ballotic going in musical comedy style.

The story, as you know, is an aftermath of "I Married an Angel," only this time Venus comes to earth by way of a statue brought to life and she, too, has her candors not quite of this earth, with the gift of speaking smutty lines without a smirk. An art collector, who would be the unhappily stuffy Mr. Boles, desires her, and she desires a barber, who would be the voiceless Mr. Sheridan, rather like Donald Duck in moments of crisis. She almost comes to earth, but decides that suburban life isn't quite the Olympus she had imagined, and so sends down her earthy counterpart, who, fortunately for the barber, is herself.

Mr. Perelman has some sharp lines but not much comedy, and Mr. Nash's lyrics are sometimes enchanting and sometimes a dull effort to go Cole Porter. Mr. Weill's tunes are amiable, sometimes delightful, and sometimes reminiscent of "Lady in the Dark," which is all right. He wrote that, too. Miss Bond is amusing in a commonplace way as the girl who almost got the barber, and Helen Raymond is hoarse and hearty indeed as her mother. But no one gets within reaching distance of Miss Martin's cool enchantment, edged with that touch of another world that makes you think she might really be a goddess, whether in trailing robes or black satin, or the Mainbocher garb she swipes right out of the department store window.

Notes

"The Glass Menagerie" looks like a smash hit in New York, with good reviews to back up the resounding verdict of the first night audience. "Ten Little Indians" moves to the Studebaker April 15, when Mae West will have departed for Detroit. "Dear Ruth" takes over the Harris April 16 . . . The Shuberts hope to have the Majestic ready for occupancy by June, tho remodeling will have to wait on priorities . . . Louis Sudler, well known Chicagoan, will be soloist with the Mendelssohn club in Orchestra hall May 8.

"ONE TOUCH OF VENUS"

Horowitz Does New Prokofieff Work Superbly

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

Something about the music of Prokofieff apparently arouses Vladimir Horowitz to an alertness that even that human volcano rarely achieves at other times, and when, as last night in his second recital of the season in Orchestra hall, he is permitted to reveal a major new work of his compatriot, the entire program gains in luster.

This time it was Prokofieff's new Eighth sonata—composed during the years 1939-1944—to which Horowitz gave the first public American performance. Judging by the pianist's masterly exposition it is measurably a better composition than the composer's exciting but somewhat vacuous Seventh sonata, which Horowitz first played here last season.

It is, for one thing, a more concentrated and logical work, tho it also exhibits some of the same curious mixture of styles. The first movement is grim and rugged, with some of the feeling that certain people like to call "revolutionary" when they meet it in the music of Shostakovich. Yet is is pure Prokofieff, now and again oddly suggestive of the late Beethoven in the short crytic phrases which seem to imply more than they actually express, and in the widely separated registers in which it is set upon the keyboard.

The discrepancies of Prokofieff's present style again come to the fore in the slow movement, which despite some deftly inserted dissonantal accompanying chords, breathes a warm melody that resembles Brahms in his more lilting Viennese moods, and now and then even flirts a bit with Kreisler. Prokofieff himself is said to describe this as his "lyrical" sonata, and if so must have been thinking of this central movement, for, despite the generally repressed character of the music, it is hardly lyrical in the accepted sense. The finale gains in brilliance, with a tarantella-like movement merging into a staccato waltz that is one of the arresting features of the entire work. Horowitz played the piece with vaulting enthusiasm and profound absorption, and while the pianist may thank heaven for the composer, the reverse in this case should also certainly be true.

As to the rest of the program, Horowitz in the main subjugated his colossal technical mechanism in the pursuit of the subtle nuance and the sensitive phrase. Piano playing of more exquisite finish is hardly to be encountered in our time than his playing of Czerny's "La Ricordanza" variations, two Scarlatti sonatas which were happily added to the printed program, or the four Chopin mazurkas, of which the last, the most familiar of the several in B minor, was literally a re-creation. The voice of ancient Russia sounded dolefully in Tschaikowsky's "Dumka," and Borodin's "At the Convent" emerged as a bit of impressive tone painting replete with tolling bells and chanting voices.

Unheard by this reviewer Liszt's Sixth Hungarian Rhapsody closed the program after which, according to report, four encores followed, including Chopin's A minor waltz, one of Samuel Barber's "Excursions," and the pianist's transcription of "Stars and Stripes."

Animal Facts Told in Exhibit of Miniatures

An Indian elephant has big ears, but an African elephant has much bigger ones. Grizzly bears are larger than brown bears. And one of the horns that the white rhinoceros, which isn't really white, grows on its unlovely snout, is much longer than the similar appendage on the face of the black rhinoceros, which isn't really black.

These are bits of information about animals, apparent at a glance at the Louis Paul Jones "Animals in Miniature" collection, which goes on display for two months beginning tomorrow in the Chicago Natural History [Field] museum. The models, which are uniformly one-tenth life size, include 65 of the most important mammals in North and South America, Africa, Asia, and Australia.

Louis Paul Jonas is a prominent taxidermist and formerly a staff member of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, where his miniatures recently were displayed. It is accepted practice in taxidermy to make a miniature which is the model for the life size mannequin over which the animal hide eventually is stretched.

Jonas, however, is said to be the first taxidermist to note that, by keeping his models to one scale and keeping the various animals proportional to each other, they could be developed for educational purposes. His making the models of latex rubber also increased the educational possibilities inasmuch as the miniatures can be handled without breaking.

Smallest miniature on display will be a deer mouse, which will be shown with a life size cutout. The miniature could keep house in a thimble with room to let. Other figures among the carefully sculptured models are the snow leopard, yak, the bongo, a rare antelope, the giraffe, a chetah pursuing an auroche, lion, gorilla, kangaroo, and giant panda.

In general, the models were made for exhibits now in the New York museum, but the walrus miniature can be seen in life size here in the Chicago museum. Taxidermy is an exact art, museum spokesmen say, in which the word "stuffed" is banned. Thus, Jonas, who was born in Budapest in 1894, brings to it the study of sculpture which he began at the age of 11. He worked with the late Carl E. Akeley, former chief taxidermist for the Chicago Natural History museum.

Jonas' collection, which comes from his studios in an old railroad station at Lake Mahopac, N. Y., is said to include one-third of all mammals, and he hopes to do all the others. The exhibit was brought here by Orr Goodson, acting director of the museum. Besides the actual models, students will see the complete story of the miniature from sketch to rough clay model to mold and then to final cast.

TRACTION PLAN OUSTS POLITICS, MAYOR PLEDGES

Public Ownership Found Necessary, He Says

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK

Speaking at a luncheon of the City club in the La Salle hotel, Mayor Kelly said yesterday that he and Gov. Green had adjourned all political considerations in an effort to get a modern local transportation system for Chicago thru the creation of a metropolitan transit authority.

"We have sought an honest, realistic solution," the mayor said. "We do not contend that public ownership is a general cure-all for utility operation or even desirable in most cases. I think the governor will agree with me that private enterprise is far more desirable wherever it can demonstrate its ability to provide the service at a reasonable cost.

"In this case, we are both convinced that public ownership offers the only solution."

Private Ownership Plans Fail

He said many attempts had been made to form a privately owned company that would unify the surface and "L" lines, but that these failed, and there was no hope private ownership could ever finance an improvement program of 100 million to 125 million dollars.

Public ownership would have a better chance to accomplish the task, the mayor said, because it would be free from income taxes and also from local taxation. Further, he said, the proposed operation would be "service at cost" and would have to earn only interest and funds to amortize its obligations.

He admitted that the proposed system would be subsidized to the extent of some 3½ millions of taxes, which would have to be made up by other local taxpayers, but that this was better than to permit equipment of the lines to deteriorate further.

Both Companies in Bankruptcy

Both the surface and elevated lines are in the federal District court in bankruptcy and it is proposed to buy them at a court sale. The offer made is 75 millions to the surface lines owners and a little more than 12 millions for the "L." Once the deal is closed, the authority would take over. It would be governed by a seven man board, four appointed by the mayor and three by the governor.

Money would be borrowed to get the buying cash. Investment bankers have expressed interest in floating the loan, secured only by earnings of the authority, which would have no taxing power.

REDISTRICTING PROGRAM DEAD, CLABAUGH SAYS

Champaign, Ill., April 2 (AP)—Rep. Clabaugh [R., Champaign], chairman of the reapportionment committee in the Illinois house, said today proposals for both senatorial and congressional redistricting of the state "can be written off as dead pigeons."

In an address before the Champaign Rotary club, Clabaugh said that because "hundreds of thousands of citizens are displaced as a result of the war," this is "no time to meddle with reapportionment or the state constitution." Legislative opposition to senatorial reapportionment also is founded on "practical politics" and "sound government," he declared.

"Don't be taken in by this idealistic and sentimental talk of three and a half million people in Cook county being ruled by three million downstate," he told the Rotarians. "Reapportionment that would give Cook county control of the legislature would mean turning control of the state over to a few men in the Chicago city hall and not to the people of Chicago."

IF any of the 20 wood ducks which were released on the Wheaton farm ponds last July want to come back home, their nesting boxes are all ready for them.

Four of the boxes, with four inch nest openings and sawdust floors, were attached last week to oak trees in the pasture woodlot just south of the big farm pond. All of the boxes were placed from 12 to 15 feet above the ground, with plenty of space in front of the openings to permit these most beautiful of all wild ducks an unobstructed open air "runway" to the nests.

Frank Bellrose Jr. and Harold Hanson, game technicians of the Illinois Natural History survey, released the 20 ducklings on the pond last summer and also left the four nesting houses for the birds' use this spring. Bellrose's studies show that wood ducks have a definite homing instinct, and he believes that at least some of the 20 birds will return to our ponds this spring.

Nest in Tree Cavities

More than 1,000 wood duck houses have been erected along the Illinois river, and more than half of these are occupied by nesting birds each season, providing one of the major reasons for the comeback of this species. Their natural nesting places are tree cavities, and the reclamation of so much river bottomland for agricultural use has eliminated many of their natural nests, making artificial nests necessary.

One of the arguments about wood ducks concerns the method by which the newly hatched ducklings leave their elevated nests. One belief is that the youngsters have sharp claws which permit them to walk down the sides of trees, another yarn has it that the female duck carries her young down by her bill. Still another story reports that the hen carries them down on her back.

Ducklings Fall to Ground

Bellrose has studied hundreds of wood duck nests. He reports that adult birds can fly directly into the openings with no preliminary perching, and that when the ducklings are a few days old the hen flies to the ground beneath the nest and calls to the young. The ducklings flutter up to the nest opening, then fall to the ground. After the whole brood has tumbled to the ground the hen leads them to water.

Bellrose has seen this nesting occurrence many times, and also has moving pictures of adult birds entering and leaving the nesting boxes and ducklings fluttering out of the boxes.

★ The GARDEN ★

THE favorable planting weather this spring is encouraging many novice gardeners to plant head lettuce. This vegetable can successfully be grown in home gardens if planted early in the season to mature before the occurrence of hot midsummer weather. Cold or wet spring weather reduces the chances of success.

The gardener on the Wheaton farm already has planted 75 feet of Bibb variety head lettuce and the same footage of Great Lakes type. Bibb is a dark green lettuce which produces small heads about four inches in diameter, and is recommended for its excellent flavor. The thinned seedlings may be used as leaf lettuce, leaving plants to reach full maturity each 10 or 12 inches in the row. Great Lakes produces a larger head of light green color. Its culture is the same as for Bibb lettuce, but about 15 inches should be allowed between plants.

COURT UPHOLDS SCHOOL OUSTER OF DRAFT CRITIC

The Appellate court yesterday upheld the board of education's dismissal of Mrs. Rose K. Royce, a teacher for 16 years, on the ground that she encouraged a draft dodger and ridiculed America's stake in the war. The court said the dismissal was justified.

The opinion cited Mrs. Joyce's letter, written two months after the attack on Pearl Harbor to David Russell Nyvall, 21, a sculptor and her former pupil, who had refused to register for the draft. She congratulated him on his "courageous and idealistic stand."

Nine of her pupils in Hyde Park High school testified at a school board hearing that Mrs. Joyce on Dec. 8, 1941, the day after the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor, had said "we got what was coming to us." Nine other pupils, however, were certain she did not make such statements.

MANUFACTURERS GET 75% of Farmers' Spending Money

Farmers' dollars are the most important spending money in America, because 77 cents of each dollar a farmer spends goes for equipment and the things manufacturers sell. Not only do farmers have more money to spend today, than ever before, but prolonged scarcity of merchandise has built up a huge back-log of needs for the home as well as the farm. It will pay to sell farmers intensively.

FARM JOURNAL, with its 2,500,000 circulation, sells to over half a million more farm families each month than any other farm magazine. SUPREME COURT BACKS HAWAII ARMY VERDICT

Washington, D. C., April 2 (AP)—The Supreme court today denied a request by a civilian residing in Hawaii that it study the authority of a military court there to try him for an asserted offense against territorial law.

The review was asked by Fred Spurlock, who was sentenced by a military court in 1942 to five years' imprisonment on a charge of assault and battery. President Roosevelt lifted martial law in Hawaii last October. Last February an army order remitted the unserved portion of Spurlock's sentence.

Spurlock contended the offense charged was not of a military nature. The Supreme court announced it found no reason for further proceedings in the case.

The Supreme court also refused to review conviction of seven men accused of violating the federal anti-racketeering act in a million dollar shakedown of the movie industry. The group was convicted in New York of extorting large sums from various leading firms in the industry. Louis Compagna, Paul de Lucia, Phil D'Andrea, Charles Gioe, John Rosselli, and Francis Maritote had been fined $10,000 each and sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment. Louis Kaufman was sentenced to seven years and fined $10,000.

BURGLARS TAKE CIGARETS

Burglars took 11 cartons of cigarets, 18 boxes of cigars, and a cash register containing $10 from Spector's restaurant, 1259 Wabash av., Harry Lessman, owner of the cigar stand in the restaurant, told police yesterday.

SLAYING SUSPECT DIES AFTER LEAP IN FRONT OF CAR

Menard, Ill., April 2 (AP)—Arthur H. Dickmeier, 53, of Decatur, found insane by a Macon county Circuit court jury after he was indicted for slaying his wife, died today in Illinois state penitentiary hospital of injuries suffered Saturday when struck by an automobile near Mascoutah.

Sheriff Emery Thornell of Decatur said he was transferring Dickmeier to the hospital when the prisoner lunged from the sheriff's parked car into the path of another automobile.

TURFMEN EXCHANGE VIEWS ON RACING'S FUTURE

[TRIBUNE Photo]

WOMEN RACING CLERKS LIKELY; WINN RE-ELECTED

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Don't be a bit surprised, when racing comes back to the Chicago tracks, if you get a smile or two with the purchase of a ticket on your favored thorobred. The ladies are clamoring for admission into the age-old fraternity of mutuel clerks.

John L. Keeshin, president of Sportsman's Park, the half mile track on the south side, told fellow track operators and members of the Illinois Racing board of the recent development at a luncheon in the Palmer House yesterday. The meeting was called by Maj. Ednyfed H. Williams, chairman of the board, for a discussion of plans now that the government has promised lifting of the ban on racing as soon as the situation in Europe permits.

Women Take Initiative.

Keeshin said he had received numerous calls from women seeking jobs behind the ticket wickets since James F. Byrnes clarified the sport's position last Saturday. He inquired if there was any opposition to the employment of women and found none.

Those present were Charles Krutckoff, president of Hawthorne; Walter Gregory, president of Washington Park; John Jackson, general manager of Arlington and Washington Parks; John O. Stoll, vice president of Arlington Park; D. C. Burnett, general manager of Fairmount Park, Collinsville, Ill.; Ray Bennitsen, assistant to Charles Bidwell, chairman of the board at Hawthorne; Keeshin, Maj. Williams, and two members of the Illinois racing board, Frank Mandel and Clement Nance, secretary, and Albert J. Meserow, assistant attorney general of Illinois.

All agreed that transportation of the thorobreds would be a problem even when racing is resumed and that all that can be done is wait, tho Keeshin pointed out that he will have enough horses on his grounds to open the season when the word is given. The Sportsman's Park meeting is scheduled to open April 28. Schooling of the animals will be started within a week.

Winn Is Reëlected

Maj. Williams voiced the conclusion that the government, appreciative of racing's coöperation since Jan. 3, will be reasonable in all its future demands upon the sport.

While this discussion was going on, the American Turf association, which has interests at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky., and Lincoln Fields, held its annual meeting at the Drake hotel and reëlected 83 year old Matt J. Winn as president while deferring definite plans for renewing the Kentucky Derby.

Winn said Saturday night in THE TRIBUNE that the Derby could be run off about a month after the ban is lifted.

All former association officers were reëlected. They are: Stuyvesant Peabody, vice president; Sam H. McMeekin, secretary, and Stanley H. Hugenburg, treasurer.

Fight Decisions

LAST NIGHT.

At New York—Freddie Schoti knocked out Robert Lotario Ramirez [3]; Vincent Jones knocked out Walter Lamarr [2].

At Baltimore, Md.—Archie Moore beat Nate Bolden [10]; Bobby Thompson beat Jimmy Williams [8].

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

WHEN Joe Louis was asked what thoughts ran thru his mind after Buddy Baer had knocked him out of the ring that time in Washington, he replied, "All I could think of as I laid there on the ring apron, was 'what am I doin' out here when he's in there?' Then I climbed back thru the ropes and polished him off." . . . Rookie Pitcher Bill Colone of the Milwaukee Brewers is called Cy. . . . At this time last year the betting commissioners were laying wagers as to whether or not the major league clubs would play a full season. . . . A St. Louis writer's reaction to the play of one armed Pete Gray: "What he does can't be done. Still, I've seen him do it." . . . The Cincinnati Reds' pitching staff runs the gamut, as the saying goes, in ages. . . . In one intraclub game, for example, the pitching for one side was done by 16 year old Joe Nuxhall and 42 year old Guy Bush. . . . The Dodgers, who appeared in baby blue satin uniforms for night home games last season, have switched to the conventional white for 1945. . . . Dazzy Vance is said to have received $25,000 from the Dodgers when he was in his pitching prime. . . . That was an all-time record for the club. . . . Masha Shamanova is the Babe Didrikson of Russian sports. . . . Masha competes, on an even basis, with men in track meets. . . . Lt. Steve Sinko, former Duquesne university football star, has been placed in charge of the Iowa Pre-Flight school's eight acre victory garden. . . . Three of the four top officials of the White Sox are women—Grace R. Comiskey, president; Dorothy Comiskey Rigney, treasurer, and Grace Lu Comiskey, assistant secretary. . . . Harry Grabiner, vice president and secretary, is the lone man in the quartet. . . . Rumors to the effect that James Byrnes, who resigned yesterday as war mobilization director, will become baseball commissioner, are entirely without foundation.

THAT is something we want to see. . . . Steve's move seems the more probable because the Tigers have only one coach—Art Mills, while Dykes can call on Mule Haas, Muddy Ruel, and Bing Miller. . . . Detroit's Plum Hollow club expects to land the 1945 National P. G. A. tournament. . . . Comdr. COLLEGES O. K. PRO CODE ON FORWARD PASS

Substitution, Kick Rules Changed

New York, April 2 (AP)—Forward passing will be permitted anywhere behind the line of scrimmage and a second successive out-of-bounds kick-off will be put in play by the receiving team on the kicking eleven's 40 yard line, the National Collegiate football rules committee decided today.

In addition, the college gridiron rule makers decided that in future a substitute may report to any official on the field; made the elbow-block definitely illegal and revised the center's stance so that none of his body extends beyond the forward point of the ball.

It was the first meeting of the group since shortly after Pearl Harbor and the first under the chairmanship of Col. William Bingham, Harvard athletic director on military leave.

Stagg and Crisler Absent.

All members of the rule making group except A. A. Stagg, who could not get a reservation from his Stockton, Cal., home, and H. O. [Fritz] Crisler of Michigan, now on an army special service tour, attended the meeting.

Ray Morrison of Temple, president of the Football Coaches association; Lou Little of Columbia, and Bernie Bierman of Minnesota also were present as an advisory committee, and E. A. Geiges of Philadelphia represented the officials.

The new rules permit the ball to be elevated an inch from the ground but do not specify the construction, size, or composition of the tee.

Follow Style of Pros

In adopting the unrestricted forward pass, the collegians will follow the style of the pros. Until now, a college passer had to be five yards behind the line of scrimmage.

The elbow block was eliminated by changing the rule so that a player must have his hands and arms pressed against his own body when blocking.

Committee members attending the two day session were Tuss McLaughry of Dartmouth; W. A. [Bill] Alexander of Georgia Tech; Dana X. Bible of Texas; George F. Keenker of Iowa State; Harry Hughes of Colorado A. & M.; Col. L. M. [Biff] Jones of Army; Comdr. Willis O. Hunter of Southern California, and Secretary E. C. Krieger of Ohio university.

New York, April 2 (AP)—Staff Sgt. Joe Louis, heavyweight boxing champion, has been transferred temporarily from Camp Shanks, N. Y., to the Fox Hills terminal, Stapleton, Staten Island, to assist in the setting up of an athletic program, it was announced today.

Pvt. Melio Bettina, another heavyweight boxer, and Sgt. Ruby Goldstein and Pvt. Pete Scalzo also were transferred. The Fox Hills terminal trains Negro soldiers as port companies to do stevedoring and related duties.

Flood Cancels Today's Game for Cubs, Reds

BY EDWARD BURNS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

French Lick, Ind., April 2—The Cincinnati Reds, who had become stuffy from the dry air in Indiana university's vast field house, learned about Lost river late this afternoon when they arrived here for their part in Cubs-Reds consolidation ceremonies. As a result of heavy rains during last night Marine field was partially under water.

Tho the water was too shallow for the launching of glass bottomed boats for the tourist trade and bright sun lifted the temperatures during the day back into the '70s, Manager Charley Grimm had given up hopes of playing tomorrow's scheduled opener with the Reds even before Deacon Bill McKechnie and his satellites arrived.

Receipts to Red Cross

Groundkeeper Andy Lotshaw and Red Carns, his energetic and patient assistant, after an inspection late this afternoon, said that barring further showers, the practice field will be ready for a game Wednesday. There will be passing of bonnets at the game, all receipts going to the Red Cross.

The Cubs worked out on the depot knoll today and quite a good workout it was, tho attended by the announcement that Claude Passeau, best bet for the opening day pitching assignment up till today, was packing his satchel for a trip to Chicago. Passeau, who made his 1945 pitching debut in yesterday's intraclub game, reported what he described as the first sore arm he ever had in his life. With him was Johnny Ostrowski, who will call on his Chicago draft board tomorrow morning.

SOX DEPEND ON PUDDLE JUMPING TO KEEP IN TRIM

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Terre Haute, Ind., April 2—The White Sox were forced to do some more puddle jumping today, the weather being what it was, but nevertheless were able to carry out Boss James Dykes' plans for keeping 'em in trim. With the assistance of a sawdust brigade the infield was put into fairly presentable trim and the pupils went thru another long batting drill which the manager wisely deems essential, what with major league exhibitions, not to mention the regular season in the offing.

By way of proving his versatility, Dykes conducted workouts 10 miles apart and he attended both places. After the good all around batting at the regular field he singled out about 15 of his experts and conducted them to the near-by federal pen for an impromptu exhibition with the boys unavoidably detained there.

Hockett Has Pinched Nerve.

One of Dykes' regulars escaped work at both places and as there is a paucity of outfielders, the manager is hoping for the best. His center field choice, where there isn't much choice, is Oris Hockett, the energetic ex-Indian and the man now is crippled by what Trainer Packey Schwartz terms a pinched nerve.

Hockett's case is only the second of any consequence that has developed in 22 days of training in the north and that's a pretty good record. The other is Dan Reynolds, draftee from the Yankees' farm at Newark, who has a charley horse which has temporarily stopped his campaign for the shortstop job.

Reynolds Believed a Cinch

Reynolds, even if his charley horse persists over a long period, is a cinch to be one of seven infielders Dykes figures on carrying thruout the season. Nobody, not even Dykes, knows for sure who the six others will be but you can reasonably figure that Joe Orengo, still missing, Le Roy Schalk, Floyd Baker, who wants to play second, Cass Michaels, Tony Cuccinello, and Bill Nagel will survive.

Dykes was still hazy today about which of his pitchers will be delegated to work in the first exhibition with the Tigers in George field Wednesday. He named a trio and then called it off with a declaration that he wasn't certain except that he would call on his experienced mound men, allowing them three innings apiece.

35 REPORT FOR BASEBALL DRILL AT GREAT LAKES

BY EDWARD PRELL

Spring training for Great Lakes' fourth war time season officially started yesterday for 35 aspirants in building 211, which houses a gymnasium and a soft drink emporium. The drill was to have been on the green grass of near-by Constitution field, but Chief Specialist Bob Feller, an expert at taking thermometer readings as an Iowa farm boy, decided early in the day there would be no chance for an outdoor workout.

When Lt. Mickey Cochrane coached the Great Lakes nine he had the title of baseball officer, but Feller, being a nonstriper, obviously can't be an officer. Neither has he been officially designated as coach or manager, but he says he feels honored at succeeding Mickey as the Bluejackets' head man and hopes he can do as well as his predecessor.

Higgins and Keltner Present

Feller spent a large part of the afternoon talking to battery men, while Pinky Higgins of the Tigers, who recently was inducted into the navy, helped Bob check up on the infield candidates. The two top infielders are third basemen. One is Pinky himself and the other is the Indians' Ken Keltner. Obviously one will have to yield, especially since top grade talent isn't too plentiful.

Great Lakes' shortstop probably will be Tom Upton, an 18 year old from Cape Girardeau, Mo., who played with the Kansas City Blues last season. One of the leading first base candidates is Charles Cupp, whose last experience in pro baseball was two years ago in the Southern Association.

Top man in the outfield will be Max Marshall, who played with the Cincinnati Reds as recently as last year. Bill Goodman, who was with Atlanta last season, is another outfielder. Dick Wakefield, Tiger's star, is at Great Lakes but is to be sent elsewhere.

Shoun Would Be Helpful.

If Clyde Shoun, former Cub and Red southpaw pitcher, stays around he will somewhat ease Feller's concern over a pitching staff to take care of the 50 odd games to be played. Sid West, a big winner last season with Baltimore, was in uniform yesterday, as was a sailor named Sullivan, who has pitched for Toledo. As for Feller, he was too busy to do any talking about the plans, if any, he has for Pitcher Feller. Bob pitched briefly at Norfolk Naval training station in 1942, but soon thereafter went where the fighting was, having recently completed 26 months' service on the battleship, Alabama.

The only catcher Feller has discovered is Tom Sheehan, just out of Notre Dame. At least half of the candidates are in boot training as evidence that the athletes are not tarrrying at the north shore center.

CHICAGO TEAM LINEUP STILL NOT DECIDED

Finish Sparring for Tomorrow's Show

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

The 18th annual Intercity Golden Gloves bouts between the best boxers from Chicago and New York are not scheduled until tomorrow night in the Chicago Stadium, but if team spirit, determination, and physical conditioning mean anything, the Chicagoans conducted a perfect preview to the big show in the Illinois Athletic club's gymnasium yesterday afternoon.

Since the opening of drills in the I. A. C. gym on March 21, the young men who were selected to represent Chicago in the year's No. 1 fistic struggle have shown their appreciation of the honor by their faithfulness in training and their eagerness to get into the ring against each other.

One thousand reserved seats at $1.20 each still are available for the Intercity program. These may be purchased at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 S. Dearborn st., between 9 a. m. and 6 p. m., or Tribune Tower lobby between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m.

Still Can't Decide

It was no secret that yesterday would be the day on which the board of strategy—Head Coach Johnny Behr and his staff—Fred Caserio, Issy Kline, Pop Howard, Dick Fitzgerald, and Eddie Nichols—would formulate the battle lines for the always thrilling duel against New York's best. Yet, nearly two hours' inspection of the most intense barrage of punching the candidates have shown to date left the coaches still uncertain as to which 16 members of the squad they will send into the Stadium ring tomorrow night.

Seldom in the long history of the Intercity bouts has the competition been so bitter. Kline, who officiated as referee in the ring sessions, was hard pressed to hop out of the range of the flying gloves hurled during the two three minute rounds allotted to each man, and Fitzpatrick, in charge of the timing bell, had to sound that instrument repeatedly to put an end to the furious exchanges.

Serious Business for Both Teams

The coaches admitted they have had less difficulty in instilling team spirit in this Chicago cast than any of its predecessors. One early contributing factor to this unified attitude doubtless was the glowing succession of reports from the New York squad's special training camp at Bear Mountain, N. Y. The easterners' arrival on Saturday bore out those communiques, revealing one of the best conditioned and most earnest New York invading details ever to come here.

There is no braggadocio about this 1945 New York team. The boys obviously are out to erase the memory of their last visit to Chicago, when they were sent home with a 14 to 2 trouncing, most decisive defeat of the series. Then the Chicagoans traveled to Madison Square Garden last season to follow up the 1943 rout with a 9 to 7 conquest of New York. The team coached by Teddy Martin, Pete Mello, and George Gainford is keyed up over the chances of every squad member, notably La Verne Roach, welterweight, who is captain of the New Yorkers; Eddie Murphy and Elbert Highers, lightweights; Roland La Starza, light heavyweight, and Francisco Garcia, flyweight. The last named pair won their Intercity bouts against Chicago last year.

Chicagoans Work Hard

Altho the New York coaching staff confined yesterday's workout in the C. Y. O. gymnasium to floor and mat work allowing only Murphy any boxing—a two round session against Leon Johnson—the Chicagoans put on their most intensive drill of the preparatory program.

Every Chicagoan given an opportunity to go two rounds at the championship limit of three minutes per session made the most of it. Corp. Adolfo Quijano of the 4th army air base in Muroc, Cal., who has been elected captain of the Chicago team, had a busy time of it in separate rounds against Pvt. Max Klemm of Chanute field and Corp.

EASTERN GLOVES SQUAD ON EDGE; NO MORE WORK

Only Two Team Members Allowed to Box

BY BILL MURTHA

The eastern Golden Gloves coaches called off their scheduled sparring drill in the C. Y. O. gymnasium yesterday and allowed that their young men were ready to face THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's champions immediately.

"The quicker the better," said Pete Mello, one of the New York coaches. "These kids are on edge right now. I don't want them tearing each other to pieces in the gym. We'll save that for the Intercity bouts in the Stadium."

There was one notable exception to the no-sparring rule at the workout yesterday. Eddie Murphy, the wispy lightweight champion of the New York team appeared so tense that the three coaches decided to let him release a bit of that excess energy. They put him in with Leon Johnson, alternate lightweight candidate, and the pair proceeded to put on a scrap that caused the rest of the team, busy with mat drills and rope skipping, to drop all pretense of keeping busy and stand about the ring with mouths agape.

Leon Wants Spot on Team.

Johnson may be an unfamiliar figure to the Chicago coaches who scouted the New York team at the easern Tournament of Champions but New York Golden Gloves fans recall that in the city finals Johnson was the loser of one of the closest scraps in New York history. The winner, of course, was Murphy but the battle they put on was just as close as the clash getween Murphy and Al Highers in the eastern final. Highers also is on the 27-man New York squad.

The youngsters are firm friends but after all Leon wants to fight too and there's that alternate berth behind Murphy still to be decided, so he put on a show for the coaches.

It's No Smiling Matter

The coaches halted the battle before too much mayhem was perpetrated but Murphy got the workout he needed and Johnson's stock boomed in the estimation of the coaches.

The New Yorkers really are tense and determined. One of THE TRIBUNE photographers reported that he had asked Jerry Conway, New York alternate heavyweight candidate to smile as he took a flash of him in his room at the eastern headquarters in the Palmer House. Conway answered grimly, "We'll do our smiling Thursday morning."

They'll run a bit this morning, break out a sweat in the gymnasium this afternoon and chew their nails for the remaining 24 hours until the coaches release them against Chicago's young men in the Stadium tomorrow night.

Gloves Squad Has Its Last Hard Workout

Harding Joins Heavies

The Chicago squad received a valuable reinforcement last night with the arrival of Corp. John Harding of Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., accompanied by Lt. M. E. Fierst and Pvt. Sydney Walker. Corp. Harding was runner-up to Chicago's Luke Baylark in the heavyweight final in the Stadium on March 9. He has been training regularly at Fort Wood with Pvt. Walker, whom you may remember more easily by his nom de ring of Beau Jack.

The most rigorous part of today's final drill for the Chicago squad will be road work, yesterday's jaunt thru Grant park having been canceled by the weather. The afternoon program will consist of a limbering up routine and the issuance of the official Intercity team uniforms. The Chicago team tonight will attend the play, "Ten Little Indians," in the Harris theater.

The official weighing in ceremonies will be held in the C. Y. O. gymnasium at 1:45 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Sinkwich Named National League Most Valuable

Frankie Sinkwich, Detroit Lions' quarter back, yesterday was adjudged the National Football league's most valuable player in 1944 to win the Joe F. Carr trophy.

Frank Sinkwich.

Sinkwich shaded Don Hutson, veteran Green Bay end and winner of the Carr award in 1941 and 1942, by two points in the balloting of 17 sports writers in the 10 league cities to succeed Quartre Back Sid Luckman of the Chicago Bears as the trophy winner.

Five other players received votes, including Bill Paschal, ground gaining champion for two seasons, and Half Back Ward Cuff, both of the New York Giants; Quarter Back Leroy Zimmerman of the Philadelphia Eagles, Frank Filchock of the Washington Redskins, and Full Back Johnny Grigas of the Chicago-Pittsburgh team.

Krulewitch Rejoins Senn for Title Game

Two mysteries which have baffled prep sports enthusiasts were cleared up yesterday when George La Cognata, a football coach, and Harry [Cap] Leighton, a basketball coach, issued communiques describing the status quo of themselves and ventures with which they have been affiliated.

Leighton's announcement was of more immediate importance since he is coach of the Senn High school senior basketball team which meets St. Philip of the Catholic league for the Chicago championship Saturday night in Chicago Stadium.

Leighton broke a long silence by announcing the Bulldogs had resumed practice after a lengthy layoff. He also revealed that Lawrence Krulewitch, a very important cog in the Senn team at one time, had rejoined the squad.

Some Mystery Remains

Krulewitch did not play with the Bulldogs in the City league championship game nor when the Bulldogs lost in the first round of the state tourney. When questioned about Krulewitch's whereabouts at those times, Leighton made no statement, but he has made no secret of Lawrence's return. He has, however, maintained the element of suspense by declining to say whether Lawrence will play guard or even start.

Reason for the Senn lay-off was the illness of several players including Capt. Bob David. Many suffered colds, but David was out with scarlet fever and may not play Saturday.

La Cognata, busy as instructor at Washington playground, yesterday said he had accepted a job in the physical education department of Morgan Park High school of the City league.

Good Record for Year

Last season George, as a new and untried coach, piloted Weber High school to its first Catholic league football title in history and generally was acclaimed as coach of the year considering the miracles he wrought with a small and light squad. He quit at Weber Saturday and the Red Horde, scheduled to begin spring practice today, is searching for a new coach.

La Cognata's position at Morgan Park is that of a substitute and he cannot be accepted by the Board of Education for a full time coaching and physical education position until he passes additional requirements.

Mat Benefit Raises $702 for Kin of Crash Victims

A crowd of 1,400 contributed a gross gate of $1,360.60 last night at the benefit wrestling show in White City arena. A total of $702 was contributed to a fund for families of wrestlers who lost their lives in a plane crash in France while on U. S. O. tour. In the feature bout of the evening Walter Palmer defeated Al Williams, two falls out of three. Williams is the lone survivor of the troupe of wrestlers which made the trip overseas.

Early Spring Activity Boon to Fishermen

BY BOB BECKER

Fishermen in northern Illinois are having the busiest time in many a season due to an early spring and the many mild days which caused the crappies and bluegills to move around and take flies. On recent week-ends hundreds of fly and minnow fishermen have invaded the lake country in the northern part of the state to catch pan fish.

The early spring also has stirred up the bass and pickerel fishermen who are asking about the Illinois seasons on these game fish. Here are the fishing dates which anglers have to keep in mind:

BLUEGILLS AND CRAPPIES—The season is open now. And it's also legal to take sunfish and perch and white bass.

PICKEREL OR NORTHERN PIKE—The season has closed on this species and will be closed until the 28th of May.

BLACK BASS—In the northern zone, which includes the northern Illinois lake area, it still is all right to catch black bass because the spring closed season does not clamp the lid on bass fishing until April 30. From that date until midnight June 14 there is no bass fishing in the northern zone. Beginning June 15, the summer open season on bass starts. In the central zone the opening date is June 1.

WISCONSIN WALLEYED PIKE—The special early pike fishing season in Wisconsin starts April 7 as announced in this department several days ago. This season applies only to the Wolf river and some of its tributaries, the Rock river and other designated waters. The regular Wisconsin walleye fishing season does not get under way until May 15. Besides walleyes, one may take northern pike or pickerel, pan fish, and white bass on and after April 7.

Here in Illinois some of the good bets for panfish early in the spring are the channels on the west side of Round lake which we visited a few days ago, the stream emptying into the south end of Pistakee, and channels connected to Lake Marie. A fishing license cost is 75 cents.

BROWN KNOCKS OUT ROSE IN 6TH AT MARIGOLD

Collins Brown, south side middleweight, knocked out Corp. Buddy Rose in the sixth round of a scheduled 10 round bout in Marigold Gardens last night.

Brown floored Rose for a count of nine, but the soldier regained his feet only to go down again for another count of nine. The Fort Thomas corporal arose for the second time, but when Brown caught him again with a right hand blow Rose went to the canvas for the 10 count.

Nick Stenson, Cincinnati junior welterweight, beat Melvin Bartholomew of New Orleans in a five round semi-windup. Robert Weatherly, south side lightweight, was awarded a decision over Kid Raymond in a four round preliminary event. That contest was substituted for one between Robert Satterfield, former city Golden Gloves winner, and Bobby Millsap, Indianapolis light heavyweight, when the latter was removed from the program after being adjudged out of condition.

New York Skaters Defeat Chicago, 21-16; Cut Lead

The New York roller derby team last night defeated the Chicago team, 21 to 16, before 3,000 spectators in the Coliseum. Evelyn Karran, New York captain, led the scorers in the girls' division with four points, while Russ Baker, also of New York, led the boys' division with three points. The victory cut Chicago's lead in the series to two points, with New York trailing, 97 to 99.

Chicago Boxer Wins Cheers in A. A. U. Meet

Boston, Mass., April 2 (AP)—Stanley Sheeley, Chicago middleweight, stole the A. A. U.'s National Amateur Boxing championship show tonight by blasting out the highly regarded Zep Davis, New England titlist from the Quonset, R. I., naval air station, with one punch to gain the semi-final round in the Boston Garden.

Sheeley, who drew a first round bye, swung into his initial action by bounding from his corner and landing a punch to the sailor's jaw as the latter was raising his gloved hands for the traditional light sparring that opens most amateur bouts.

Wagner Ruled Out

Davis had captured the crowd's approval several hours earlier by knocking out Coast Guardsman Dallas Waddell of Groton, Conn., in their third and final round.

The tourney's outstanding heavyweight, Eddie Wagner, 6 foot 7 inch Chicago Negro from near-by Fort Devens, was withdrawn from the two day competition when his home district association reported he had fought twice as a professional in 1940.

Fittipaldo Wins Two

Ted Fittipaldo of Warren, O., was the first in the skimpy 112 pound division to put together two victories. He opened by beating Billie Bessie of Pittsburgh in his trial, then eliminating Willie Saunders of Columbus, O.

William Guerry, the Columbus team's 147 pounder, became that division's first semi-finalist with a bye and a decision over Cliff Madison of Pittsburgh. Summaries:

Marion Joins Cards for 1st '45 Workout

St. Louis, Mo., April 2 (AP)—Shortstop Marty Marion joined the St. Louis Cardinals today for his first workout this season after signing his 1945 contract during the morning. Marion said he weighs 169 pounds, 15 more than at the close of last fall's world series.

HAYES AFTER RECORD

Frederick, Md., April 2 (AP)—Connie Mack, owner of the Philadelphia Athletics, said today "it looks as if Frankie Hayes will do our catching this year."

Hayes, who set an American league record of 155 games caught in a season, is after Ray Mueller's record of 217 consecutive games caught, set last season.

"I see no reason why he shouldn't," remarked Mack. "But don't get the idea that I do not think Jim Pruett is a good catcher. I saw him last fall and he looked fine. This year, however, he hasn't done so well. If I hadn't seen him last year I might have been skeptical."

The A's were rained out today.

BROWNS WORK INDOORS

Cape Girardeau, Mo., April 2 (AP)—The St. Louis Browns went thru another indoor batting practice today, Manager Luke Sewell using Pitchers Al La Macchia, Sam Zoldak, and John Miller.

Outfielder Mike Kreevich left for a conference with his draft board at Benld, Ill. Since giving up his war plant job he has been classified 1-A, but there are no indications of an immediate call for induction.

GERHEAUSER REPORTS

Muncie, Ind., April 2 (AP)—Southpaw Al Gerheauser, obtained by the Pittsburgh Pirates in the deal that sent Vince DiMaggio to the Philadelphia Phillies, arrived in camp tonight and reported he was in top condition.

Lloyd Waner, veteran outfielder who spent all but two of his 18 years in the major leagues with the Pirates, donned a uniform for the first time today.

VINCE HEADS EAST

Los Angeles, Cal., April 2 (AP)—Vince DiMaggio, former Pittsburgh Pirates outfielder, said today he would leave by plane tomorrow for his new assignment with the Philadelphia Phillies.

DiMaggio was traded last week by the Pirates for Pitcher Al Gerheauser. Vince announced a week ago that he had asked for a transfer.

Despite the exodus of Cavarretta, Passeau, and Ostrowski the camp was loser by only two in the count of noses, Catcher Len Rice arrived from California and reported that he and Pitcher Ray Prim have been working out with the Los Angeles club.

Return to French Lick Monday

With the opening of the season scheduled for two weeks from tomorrow, suspicion increases anent the availability of Peanuts Lowrey, Cub regular center fielder in 1943, a soldier thruout 1944. Word from the coast in contradiction of statements from nearer sources, are that Lowrey has not been signed and has not been working out with the Angels.

There are no reliable reports on Bill Nicholson. Daily inquiry of Manager Grimm brings a repetition of guarded statements to the effect that Nick is working in a war plant 25 miles from his home in Chestertown, Md., and that each day going from his manse to his lathe or whatever, and vice versa, Nick swings a bat.

Plans for tomorrow call for Reds to work out on the depot knoll in the morning with the Cubs following them in the afternoon. There will be games on Marine field Wednesday and Thursday and Friday the two outfits will play at Fort Knox, Ky. Saturday the Cubs will play the Reds and the Louisville Colonels in a double header in Louisville and Sunday the Cubs will play the Reds.

WINGS, BRUINS TO MEET TONIGHT IN SHOWDOWN

Detroit, Mich., April 2 (AP)—The Detroit Red Wings get their last chance tomorrow night to qualify for a berth in the Stanley Cup hockey finals.

The winner tomorrow will clash with the Toronto Maple Leafs in the final series for the cup. The Maple Leafs eliminated the champion Montreal Canadiens in a major upset last Saturday.

SENATORS WIN; ONE LEGGED VET STARS ON MOUND

Fort Story, Va., April 2 (AP)—The Washington Senators rang up a 19 to 3 victory over an outclassed Fort Story baseball team today. But the big news for 2,000 convalescent soldier fans was Bert Shepard.

Bert Shepard

Shepard, an air forces lieutenant who lost part of his right leg when shot down over Germany, pitched the last two innings for the Senators. He allowed a run in the eighth, then settled down and fanned the side in the ninth. The Senators got four runs, enough to win the game, the first time they batted.

YANKEES EVEN SERIES

Atlantic City, N. J., April 2 (AP).—Don Savage helped the New York Yankees even their spring exhibition series with the New York Giants today by belting a three run homer in the eighth inning and driving in four of the American leaguers' runs in their 5 to 2 victory.

Walt Dubiel held Mel Ott's men scoreless in a six inning stretch, but Rookie Bill Dekoning's triple and Buddy Kerr's single off Bill Zuber in the ninth broke the shutout.

Stirnweiss Steals Base

George Stirnweiss stole his first base of the training season in the opening inning and scored on Johnny Lindell's single off Van Mungo. Ray Harrell yielded the second Yank tally in the sixth.

Shift to Newark Base

TWO ARE RECLASSIFIED

Bear Mountain, N. Y., April 2 (AP)—Cy Buker, rookie right hand pitcher with the Brooklyn Dodgers, said today he had been reclassified from 4-F to 1-A as a job jumper, apparently in direct conflict with the recent war man power commission ruling.

The 26 year old recruit from St. Paul was director of physical education at Eau Claire [Wis.] High school last winter, but obtained his release from that position after the WMC made its ruling March 22.

The clerk of the Door county, Wis., draft board explained the board decided that, since Buker was last examined more than two years ago and is now going to play baseball, it felt he should undergo another examination.

Brooklyn officials also announced Al Zachary, a pitcher up from Montreal, had been summoned to take a pre-induction physical examination tomorrow in New York.

INDIAN PITCHERS READY.

Lafayette, Ind., April 2 (AP)—Manager Lou Boudreau will concentrate on intrasquad games during the Cleveland Indians' final week of training here, he said today.

In winning all three exhibition games the past week-end the pitchers demonstrated they are ready and will stretch their stints to four and five innings before the tribe takes to the road next week for a series of exhibitions with Indianapolis of the American association and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

TAXES DESTROY ESTATES, BLOCK GROWTH OF NEW

Death Levy Yields Minute Revenue

BY THOMAS FURLONG
[Financial Editor]

In a message to congress urging higher federal death taxes, delivered June 19, 1935, President Roosevelt "strongly urged" that the proceeds of the tax be set aside to extinguish the national debt.

Since that message, which marked a turning point in national tax policy, three increases in federal death levies have been enacted by congress. At present rates, which reach a maximum effective rate of 75 per cent, the tax yields to the treasury less than 500 million dollars a year or less than 2 per cent of the government's total revenues. At the present rate of collections, it would take 494 years to retire the federal debt from the proceeds of the estate tax. The yield to the treasury on the estate tax is about one third the revenue from liquor and one half the revenue from tobacco.

Takes Huey Long Lead

In the 1935 message the President proclaimed the doctrine that "a tax on inherited economic power is a tax on static wealth, not upon the dynamic wealth which makes for healthy diffusion of economic good."

The President went on to assert that severe taxation of fortunes invested in large businesses did not impair the social benefits provided by such enterprises.

"The benefits of corporate organization remain," he said. "The advantage of pooling many investments in one enterprise remains. Governmental privileges such as patents remain. All that is gone is the initiative, energy, and genius of the creator—and death has taken these away."

The President's espousal of this philosophy closely followed the arguments advanced by Huey Long and others who fathered the share the wealth tax program.

Risk Incentive Is Small

The "soak the rich" tax method proposed by Long and embraced by the New Deal was extended thru the entire federal tax system, not stopping at severe taxes imposed at death. Progressive taxation of high incomes has been carried to a point where it is a practical impossibility to keep much more than $25,000, regardless of the size of the gross income. This creates a situation in which an individual in the higher bracket has little incentive to risk capital in new ventures.

If a venture is successful virtually all the income from it is paid in taxes. For the risk to which the capital was exposed there is little or no compensation. An example is the person with a taxable income of $200,000. Such an individual retains $38,420 after taxes and will keep only 6 cents of each dollar of additional regular income. The effect is the same, in varying degree, from the top to the bottom of the income scale. An individual with $26,000 of taxable income will keep only 35 cents of the next dollar he earns.

Under this policy the initiative and energy, which Mr. Roosevelt said only death removes, is strangled before creating the large estates which the government has committed itself to break up.

Achieves Virtual Ceiling

The system of tax progression reaches its logical conclusion when taxes take all wealth and income above certain levels. President Roosevelt has urged the enactment of a tax scale that would impose a flat ceiling of $25,000 on incomes. Altho congress turned down this specific recommendation on two occasions virtually that result has been achieved.

The basic conflict between the present tax policy and the post-war goal of high employment in private industry is recognized in all of the plans that have been advanced for tax reform. The proponents of the plans, however, were timid in their suggestions for modifying the system of progressive taxation. They merely set forth the incontrovertible evidence that the present tax policy makes impossible the realization of high employment and then proceed to make suggestions for certain modifications. Most of these proposals represent compromises of conflicting views of several individuals. They lack the boldness which competent tax authorities believe is required to stop the trend toward outright government ownership of the entire economy.

Vacate Ruling Beef Ceilings Are Not Valid

New York, April 2 (AP)—The United States Emergency Court of Appeals today restored ceiling prices on wholesale beef which it had ruled invalid Thursday.

The order vacating last week's judgment was entered after a conference between three Appeals judges and counsel for the office of price administration and for a group of meat packers. The judgment had set aside maximum prices as applicable to nonprocessing slaughterers. The motion to vacate was made by the OPA and meat packers' counsel filed a stipulation of no objection to it.

Subsidy Cut Canceled

Arthur L. Winn Jr., representing counsel for the packers, said the packers had concurred in granting the motion because OPA following the decision last Thursday had taken "emergency immediate action effective yesterday to grant relief to the whole industry on pork as well as beef."

OPA also announced that if a current study of pork and pork product prices has not been completed by May 10 an interim upward adjustment of 40 cents a hundred pounds in the subsidy will be allowed, retroactive to April 1.

Higher Subsidy Proposed

Washington, D. C., April 2 (AP)—An increase in ceiling prices and government subsidies on choice grades of beef and some pork cuts to enlarge consumer supplies without raising retail prices was proposed today by a cattle and beef industry committee. Chairman Anderson [D., N. M.] of the house food investigating committee said his group had begun a study to determine whether it would transmit the proposal to the office of price administration.

AMERICAN HOME PRODUCTS WILL EXPAND PLANTS

New York, April 2 (AP)—American Home Products corporation will begin a 15 million dollar plant and laboratory expansion program as soon as war restrictions are lifted, Alvin G. Brush, board chairman, announced today. The company has spent $7,655,972 on buildings, machinery, equipment, and improvements on plant structure since Pearl Harbor and its research personnel has doubled, Brush said.

HIGH COURT UPHOLDS FPC RATE CUT ORDERS FOR WHOLESALE GAS

Washington, D. C., April 2 (AP)—The Supreme court today upheld in the main federal power commission orders substantially reducing interstate wholesale gas rates of four companies.

Justice Douglas delivered the three opinions which affected the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line, Colorado Interstate Gas, Canadian River Gas, and Colorado-Wyoming Gas companies.

Douglas held in effect that the rates as affirmed are just and reasonable. He adhered to a principle previously stated by the court that the result obtained is the controling factor and not the method of property valuation used.

Chief Justice Stone and Justices Roberts, Reed, and Frankfurter dissented with the reasoning of the majority, but said they concurred in the result in the Panhandle and Canadian River cases. Roberts and Reed dissented in the Colorado Interstate decision, but wrote no opinion.

In a special opinion Justice Jackson contended that the power commission's rate-base formula is "little better than drawing figures out of a hat," and in some instances had resulted in three different prices for gas from the same well. The cases ruled on today, he said, "vividly demonstrate the delirious results" produced by the commission's rate-base methods.

KIDDER, PEABODY & CO. SUSPENDED 10 DAYS IN 1942 'MANIPULATION'

Philadelphia, Pa., April 2 (AP)—Kidder, Peabody & Co., New York, was suspended today by the securities and exchange commission from membership in the National Association of Securities Dealers for 10 days beginning April 17. The SEC also suspended Harry C. Clifford, a partner in the firm, from membership in the New York Stock exchange for the same period.

The commission said the firm thru its employes "wilfully violated provisions of the securities exchange act" with a secondary distribution in September, 1942, of $963,000 of Jamestown, Franklin and Clearfield Railroad company 4 per cent first mortgage gold bonds listed on the New York exchange.

The firm also has offices in Boston, Philadelphia, and Chicago. Proceedings leading to the suspension were conducted privately.

The bonds were distributed in an off-the-exchange offering at 50¼, the Sept. 23, 1942, closing price on the exchange, which the SEC said resulted from manipulation of the market thru transactions "effected for the purpose of inducing the purchase thereof by others." At noon on Sept. 22 the price was 49¾. Proceedings on revocation of Kidder's broker-dealer registration were dismissed because of certain "mitigating circumstances."

In New York the firm said it understood the order "would in no way prevent it from carrying out its stock exchange business," and that "the firm believed it had acted correctly and in entire good faith."

G. M. TO DISPOSE OF ITS HOLDINGS IN DETROIT BANK

Detroit, Mich., April 2 (AP)—General Motors corporation today announced it is arranging to dispose of its approximately 510,000 shares of common stock in the National Bank of Detroit. At the same time Walter S. McLucas, chairman of the bank, announced approval by stockholders of the issuance of 10 million dollars of additional common.

When the bank was organized following the bank holiday in 1933, General Motors subscribed $12,500,000 for all the bank's common stock. The Reconstruction Finance corporation subscribed to its $12,500,000 of preferred shares, of which it still holds $8,500,000.

Sales of common stock since have reduced General Motors holdings to about $6,375,000, represented in the 510,000 shares. The new issue of $10 par common will be offered to stockholders at $40 a share in the ratio of one for each four shares held.

U. S. MIGHT RULE SINGLE AIR LINE, SENATORS TOLD

Washington, D. C., April 2 (AP)—Opposing a proposal that American participation in international aviation be restricted to one company, Assistant Secretary of State Clayton and Civil Aeronautics Board Chairman Pogue today told a senate commerce subcommittee they believed a single company might come under government ownership.

Pogue said a single company would be virtually immune from government discipline because "we could not afford to cancel certificates [of operating privilege]. Our loss abroad would be too large."

The committee has under consideration a bill by Sen. McCarran [D., Nev.] for a single American carrier in international aviation.

Stocks Make Large Gains in Dull Trade

New York, April 2 (AP)—Stocks advanced today in the smallest turnover for a full session since Oct. 30. Selective improvement appeared at the opening, and new gains in the final hour put advances of fractions to as much as 3 points in the majority at the close, tho without much increase in activity. Transfers were 650,000 shares.

Belief that the recent reaction had strengthened the market's technical position, plus dividend and earnings hopes, caused some of the purchasing. Reconversion apprehension waned as discussion of a longer war was revived. Many customers, however, stayed out of the market pending developments.

The Associated Press 60 stock average rose 0.6 to 60.5 in its largest advance since Feb. 15. Only 813 issues were traded, with 482 up, 141 down, and 190 unchanged.

Aided by earnings reports were Dunhill International, at a peak for the year; United Aircraft, and General Outdoor Advertising. A new top for 1945 also was posted for Hercules Motors.

RAIL RALLY LIFTS BONDS

New York, April 2 (AP)—A rally in the rails lifted the bond market out of a narrow range to a generally higher close today. Utilities made a substantial contribution to the rise. Turnover was small. Advances in the carriers ran to about 2 points at one time, and many held gains of 1 point or more.

Philadelphia and Reading Coal 6s raced up 14 points to 246 and eased back to 242. Certificates for the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico 5s bounded up 14⅜ to 77. Commonwealth Edison 3⅛s and Bush Terminal 5s each rose 1½ to new tops.

EDISON REACHES PEAK

Prices rose in slow trade of 28,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Most active issues included Republic Steel, up ⅜; Commonwealth Edison, up ⅜ to a 1945 peak of 29⅛, and Chicago corporation common, Admiral corporation, and Libby, McNeill, each up ⅛.

GARMENT UNION DENIED RELEASE IN TRADE CHARGE

New York, April 2 (AP)—The federal trade commission today denied a motion to remove the AFL International Ladies Garment Workers union as one of the respondents in the FTC complaint charging unfair trade practices against the national coat and suit industry recovery board.

Carl M. Owen, attorney for the recovery board and representing 14 affiliated organizations named in the complaint, had asked that the union be excluded on grounds that it was not a person engaged in business for profit under the meaning of the federal trade act.

The complaint alleged that practices of the respondents tended to monopolize the manufacture of coats and suits, the obtaining of skilled labor, and to fix prices. It said the ILGWU followed a policy of not permitting its members to work on any garment unless it was to bear the recovery board label.

LINK BELT PLANS TO CALL 30,187 SENIOR SHARES

Link Belt company announced yesterday it will call for redemption 30,187 shares of its 6½ per cent preferred stock July 1 at $120 and accrued dividends per share.

A special meeting of stockholders will be held April 17 to consider increasing the authorized common stock from 740,350 to 840,350 shares.

Of the proceeds of the sale of the 100,000 common shares, $3,622,440 would be used for redemption of the preferred stock and the remainder added to working capital.

OPA Approves Ceiling Boosts for Stripper Oil

Washington, D. C., April 2 (AP)—The OPA today authorized increases ranging from 17 to 35 cents a barrel at 14 crude oil pools under the stripper well premium payment plan.

PULLMAN SHUNS SHIP BUILDING BID, NAVY SAYS

To Get No Material for Cars—WPB

Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company, before the war the world's largest producer of railroad passenger cars, has refused to bid on another shipbuilding contract, a navy spokesman said yesterday. War production board officials reiterated that the company will not be given materials with which to resume production of rail passenger cars.

Capt. Paul Goen

Capt. Paul S. Goen, supervisor of navy shipbuilding in Chicago, said Pullman-Standard had been asked to bid on contracts for construction of craft only a little different from those now being completed, but had refused. Bids have been entered by the Chicago Bridge and Iron Works plant at Seneca which is completing a contract for medium ships, he said.

5,000 Workers Laid Off

More than 5,000 of the 7,000 workers employed at peak production in the ship program by Pulman-Standard have left their jobs, a company spokesman said, and the remainder will be laid off by April 30, when the last ship is fitted and turned over to the navy.

Capt. Goen said Pullman-Standard had been an important factor in the navy's shipbuilding program, particularly 18 months ago, when it was asked to convert from patrol to landing craft. He said the building of naval craft was far different from making railroad cars and "it is natural for the company to want to get into production of something more like it originally made." The Pullman-Standard shipbuilding plant was built three years ago and was manned almost entirely by workers recruited for that purpose, he said.

Bids on the new contracts will close April 14 and have been received from many other plants, Capt. Goen said.

Workers Placed Elsewhere.

Lester Brown, area man power director, said the United States employment service is placing discharged Pullman-Standard ship workers in other plants in the Calumet area and has jobs for all who are released.

Col. A. H. Brawner, army service forces representative on the area production urgency committee, said the army would ask the man power commission to continue referring former ship workers to army ordnance jobs. He said the Republic Steel company in particular needs 750 skilled workers and has a top critical rating. Some workers may be lost to war production because the highly skilled ship workers may refuse jobs paying less and requiring less skill, he said.

NEGOTIABLE WAR BOND TERMS OF 7TH LOAN GIVEN

Washington, D. C., April 2 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau today announced the terms of the four marketable securities to be offered in the 7th war loan drive starting May 14. All of the securities will be dated June 1, 1945.

The 2½ per cent bonds will mature June 15, 1972, and may be redeemed at the option of the United States on and after June 15, 1967. They will be issued in coupon and registered form at the option of the buyers, in denominations of $500 to 1 million.

The 2¼ per cent bonds will mature June 15, 1962, and may be called on and after June 15, 1959. They will be issued in the same form and denominations as the 2½ per cent bonds.

The 1½ per cent bonds, to mature Dec. 15, 1950, will be in the same form and denominations.

The ⅞ per cent certificates of indebtedness will mature June 1, 1946, in coupon form only, in denominations of $1,000 to 1 million.

Home Furnishings Retailers Get Complex Price Chart Job

Chicago clothing and house furnishing retailers yesterday prepared to undertake one of the longest, most complex tasks ever imposed upon them after a meeting in the Morrison hotel at which metropolitan area office of price administration officials explained details of maximum price regulation 580 which becomes effective April 20.

The regulation requires retailers to file a pricing chart with OPA using March 19 as a base date, and to fix their ceiling prices by using the chart. Two copies of the chart must be filed with OPA by April 20, new ceiling prices to take effect by May 4 after OPA has had time to acknowledge receipts.

Supersedes Prior Rulings.

With certain exceptions the new regulation supersedes all prior ceiling regulations in the fields covered. It is designed to change and improve the controls over clothing and home furnishings sales prices at all levels of production and distribution.

The retailer must list in the first column of the chart everything he offered for sale on the base date, divided into general categories.

In the second column he must list his last net cost figure for each different article, style, model, or lot number, after deducting discounts. "Per dozen" prices must be broken down to cost per unit. Each net cost must be listed separately, even tho the retailer bought other articles, styles, models, or lot numbers for the same gross invoice cost.

How Chart Is Finished

In the third column opposite each net cost shown in column 2 must be listed each different price at which he offered merchandise on the base date. The average percentage markup then must be computed by totaling costs and offering prices. Separate percentage markups for each listing will be placed in column 4 and a list of invoices for the various items in column 5. His chart thus would be headed:

Col. 1 Item.	Col. 2 Cost	Col. 3 Price	Col. 4 Markup	Col. 5 Inv. No.

The retailer will obtain his maximum price by applying a percentage markup to net cost under whichever of five rules may be applicable.

Retailers said once the difficulties of making out the chart were over, the new regulation should prove the best offered by OPA.

SOCONY PROFIT DOUBLED THRU AID OF CREDITS

Gains in Operating Results Shown

Socony-Vacuum Oil company net earnings last year were almost double 1943 profits, B. Brewster Jennings, president, said yesterday in his annual report to stockholders. Major factors in the gain were increased earnings from operations before taxes and the effect on profits of certain nonrecurring deductions against taxable income.

Excluding government business, domestic sales of all petroleum products increased 8.6 per cent. Domestic sales to the government rose 30 per cent. Crude oil output rose 9 per cent and refinery operations gained 11 per cent.

Taxes Exceed 143 Million

Net income in 1944 was $62,300,000, or $2 a share, compared with 1943 profit of $35,900,000, or $1.15 a share. Tax provisions totaled $142,100,000, including $60,900,000 of gasoline taxes collected for the various states. Earnings before federal income taxes in 1944 were 85½ million dollars, of which 71 million dollars was from domestic and 14½ million dollars from foreign operations.

Socony was able to provide first public information on how the war has affected its European operations. The compounding plant and warehouse in England, once damaged by bombing, are back in operation, Jennings said. The Naples refinery was completely destroyed, one French refinery was 60 per cent destroyed, and the other damaged. No information was available regarding its refineries in Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, and Poland.

PEAK PRODUCTION

WITH the climax of the war rapidly approaching, the maintenance of peak production remains a factor of supreme importance. Smooth working, sound financing arrangements are a necessary element in achieving this objective and it is here that the banks of the nation are playing a vital part in the war effort.

The American National, during the war years, has aided many companies, large and small, in the financing of their contracts and sub-contracts, and more recently in the setting up of contract termination loans. Broad experience, covering many industries, enables this institution to render service of unusual value to a growing list of corporations and individual enterprises.

POSSIBLE PINCH IN RYE SUPPLY BOOSTS GRAINS

Buying by Government Reduces Stocks

May rye advanced the permitted maximum of 5 cents a bushel yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade to sell at one time at $1.22½, highest price in nearly a year. May wheat was up 2¾ cents to $1.73 at one time.

Altho profit taking caused a reaction from the top, closing trades on rye were 2¾ to 4¾ cents higher. May finished at $1.22¼ to 1.22⅛ and July at $1.17⅝ to $1.17½. Wheat advanced 1⅛ to 2; corn, 1⅛ to 2⅛; oats, 1⅛ to 1½, and barley, 1½ to 2¾.

Sales to Government Are Factor

Confirmation by General Foods corporation that it had sold a substantial quantity of rye to government agencies and distillers and talk of additional sales for export to Europe caused general buying of rye futures which was headed by shorts and professional traders. Numerous stop loss orders were uncovered on the way up.

The possibility that local stocks, which now are 7¾ million bushels, would be reduced rapidly resulted in apprehension little grain would be available for tender on May contracts.

Mills Buy Persistently

Mills were persistent buyers of May wheat, and altho commission houses sold on the upturn, each advance carried the market into new high ground.

A forecast of cold weather combined with heavy rains in many sections of the Ohio valley led to apprehension winter wheat may be damaged. Wheat has grown rapidly in the last two weeks because of the warm weather and ample moisture.

HOME BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED AT 3 YEAR PEAK

Permits were issued last month by Building Commissioner Paul Gerhardt Jr. for 438 single family homes, valued at $2,016,585, largest number since March, 1942, compared with 168 homes to cost $757,000 in March, 1944, and with 150 at $700,087 in February, 1945.

More permits were issued last month for apartment buildings and row houses than in February, but fewer than a year ago. Last month's totals were 37 units to cost $140,450 compared with 30 at $113,001 in February, and 473 at $1,062,930 in March, 1944.

Permits for 514 buildings of all types, to cost $2,755,248, were issued, compared with 221 at $1,846,911 in February, and 316 at $2,366,517 in March, 1944.

HOG AND CATTLE SUPPLY SHRINKS; PRICES STEADY

Receipts of meat animals at the Chicago stock yards dwindled further yesterday. Cattle supplies at 14,000, were smallest for a Monday in seven months, and the hog run of only 7,500 head was lowest for an April Monday in about 60 years.

Ceiling prices were paid for practically all hogs marketed, except some stags which ruled unevenly lower as the trade eliminated the dockage of weight for certain grades.

Lambs ruled steady to 10 cents lower, with 32 carloads within a range of $16.60 to $16.75.

Elevated and Bus Traffic Rises in March, Quarter

Chicago Rapid Transit [elevated] company reported yesterday it carried 17,711,819 passengers last month, 7.3 per cent more than year ago volume. The first quarter total was 51,927,132 passengers, up 9.7 per cent. Chicago Motor Coach company had 6,456,872 cash fares in March, a rise of 11.38 per cent, and the first quarter total was 18,075,781, up 8.7 per cent.

American Milk Production Boosted 7 Billion Quarts

The American dairy industry is producing annually 15 billion 300 million pounds or 7 billion 116 million quarts more milk than it did in pre-war years, the National Dairy council, Chicago, reported yesterday. The increase would fill 180 million 10 gallon cans and if loaded at 100 cans per truck, the caravan would stretch 10,233 miles.

HOSIERY PRODUCER.

The company, a large producer of low priced hosiery for men, women, and children, in normal times sells about three-fourths of its output to variety chain stores. In recent years, large quantities of hosiery have been manufactured for the army and navy. Cotton and rayon yarns and admixtures constitute the bulk of the materials used.

The Adams-Millis plants in North Carolina are believed to rank among the lowest cost manufacturers of hosiery. Improvements and replacements of equipment have been important factors in reducing operating expense.

In 1944, profit increased to $3.63 a share from $2.59 in 1943 and $2.02 in 1942. Despite an increase in sales, the 1942 and 1943 earnings were below the average of the years immediately preceding. In 1941 the share profit was $4; 1940, $3.03; 1939, $3.55; 1938, $3.21.

Outstanding are 156,000 no par shares, sole capitalization. Common dividends have been paid each year since 1928. From 1942 thru 1944 the payments totaled $1.75 a share annually. The company's current assets as of Dec. 31, last, totaled $3,602,549, and current liabilities $917,565.
